OUTSIDE CASH TO RUN PLANTS FOR MICHIGAN

Legislature Backs Bank Holiday.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Michigan's legislators today rallied to the support of Gov. William A. Comstock, who had startled the financial world early this morning by an order authorizing the closing of all banks in the state for eight days. Resolutions commending him for his "courageous action" were adopted by both houses at Lansing and bills were introduced to ratify the moratorium.

All state and national banks, except those in the upper peninsula, observed the holiday. It was estimated that more than one and a quarter billion dollars were tied up by the governor's plan; about $722,000,000 of that total in Detroit institutions.

Steps Quickly Taken.

Speedy efforts were made to avoid the distress that might be anticipated if the residents of the state were deprived of all cash for a period of nine days [while the order expires after Feb. 21 the following day is a legal holiday and the banks could not open until Feb. 23].

Early this evening the Detroit Clearing House association issued an announcement that Detroit banks would pay 5 per cent of all accounts on Thursday, if depositors wished the money. Only counter checks would be acceptable, it was added. Three corporations, among the larger employers in Michigan, also let it be known, through their New York offices, that they would continue to pay their workers in cash.

These concerns are General Motors, Chrysler corporation, and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company. Together they have 150,000 employés and money is to be shipped in from other states to meet the pay rolls. A large part is to come from Chicago. The Federal Reserve bank there transferred $20,000,000 here today.

Expects Shorter "Holiday."

Hope for an earlier ending of the bank holiday was given in the afternoon by the governor. He said he did not believe it would be necessary to maintain it for eight days and that when the banks did reopen they would be able to withstand any developments.

Meanwhile it was indicated by concerns dealing in the necessities of life that no citizens would have to go without food or fuel, because of their inability to cash checks. Milk companies said they would continue deliveries for several days and grocerymen were making arrangements to accept the paper of well known corporations in lieu of cash, trusting that the banks will make this paper good in a short time.

See Couzens-Ford Fight.

A copyrighted article in the Detroit Free Press advanced a new theory of the underlying causes which precipitated the bank holiday. The article said that opposition by Senator James Couzens of Michigan to a requested loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation of 60 million dollars by the Union Guardian Trust company seriously embarrassed the bank, in which Henry Ford is known to be the chief backer.

Ford, according to the article, had deposited more than 7 million dollars to offset heavy withdrawals, but this support failed to enable the bank to reach a sound footing. Its principal assets are in Detroit real estate.

As chairman of the senate committee investigating R. F. C. loans, Senator Couzens opposed the 60 million dollar loan, the article says, on the ground that Ford's deposits were the chief liquid assets of the bank and that collateral offered by the bank was inadequate to cover possible loss by the government.

Ford Rejects Couzens' Plea.

The article stated further that Senator Couzens then suggested to Mr Ford that the motor magnate agree to grant the government a lien on his deposits in the bank, making them, in effect a "frozen deposit" in the bank. This Ford declined to do. The senator then suggested that he and Mr. Ford jointly sign a note for the difference between the bank's collateral offered and the amount of the loan. Mr. Ford again refused, holding that there was "a basic principle involved."

The bank holiday decision by Gov. Comstock followed a conference late Monday night and early Tuesday morning with representatives of the R. F. C., prominent bankers of other cities.

Present at that meeting were Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin, a Detroiter; Undersecretary of the Treasury A. A. Ballantine; Melvin A. Traylor,

MAIL A MILLION VALENTINES IN CHICAGO IN WEEK

Valentines are still the symbol of romance, and, despite the depression, are as plentiful as ever, according to R. J. Lindower, assistant night superintendent of mails at the postoffice here. He estimated that more than a million cards and other Valentine's day greetings had been mailed in Chicago in the last week.

The old fashioned type of valentine with decorated cutouts and an abundance of lace has returned to popularity, he said, with candy in heart shaped boxes running second in favor.

Chicago school children yesterday were busy observing Valentine day with an exchange of greeting cards. More than 900 crippled children were entertained at a party in the Spalding school, Washington boulevard and Ashland avenue. The party was sponsored by the Chicago Club for Crippled Children and the Ruth lodge. Cake, cookies, fruit, candy and valentines were distributed.

PEER RESUMES SEAT IN LORDS AFTER JAIL TERM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 14.—For the first time since his release from Wormwood Scrubbs prison last August after serving a term of one year for publishing a false prospectus of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, Lord Kylsant made his appearance in the house of lords today. He took the oath required of all peers resuming their seats at the new session of parliament.

Lord Kylsant, looking extremely fit, took his oath in a low voice and then, according to custom, walked to the woolsack and shook hands with Viscount Sankey, the lord chancellor.

Several peers in adjacent seats greeted the former shipping magnate with smiles of recognition. Several greeted him with handshakes and a few words of welcome.

Fake Federal Agents Loot Stevens Home

Ernest J. Stevens, former hotel and insurance company magnate, and members of his family were terrorized in their home at 1314 East 58th street Saturday night by four bandits—one of whom carried a submachine gun—who posed as federal agents, and escaped with $1,373 after holding the Stevenses prisoners for nearly two hours.

News of the robbery became public early last evening when it was brought to the attention of the police 72 hours after the crime was committed. The robbers threatened to blow off the heads of the family if the police were notified, Mr. Stevens said. He told the police he notified United States Attorney Dwight K. Green of the robbery because the gunmen represented themselves as federal officials.

Indictment Starts "Terrors."

The difficulties of Mr. Stevens, his father, James W., and his brother, Raymond W., in the receiverships of the La Salle and Stevens hotels, and the collapse of the Illinois Life Insurance company, which they had controlled, proved the lure for the gunmen who hoped to "get a million dollars." The Stevenses are now under state indictment for the failure of the insurance company. That indictment began a "wave of terror" for the family, Mr. Stevens said last night. Accordingly, they have given up their 58th street home, he added.

About 6:15 o'clock Saturday night the four robbers appeared at the Stevens home. To the maid they announced they were federal men with a warrant for Mr. Stevens. They were admitted. One of the men wore a policeman's cap, star, and leather jacket. Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens, two of her sons, William, 15 years old, and John, 12, were also at home. Once inside the house the men revealed the submachine gun, two shotguns, and a revolver.

Reads Fake Search Warrant.

"The leader took out an official looking document," related Mr. Stevens. "He began to read it, saying that 'on complaint of William S. Day, made before Commissioner Walker,' they were authorized to search for all money and valuables in the house." This man wouldn't let me see the paper at closer quarters, but he did show me a badge."

Then Stevens, his wife, two children, and the maid were herded into a bedroom and guarded by one of the men. The other three ransacked the house. They got $700 from Mr. Stevens, $600 from his wife, and $73 from the children's bank. Meantime they cut the telephone wires. It then became apparent the men were robbers, especially when they remarked: "Where's the money in the tomato cans?" The men finally departed at 8 o'clock, the leader remarking, "We're not federal men, but stickup men."

"If you notify police or ever identify us, we'll blow your heads off" warned the bandit leader as a parting message.

Mr. Stevens obeyed this injunction but on Sunday night, notified District Attorney Green and later told Attorney Patrick J. Lucey, a personal friend, who planned to report the crime to the state's attorney's office. Mr. Stevens and his attorney, former Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, appeared at the detective bureau last night to look over pictures of known robbers.

It was apparent that the robbery had been planned with elaborate care. On Jan. 25, two weeks to the day before the holdup, four gunmen kidnapped Orson Washburn, the Stevens' family chauffeur. They tried to make a deal with him whereby he would give them information of his employer's finances. His share would be half. He refused. Hyde Park police were notified of this incident, and a police guard was established at the home for two or three days.

ILLINOIS SENATE TO VOTE TODAY ON DRY REPEAL

Beer Control Bills Offered.

Dry Filibuster

Senate refuses to "knuckle" to dry filibuster against bringing to a vote the resolution to submit repeal of 18th amendment to the states. Senator Joe T. Robinson leads fight on dry obstructionists. It finally was agreed to vote today. Page 2.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—The way was cleared for swift repeal of the Illinois prohibition laws late today. Bills were introduced in the state senate to regulate the manufacture and sale of beer and other alcoholic beverages when their use is authorized by congress.

Drawn by a joint committee of Democrats in both house and senate, the regulatory measures are expected to meet the entire approval of Gov. Horner. He has felt that other legislation should accompany the wiping out of dry laws.

Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] presented the bills today and secured their advancement to second reading. The repeal bills now are on third reading. It is the present plan to call them for passage tomorrow.

The Ward bills follow the lead of congress by restricting the manufacture of beer to 3.05 per cent alcohol by weight—the percentage currently favored by the United States senate. They also replace the old dram shop restrictions, in use before state prohibition went into effect thirteen years ago, with one exception. This releases the owner of a building used as a dispensing place from liability for happenings in the establishment, placing entire responsibility on the owner of the business. In that connection, the word "saloon" is prohibited in advertising.

Classifies Beer Dealers.

Licenses which would be issued under the bills place beer dealers in two classes:

Class A: Those who may sell for consumption on or off the premises.

License fees would be fixed by county boards, cities, towns, and villages, but could not exceed $200 for class A and not more than $25 for class B. Cars and boats would be charged a fee of $100.

All licensees would be required to post a $1,000 bond. In addition, an applicant for a class A license would be required to show satisfactorily that he is of good moral character.

No person engaged in the business of manufacturing or bottling of malt beverages would be allowed a class A license; that is, no dispensing for consumption on the premises could be made at a brewery. Penalties for violation of any of these provisions consist of fines from $25 to $500, and county jail imprisonment from 30 days to six months, or both.

Forbids Sales to Minors.

The restricting act would prohibit sales to minors without the written consent of parents or guardians.

Boundary lines within which no liquor could be sold would be established one and one-eighth miles from "any tract of land on which is located any home or hospital for disabled war veterans."

State universities, normal schools, and colleges would be protected by a four mile boundary line, military posts by a one and one-eighth mile line, and public or parochial schools, churches, and cemeteries, hospitals, and playgrounds by a 100 foot deadline.

The Ward bills would place responsibility for the acts of a drunken person on the one who sold him the beverage. The dealer would be required to pay a "reasonable compensation" to whomever cared for the intoxicated person "and $2 per day in addition."

Sales Tax Up Today.

The general 3 per cent sales tax bill also is slated for a final vote tomorrow. This measure failed of passage by nine votes last Thursday. Its further consideration was postponed until today in the hopes that senators from border counties could be "brought around to a favorable stand."

It is urged by Gov. Horner as a means of lessening general taxes downstate and as due to act in a like manner in Cook county after relief measures become unnecessary.

The house judiciary committee voted favorably on the bill to prevent blind-

Sistine Chapel Pictures Shock U. S. Customs

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—United States customs officials, with an eye for protecting youthful morals from erotic influence, for four days held as obscene rotogravure reproductions of some of Michael Angelo's famous paintings.

It happens that the originals, as frescoes, adorn the ceilings of the Sistine chapel in the Vatican. Annually they lure thousands of visitors from all parts of the world, and never before had they, or their reproductions, been deemed other than immortal art by officials or observers.

The story of the confiscation of the imported reproductions came to light tonight, and not long afterward it was announced that the seized imports had been released.

The reproductions arrived at the port four days ago for consignment to the Weyhe gallery, 794 Lexington avenue. They included ten pamphlets picturing the famous Sistine frescoes. The customs office, after taking its action, dispatched a form announcement to the gallery. It read:

Consignee Is Warned.

"There is being detained at the parcel post room, appraiser's stores, 201 Varick street, New York City, two (2) packages addressed to you containing obscene photo books, 'Ceiling Sistine Chapel,' by Michael Angelo, the importation of which is held to be prohibited under the provisions of section 305 of the tariff act. The package will therefore be seized and disposed of in due course as provided by law. You may, however, avail yourself of the privilege of applying to the secretary of the treasury, under section 518 of the tariff act, for mitigation of the penalty of forfeiture below, returning same in the inclosed envelope, which requires no postage."

Enclosed was a form of signature assenting to the forfeiture and destruction for violation of the customs revenue laws, of the "above described merchandise" and waiving rights.

Gallery Fights Seizure.

Officials of the Weyhe gallery retaliated with the declaration they would fight to have the photographs admitted. They pointed out that the frescoes have been famous for four centuries, that the pictures should be considered not "obscene" but as accepted works of art, and that naturally any reproductions should have the same interpretation. American morals would not suffer, they asserted, for worldly morals had not been injured during the existence of the famous paintings.

Attaches at the custom house wavered a bit. It was indicated that perhaps the Sistine frescoes were works of art and not erotic. Finally Assistant Customs Solicitor George N. Brewer reviewed the case. Then he notified the gallery to "come and get the pictures." Thus art won over official objections.

Hardly any pictures in the world are more famous than the great frescoes that Michael Angelo painted at the behest of Pope Julius II. They have made the Sistine chapel famous wherever the rudiments of art are known. Four years Michael Angelo spent on the gigantic decorative scheme, covering some 10,000 square feet. Month by month, as he lay working on his high scaffolding, there appeared the great figures, seemingly endowed with life, telling the biblical story from the creation to the flood.

ALL POLICEMEN TAKE RUM BRIBE, ONE TELLS COURT

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—A declaration that "all the policemen" take money for letting trucks loaded with liquor pass through the streets was made today on the witness stand in County court, Brooklyn, by John Nevins, a suspended patrolman, on trial for kidnaping.

Nevins had casually admitted that he had been paid "so much a case" for permitting rum running trucks to pass when he was on traffic duty.

This statement seemed to astonish Judge Algeron I. Nova.

"Then you were on the pay roll, weren't you?" Judge Nova asked.

"Well, yes," Nevins answered.

"So you were taking graft?"

"Well, if you want to call it that."

"What else could you call it?" Judge Nova demanded.

"Okay, then, it was graft," Nevins replied.

"Don't you know that as a policeman you were doing what was wrong?" asked Judge Nova.

"I knew I wasn't doing anything except what every other policeman was doing," retorted Nevins.

"Do you mean to say that every man in the police department accepts money for letting trucks of liquor go by?" asked Judge Nova.

"Well, pretty near all."

"Didn't you say all of them?"

"Yes."

RECEIVERSHIP PRACTICES OF BENCH ASSAILED

Condemn Methods of Naming Masters.

In a Chicago Bar association report on receivership practices made public last night, certain judges in the chancery division of the Circuit and Superior courts are branded as political spoilsmen. The report was drafted by a committee of seventeen members of the bar association. Carl R. Latham is chairman of the committee, which has been investigating its subject for ten months.

The scope of the report is limited to practices of the chancery judges and to the manner of selecting their masters in chancery and receivers. It is the first of a series, other reports being in preparation on such subjects as receivership costs, fees of masters and attorneys, bank receiverships and federal court receiverships.

The Blight of Politics.

The report, bearing the signatures and indorsement of the entire board of managers of the bar association and its president, Charles P. Megan, declares that politics has been a blight on the Cook county bench since 1927. This blight has become progressively worse since 1930, the committee finds, until now some of the judges openly admit they are subjecting their judicial functions to the dictates of the politicians.

The conduct of the judges in these matters has been such, the committee declares, as to "tend to destroy confidence in the impartiality of the courts in the exercise of all their functions."

Refrains from Using Names.

The report refrains from mentioning any judges by name. Certain political activities of the judiciary are cited so pointedly, however, as to leave no doubt in the minds of informed attorneys as to which judges the report is hitting at. On the subject of political spoils, the report comments as follows:

"It may be fairly stated that it was the practice accepted by the judges and their political sponsors alike that such patronage as the laws placed at the disposal of the courts should be treated as political spoils to be distributed as dictated by party requirements."

Dictate Their Masters.

The report condemns the judges in the following particulars:

1. They have permitted their political sponsors to dictate, or at least pass upon, their appointments of masters in chancery, thus transforming this arm of the court into an instrument of political patronage.

2. By admission of some of the judges themselves these politically named masters are so incompetent as to be unfitted to handle important cases.

3. Circuit judges, in exercising their duty of electing the south park commissioners, have been drawn into politics, instead of taking the park system out of politics, as the law intended.

4. In 1927 certain Circuit judges allowed their political bosses to interfere in such administrative functions as the election of a chief justice, of chancellors and of the help committee, and by 1930 a majority of the Circuit judges had surrendered this function to their political sponsors.

5. In 1931, having yielded control of their administrative functions, the judges were beset by political leaders who saw a tempting chance to satisfy the demands of unemployed party workers by employing the powers of the court in appointing receivers.

Character of Courts.

It is evident from the language of the report that a number of the judges were subjected to a thorough examination before the committee reached any conclusions. The opening paragraph urges readers of the report to keep constantly in mind "the political character of the courts which the present method of selecting judges seems to render inevitable."

In this connection it is recalled that leaders of the bar have recently expressed opposition to the nomination of judges at party conventions and are urging their nomination instead at nonpartisan primaries or by vote of the bar alone.

"In all foreclosure proceedings," the report observes, "the court has the power to exercise control over expenses of all sorts, including fees of complainants' solicitors, masters, receivers, their attorneys, and trustees. It is therefore important that some conception be gained of the attitude of the judges themselves towards certain of their functions."

The report goes on to discuss the judges' attitude in unflattering terms.

"The statutes confer upon the judges certain powers of appointment which the judges have become accustomed to treat as essentially political," the committee declares. "In the exercise of these powers they have felt that by deferring to the wishes of political sponsors they were not acting contrary to their duty as judges."

The committee states that it does not propose to discuss at this point the soundness of that standard of judicial conduct. It passes on to the matter of naming receivers.

"From the committee's investigation," the report states, "it appears that a candidate for either Circuit or Superior court is expected to, and does, designate as his master a person selected by or satisfactory to the judge's political sponsors. The judges themselves qualify this by stating that the person so selected must be competent to serve in the capacity of a master in chancery.

"In a number of instances," the report points out, "this qualification apparently has not been insisted upon, for some of the judges, in discussing with the committee a suggestion that the cases should be assigned by rotation, stated that they considered such a plan undesirable for the reason that some of the masters are incompetent to handle cases of importance."

Follow Sponsors' Orders.

With reference to Circuit court appointment of the south park commissioners, the committee declares itself satisfied that "the judges vote for candidates designated by their political sponsors." A similar practice seems to have prevailed in the court's selection of jury commissioners, the report observes.

With respect to the political intrusion on the Circuit court in 1927, the report cites a bit of political history.

"The personnel of the court at that time," the committee notes, "included nine Democratic judges and eleven Republican judges, the latter coming from different factions of the Republican party. Owing to the fact that no one political group had a majority, some form of bipartisan arrangement was necessary and two of the judges from one of the Republican groups have voted with the Democratic judges on matters relating to appointments and organization.

"This undoubtedly explains why during 1930-1932 the chancery branch of the Circuit court consisted of two Democratic judges and two Republican judges from the same group," the report elucidates.

Quiz Several Judges.

"The committee interrogated several of the judges with reference to this matter. Practically all expressed ignorance of any such arrangement as outlined above, or protested that they had only hearsay information. How or why the slate for the organization of the court originated appears to be a mystery."

Coming down to 1930 and the beginning of the depression, the committee states that "when the large volume of foreclosures began, the judges had become accustomed to the idea that patronage at their disposal might properly be distributed as their political sponsors suggested."

"With the depression continuing through 1931 and 1932, the problem of satisfying the demands of party workers had become more and more acute. All the chancellors of both courts agreed that they have been beset upon all sides by applicants for appointments as receivers. In view of the scarcity of lucrative employment, it would not be surprising to find that the power of the court to appoint receivers suggested itself to political leaders as a tempting opportunity for satisfying the demands made upon them, and that political influence had found its way into the conduct of foreclosure proceedings."

The Legal Method.

The report plunges into the divers practices of the various judges in naming receivers. It states that some judges name as receiver a party on whom parties to the litigation agree. This, the committee asserts, is the method prescribed by the law.

Other chancellors allow the parties in litigation to name the receiver, but reserve the naming of the receivers' attorney for themselves, the report asserts. Still others pay no attention to the wishes of the litigants, the committe finds, but insist on naming their own candidates, "some even requiring litigants to leave a blank space in the order naming the receiver, which is subsequently filled in when the parties are not in court and have no opportunity to voice objections."

"Complaint has been made that the chancellors have been guided by personal friendship and political associations rather than by a consideration for efficient management of the foreclosed property," the report states. "That many such appointments have been made there can be no doubt. An investigation made by the committee of more than two hundred receivers indicates that political considerations entered into the selection of many of them."

Offer Lame Explanations.

The committee took little stock in the explanation advanced by some chancellors, who held that "they were duty bound to give preference to persons concerning whom they had personal knowledge." Such appointees, the report avers, "appear in many instances to be lacking in the necessary qualifications for receivers and led the committee to conclude that a plausible reason had been advanced to conceal a bad practice."

Certain chancellors have proposed that each should draw up a list of "qualified persons" and that all receivers be appointed from such lists, the committee disclosed.

"This assumes that the chancellors would independently select a list based solely on qualifications and experience," the report observes. "Such an assumption is not warranted by the history of the courts. On the contrary, the committee believes such a system would only create a new outlet for political patronage. Many of the judges frankly acknowledge that in appointments they have followed the suggestions of their political sponsors."

"Inevitably," the report concludes, "such a system would draw the courts even deeper into politics and it would be difficult to predict where the tendency would stop."

Gives Four Recommendations.

1. In unopposed motions for appointment of a receiver the court should follow the recommendation of the solicitor for the complainant if such nominee be qualified.
2. In cases where both complainant and defendant agree upon a nominee the court should accept the agreement.
3. In cases of a disagreement the court should in bona fide cases follow the suggestion of the complainant.
4. In all cases the court should make sure the interest of any party making suggestions is substantial.

"Appointment of receivers is not a piece of patronage," the report concludes. "It is a step in the determination and protection of the rights of the parties in interest. It is the recommendations of the parties in interest that we emphasize, for it may be that the complainant is a mischief maker with a trifling interest."

HOUSE GETS MEASURE TO FREE PHYSICIANS TO PRESCRIBE LIQUOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—The house judiciary committee today votel, 11 to 6, to submit the Celler bill removing all restrictions on medicinal liquor prescriptions to the house with a recommendation in favor of its passage.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Emanuel Celler [Dem., N. Y.], amends the Volstead act to remove the present limitation of one pint of whisky or one quart of wine now imposed upon the medical profession. It would give physicians a free rein in prescribing liquor and wine, even beer, for their patients.

Representative Celler is to draft a report immediately, so that the measure can be brought before the house before the week is out. The New York Democrat predicted that it will be approved.

ness by enforcing the using of a phophylactic wash on new born babies' eyes. This measure, sponsored by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, came victoriously out of a scrimmage by a vote of 30 to 4, with 4 others on the committee responding "present."

A representative of the Christian Science Church, Attorney Fred A. Bangs of Chicago, made the principal attack upon the measure.

SENATE DRYS FILIBUSTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special]—Senate wets, too political to be optimistic, but too stubborn to be resigned, won a significant but a transient victory tonight and forced from filibustering dry colleagues a pledge to vote at 1 p. m. tomorrow on the question of taking up the long postponed resolution for repeal of the 18th amendment. It was a significant victory because it portends the senate's first undiluted vote on repeal.

It will be a transient victory, because a wet success will be the signal for the same dry tactics of delay which today caused annoyed and helpless senators to listen for nearly nine hours while Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], dry among drys, read into the record page after toneless page from the proceedings of the league of nations.

Stings Flagging Wets Into Action.

And it was a victory won only after the Democratic leadership in the person of Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas had stung the flagging wets into making a fight of it and had won a 39 to 28 victory on a motion to table the motion to bring up the repeal resolution and so certainly kill it for the remainder of this session.

Killed for this session, the repeal resolution probably will be: for the drys showed strength sufficient to stave off a vote in the 14 working days remaining to this congress. But, thanks to Senator Robinson, wets and drys will be placed on record.

Wets ready to concede victory to the dry obstructionists, were themselves left high and dry when the Democratic leader loosed a shouted defiance of the filibusterers that fixed the issue squarely before the senate.

"Is the senate going to surrender its right to function?" he demanded and glared over at the blocky figure of Iowa's radical lame duck, Smith Wildman Brookhart, waiting his turn to spout words for five hours., as soon as Senator Sheppard was exhausted.

All day and until the agreement was reached at 10 p. m. Senator Sheppard talked, ostensibly on the motion by Senator John J. Blaine, Wisconsin radical and wet, to take the repeal resolution from the calendar, where is has lain for more than a month.

Debate had opened with Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho], prohibitionist, describing debt burdened farmers in rebellion and urging that farm mortgage and unemployment relief be put ahead of repeal. To postpone action on repeal until the special session means few legislatures will be in session. That was the dry strategy. On the wets' refusal to yield, the filibuster began.

Some of the wets, guided by Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], measured their chances by their slender hope of real accomplishment and decided to call off the fight. The wetter wets were not averse because they have no liking for the present resolution, burdened, as it is, with federal supervision of the saloon and federal guardianship over dry states. They feared also the political consequences of delaying relief with a prohibition fight.

Filibuster Is Interrupted.

Senator Tydings interrupted the filibuster with a motion to table the Blaine motion. To make it clear who was filibustering, wet senators, one after another, expressed their willingness to vote immediately.

But Senator Robinson had not been reckoned with. As Democratic leader, it was up to him to carry out the party's repeal pledge. He tore into the filibusterers, concluded with the assertion that he would vote against the Tydings motion.

A dozen Republicans, including at least two wets, and sixteen Democrats, also including at least two wets, voted to table. Against the motion, insisting that the question be threshed out until brought to a vote, were 20 Republicans, 18 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite.

Ten o'clock came, Assistant Republican Leader Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], shrewd craftsman of compromises, arose. He proposed an agreement to vote on the Blaine motion at 1 o'clock tomorrow.

RYERSON QUITS AS CHAIRMAN OF RELIEF BOARD

Six Other Members Expected to Resign.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr. yesterday announced his resignation as chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, to take effect March 1. Although not formally announced, it was said at the relief commission offices that six members of the commission, appointed with Mr. Ryerson by former Gov. Emmerson, also would resign on that date.

In Springfield Gov. Horner expressed surprise at the announcement. He said he had not been informed of the intention of Mr. Ryerson and the others to quit, although several of them recently requested him to consider the appointment of men to succeed them.

Wants Ryerson to Stay.

"I understood," he said, "that they would continue to serve indefinitely as a courtesy to me, and I have not had an opportunity to consider any appointments to replace them.

"I am well aware of the great public service which Mr. Ryerson has given the people of this state. He is exhausted by the tremendous burden he has been carrying. He has been in service since September, 1930, and I consider him the man best qualified to continue this difficult work. I shall do my utmost to persuade him to reconsider his decision to resign."

The other members of the commission who are expected to resign with Mr. Ryerson are Joseph M. Cudahy, vice chairman; Omar H. Wright of Belvidere, secretary; Paul Abt of East St. Louis; George A. Barr of Joliet, and Victor A. Olander and William H. Sexton of Chicago. Ex-officio members of the commission who will remain on the board are State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, State Treasurer John C. Martin, and Joseph J. Wright, state director of finance.

Announcement of Resignation.

The formal announcement of the resignation said, in part: "Mr. Ryerson stated that although he had always received splendid coöperation from Gov. Horner, due to the magnitude of the work and the method of procedure it has been increasingly difficult for him to serve in that capacity.

"This situation, together with the fact that his own business affairs demanded more of his attention, made it necessary for him to withdraw from the chairmanship of the commission at the expiration of the term for which he was originally appointed. Therefore Chairman Ryerson announced that his resignation as chairman would take effect as of March 1, 1933."

King to Return to London; Flu Epidemic Is Checked

FIGHT PROPOSED BAN ON PUBLIC JOBS FOR WIVES

A bill recently introduced in the state legislature by Representative John O. Hruby of Chicago which would prohibit the employment of married women by the state or by any municipal corporation was opposed in a resolution passed yesterday by the executive committee of the Illinois League of Women Voters, meeting at 228 North Michigan avenue.

Such a bill would be "a denial of the right of the individual to work," said Mrs. Raymond Simons of Highland Park, chairman of the department of legal status of women in the league.

She questioned "the kind of socialism which is involved in permitting an employer to consider whether a family has more than one source of income and to determine what that income shall be by arbitrarily eliminating one source."

N. Y. Bar Upholds Seabury Move to Reform Courts

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—The Association of the Bar of the City of New York at a meeting tonight voted in favor of Samuel Seabury's recommendation in his report on the magistrate's court inquiry that the appointment of city magistrates be taken out of the hands of the mayor and vested in the Appellate division. The vote was 61 to 56. It followed a heated discussion in which Mr. Seabury took a leading part and pleaded for early action that would facilitate reform of the magistrates' courts.

TWO NEW DENVER KIDNAP NOTES; HUNT IN CHICAGO

BULLETIN.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 15 (Wednesday).—(AP)—"Red" Mitchell, identified by Chief of Police Clark as an alcohol runner, was held incommunicado in city jail early today as police, working against a 48 hour deadline set by Clark, pursued their investigation of the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II., Denver clubman.

Clark said George Zarlingo, whom he also identified as a Denver bootlegger, had been placed in jail and "definitely connected with the case."

Denver, Colo., Feb. 14.—[Special]—Kidnapers of Charles Boettcher II, young investment broker and society leader, who has been missing since last Sunday, have sent members of his family a second note demanding $30,000 for his release, it was reported authoritatively tonight. Their first note made a $60,000 ransom demand.

Authorities maintained strict secrecy, but the note is believed to have been delivered by an unidentified man who has visited the Boettcher home three times in the last twenty-four hours. This man may be acting as mediator in the negotiations believed to be under way for Boettcher's release, it was reported.

Receipt of a special delivery letter at the Boettcher home late tonight brought increased activity by the investigators. Contents of the letter, delivered to Police Inspector I. B. Bruce of Colorado Springs, who is aiding Denver police, were kept secret.

Following receipt of the letter there was a conference at police headquarters and a man arrested earlier in the evening was questioned by Chief of Police A. T. Clark and Inspector Bruce. It is understood Attorney James Grant and James Q. Newton, partner of Mr. Boettcher, also were present at the conference.

Another Is Threatened.

Receipts of a threatening letter also by Oscar L. Malo, another local investment broker, sent the investigation into a new channel tonight. The letter is said to have been sent through the mail and is believed to have demanded a large sum. Police would not discuss it.

Malo was the victim of an unsuccessful extortion plot several months ago. Police are believed to be taking the latest threat seriously because of the letter's similarity to the one thrust into the hands of Boettcher's pretty young wife by the two gunmen who abducted her husband.

In the meanwhile it is believed that the family of Charles Boettcher has started negotiations with his kidnapers to bring about the broker's safe return.

A mysterious man was seen to enter the home of Claude K. Boettcher, wealthy father of the missing man, once late last night and twice today.

Claude Boettcher has refused to confirm reports of the visits, but it is known that at the first conference with the mysterious visitor he spent half an hour with him.

Instructed to Admit Caller.

After the man's first visit Boettcher was heard to instruct a watchman to admit the man at any hour day or night and to call him immediately upon his arrival.

Today Chief of Police Clark revealed that he believes he has positively identified two members of the gang which abducted Boettcher from his palatial home Sunday night. They took their victim from the garage at the rear of the home while he and his wife, an expectant mother, were driving into the driveway.

Clark refused to reveal the names of the men he believes he has identified with the kidnap gang, probably through identification of pictures by Mrs. Boettcher. He said they are well known racketeers.

He also said the kidnapers tested the telephone line into the Boettcher home several times Monday night and early today with calls not completed. Tapped lines are said to have a faint buzz.

Willie Tuerk Is Suggested.

The name of Willie Tuerk, gangster and racketeer, was injected into the kidnaping hunt today when Chief Investigator Ray Humphreys of the district attorney's office issued orders that a search be started for him. Tuerk is said to answer the description of the one man seen clearly by Mrs. Boettcher.

Tuerk, known in the middle west it is said, as a kidnaper, is wanted here on a charge of alleged attempted extortion, in a case in which Vito Balastreri and Joe Roma, Denver gang leader, are co-defendants. Balastreri is from Chicago.

Chief Clark said late tonight he had come to the conclusion that Ben Mykasa and Frank J. Sullivan, detained in Chicago for questioning, had no connection with the case.

Seizing of the Chicago men grew out of Clark's belief that the trail of the kidnapers led to Chicago.

West Park Board to Cut Pay of 550 of Its Employes

The new west park commissioners started their economy program yesterday with a salary cut for 550 civil service employés of the system. The new board starts out with a deficit of nearly $4,000,000 in the park corporate fund inherited from the former commissioners headed by W. R. James.

President Harry Joseph declared that the salary cuts would effect a saving of $20,000 a month in the parks' $135,000 a month pay rolls. The pay cut was effected by putting all civil service workers on their minimum salary scales. The commissioners asserted that further reductions would be made within the next thirty days.

To Stay Within Revenue.

The commissioners unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by James O'Keefe that the board would not exceed its estimated revenue for the remainder of the year.

In order to bring the financial condition of the board up to date the commissioners decided to have an audit made from March 1, 1932. An audit of the citizens' committee recently made public extended only to that date.

An echo of the former park board's conduct of affairs was injected into the meeting when Samuel Kostelny, a member of the new board, proposed that the new commissioners be given some means of identification.

"What was the cost of the gold stars that the other commissioners had?" asked Kostelny.

"Twenty-eight dollars," answered Daniel Roberts, former attorney for the board.

"For all of them?"

"Apiece," replied Roberts.

Gold Stars Are Out.

Kostelny dropped the subject and the board started on another matter.

Roberts was replaced as counsel by James Donahoe, former Municipal judge. Edward N. Heinz, a banker, was elected as secretary, succeeding Robert Daly, who served under the old board. The secretary will also have the duties of controller and paymaster under a new arrangement.

Thomas S. Gordon was elected vice president, Mr. O'Keefe was made auditor, and Mr. Kostelny treasurer of the board.

PENSION FUND INVESTMENTS HIT BY CERMAK

In a statement sent from Florida, where he is on a vacation, Mayor Cermak yesterday criticized trustees of various municipal pension funds for investing part of their surplus funds in bonds bought in the open market, instead of purchasing tax warrants to help meet public pay rolls.

The mayor charged that some of the bonds purchased by the pension fund trustees have since defaulted as to interest or principal. Among these investments were bonds of the sanitary district, forest preserves, and a number of school districts outside Chicago.

During 1932 the trustees of the teachers' pension fund made investments of surplus cash totaling $558,350. Of this sum $330,000 was spent for bonds, purchased from brokers, and the remaining $237,450 was used to purchase tax warrants, at par, from school employés.

The municipal employés' pension fund during 1931 and 1932 bought $3,355,950 worth of tax warrants at par from the city. Its purchases of bonds in the open market totaled $1,698,000.

The police pension fund during 1931 and 1932 bought $800,000 worth of tax warrants at par from the city. Bond purchases from brokers totaled $1,880,000.

MELLON REPORT CALLED HELP TO SMOKE CAMPAIGN

Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, yesterday greeted as an aid to his smoke abatement campaign the report of H. B. Meller of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, made public Monday, that smoke may work injury to the brain. The report was made after an 11 year study of city smoke.

Fourteen persons and business concerns have been notified to appear today in Chambers' office because of smoking chimneys found by the department's observers. Those named in the notices are:

Nash Motor Sales, 7158 Stony Island avenue.
John E. Sandburg, 751 Junior terrace.
Otto Surita, 3707 Winchester avenue.
M. Jaworsky, 1832 Patterson avenue.
St. Clair hotel, 162 East Ohio street.

Chicago Surface Lines, 2137 West Grand avenue.
William Schmitt, 6108 North Talman avenue.
J. O. Lindley, 303 South Paulina street.

Those appearing at the hearings in Chambers' office are warned that suit to abate the nuisance will be started in the Municipal court if the violation of the city's ordinance is repeated.

BISHOP RESCUED; REVEALS HOW 12 DIED OFF ALASKA

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Bishop Antonin Pokrovsky was rescued tonight by the bureau of fisheries ship Penguin, and told a pitiful story of how 12 persons on the shipwrecked trading vessel Umnak Native died, by freezing and drowning.

The distinguished Alaskan prelate of the Russian Orthodox church was found by natives yesterday, seriously frost bitten and suffering from long exposure after the shipwreck on Jan. 24. Today the Penguin, with a doctor, reached the bishop, who is more than 70 years old. Only three others of the 16 aboard the Umnak Native survived. They struggled to a village after days of suffering and hunger.

When the storm struck the Aleutian islands the Umnak Native broke its moorings and the disabled engines were unable to drive it to shelter. Mrs. Stankus, wife of the captain, her infant child and the Rev. Michael Tutiakoss, priest at Umnak, perished in the waves, the bishop said. The others reached shore almost naked, without food or water. Three men started for Umnak village. The others died at various points on the rocky shore.

ACCUSED OF MISUSING RELIEF.

William Cordis, 27 years old, 308 West 51st place, who was accused by his wife of buying liquor with funds obtained from the relief commission, was placed on probation and warned to care for his wife and five children yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan.

GREETER GAW'S SYSTEM SAVES BRAIN POWER

And Set Speeches Fit All Types of Visitor.

After nearly two years of somewhat catch as catch can city greeting, Col. [Ky.] George D. Gaw has placed his duties on an official, systematic, and programmed basis. This formal and organized plan the colonel explained last night.

It should be mentioned, says Col. Gaw, that a city greeter's job is not all beer and skittles, but a 24 hour chore, what with celebrities arriving at all hours, without regard for a greeter's sleeping time. In its earlier days, of course, it had its compensation — white cars, white hats, white motorcycles, which added some splendid prestige.

It's a Job of Work Now.

"But all that's over," declared Col. Gaw. "This greeting is work. A greeter must greet. When I greet a visitor I want him to know he's been greeted."

And so the official city greeter last night unfolded his systematic 12 cylinder greeting. It is simple but forceful. His plan includes a series of speeches, each appropriate to the occasion.

Mayor Jones from a California city arrives. His eye is filled by the spectacle of Gaw. There are broad smiles testifying to gladness. And then Col. Gaw with form No. 1:

"Chicago welcomes you not as a stranger, but as a friend." This hits Mayor Jones squarely in the nose. "No matter where you come from, you will find here neighbors who speak your language and think your thoughts."

For a Credulous Visitor.

A few hours later, a credulous Britisher, who believes all he reads and who has come to Chicago to see a few gang fights, is met by Col. Gaw. For this visit, perhaps, form No. 2 is appropos:

"Chicago welcomes you to a city of over 1,700 churches, of parks that cover over 8,000 acres, of schools where nearly 1,000,000 children are taught by 18,000 educators."

"Chicago welcomes you. Here world famous hotels, theaters, restaurants, and amusement centers offer the last word in comfort and the greatest entertainment programs in the world."

Should a group of youths call, Col. Gaw throws this:

"Chicago welcomes the youth of all sections of our broad land with the same opportunities it has always extended to the ambitious and determined of other lands."

Saves Wear and Tear.

This system, admitted Col. Gaw, saves wear and tear on the vocal cords. It saves energy in thinking up new words of welcome. He has expanded his system to cover great commercial conventions as well. At conventions the colonel's systematized greeting begins:

It may possibly be that some one will sing the colonel's famous song, "Greetings, Chicago Welcomes You," which was published last year.

The colonel has found that his new plan makes for better welcomes. It is much superior to the extemporaneous method, he said. It was recalled that during the colonel's regrettable indisposition a few months back—due to the accidental explosions of a fountain pen gun—his job was temporarily taken by "Col." (Mex.) George Brumlik, dance hall owner. "Col." Brumlik is no longer a city greeter, however. Col. Gaw is now assisted by "Col." (Okla.) Harry J. Dooley.

KELLAND, AUTHOR, IS ORDERED TO PAY WIFE'S $3,505 BILLS

New York, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Clarence Buddington Kelland, author who doesn't believe woman should be allowed to "pile up bills" when they have "no cash to pay," was ordered today by Supreme Court Justice John Ll. Walsh to spend $3,505 for goods Mrs. Kelland bought at a dress shop.

The judgment was in favor of Hattie Carnegie, Inc., women's apparel shop, for goods purchased during 1931 and 1932. Kelland did not appear in court to protest the action.

Kelland had said in October he intended to defend the suit because these "people ought to be discouraged from piling bills on women who do not realize, while they have no cash to pay for it, that they are getting themselves into deep obligations."

"I allege," he declared at that time, "that my financial condition at no time would justify hose at $6.50 a pair, a white panama hat at $40, cloth coat at $420, dresses at $225 and $250 and perfumery at $25 or $15 as necessaries for my wife."

HALT HOODLUMS' TRIP AND SEIZE SIX DOUGHNUTS

Lieut. Edward Birmingham of the detective bureau sent squads led by Sergts. Joseph Haska and Walter Kelly to the Park Row station last night. In the waiting room they found "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Three Fingered Jack White, Harry Hochstein, 20th ward politician, and Charles Feinberg, who gave his address as 88 Waverly court. McGurn, White, and Feinberg admitted they were planning to take a train for Florida. Hochstein said he was there to see them off.

Later at the detective bureau, McGurn said: "I never get a chance to see the sun any more." White said, "Chief of Detectives Schoemaker told me only this morning to get out of town and you won't let me do it." Feinberg demanded that the detectives return his package of lunch. It contained six doughnuts.

ETTELSON WINS FIGHT TO OUST INSULL TRUSTEE

Fentress Is Disqualified, Wilkerson Rules.

Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, won his fight yesterday to have Calvin Fentress disqualified as trustee of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., on the ground that he was the nominee of Samuel Insull and his former bankers. Mr. Fentress is a La Salle street investment banker.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson disqualified Mr. Fentress after Attorney Ettelson had spent the afternoon before a courtroom crowd of Insull investors inquiring into the circumstances under which Mr. Fentress became receiver of the defunct concern before it was adjudged bankrupt. Mr. Fentress testified he had accepted the appointment at solicitation of four Chicago bankers.

Tells of Insull's Veto.

In accepting their nomination, he said he had imposed the condition that he be sole receiver. This condition, he revealed, was vetoed by Samuel Insull himself, who insisted that one of his lawyers, former Judge George A. Cooke, be appointed co-receiver. He acceded to Insull's wish, Mr. Fentress said, and the utility magnate shook his hand and thanked him.

Notwithstanding his appointment by the bankers, Mr. Fentress indicated in his testimony that in becoming a candidate for trustee he was prepared to press the suits of the Insull creditors against the banks for return of $40,000,000 in collateral which the banks are alleged to have accepted illegally from Insull Utility Investments. The judge declared there could be no question of Mr. Fentress' integrity, and said he regarded the banker as a "man of the highest caliber."

A Disinterested Receiver.

"But the difficulty is that this court cannot differentiate between individuals," the judge went on. "In the case of an equity receivership, where it is proposed to carry on the business, the court may appoint as co-receiver a officer of the company seeking receivership or some one nominated by the company. In the case of a single receiver it is a better practice that the receiver be entirely disinterested."

The judge's allusion was to the fact that former Judge Cooke was dropped as co-receiver when Insull Utility Investments was adjudged bankrupt, leaving Mr. Fentress in sole charge pending election of the trustee.

"Mr. Fentress' consultations with the bankers make it difficult to see how he could be completely disinterested," the judge continued. "In such a case as this he could not help knowing that he owed his appointment to the influence and suggestion of the banks. There is a question whether, in justice to himself, he stands as a disinterested party, particularly after conferences with lawyers who should have known better."

Case Returns to Referee.

Having delivered his opinion, Judge Wilkerson referred the case back to Garfield Charles, referee in bankruptcy, in whose courtroom the company's creditors elected Mr. Fentress trustee three weeks ago, following which the referee disqualified him. In his ruling the referee held that Mr. Ettelson had adduced sufficient grounds of disqualification in citing the fact that the Bankers Trust company of New York, one of the defendant banks in the pending suits, was New York correspondent of Mr. Fentress' investment firm, Baker, Fentress & Co.

The case came before Judge Wilkerson on an appeal from the referee's ruling, brought by Attorneys Lewis F. Jacobson and Harold F. White, counsel for the petitioning creditors of the bankrupt company, who had nominated Mr. Fentress for trustee. Mr. Fentress was examined yesterday by Attorney Thomas Marshall, associated with Attorney Walter L. Fisher, as personal counsel for Mr. Fentress.

Tells of Bank Loans.

Mr. Fentress identified himself as a director of twenty-three corporations. One of these corporations, he said, had a $150,000 loan at one of the banks that financed Insull and another had a $37,000 loan at another bank of the same group.

Q. [By Attorney Marshall]—When was the first time you heard a suggestion of yourself being made receiver of Insull Utility Investments? A. [Mr. Fentress]—Early in April, a few days before the Insull receiverships. James Leavell, president of the Continental bank, telephoned me and I went to his office. There I met Melvin Traylor, president of the First National bank; Solomon Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, and Abner Stilwell and Herman Waldeck, vice presidents of the Continental.

Q.—What was said? A.—One of them said they feared the Insull receiverships were inevitable and asked if my name could be suggested to the court. I said I appreciated the compliment but they were making a mistake, as I knew nothing of the Insull affairs. They said that was just the reason they wanted me.

A few days later, Mr. Fentress explained, he informed the bankers he would accept on condition that he be named sole receiver. The bankers then informed him that Samuel Insull wanted Judge Cooke as co-receiver.

Q.—And did you agree? A.—I finally consented. They asked me if I would tell Mr. Insull so, and I said I would. We went to his office on an upper floor of the Commonwealth Edison building. I went into Mr. Insull's office and said I was there to inform him that I would agree to Judge Cooke as co-receiver. He stood up, shook my hand, and said 'thank you very much." That was all. I left.

INSULL JR. FIRST SENATE HEARING WITNESS TODAY

Other Chicagoans Called by Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Samuel Insull Jr. will be the first witness tomorrow in the senate stock exchange committee's inquiry into the collapse of the Insull companies. The announcement was made today by Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], committee chairman.

Following Mr. Insull, Senator Norbeck said, will come Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago. Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Melvin Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, and other bank officials from Chicago and New York have been subpœned to testify during the investigation, but Senator Norbeck said he did not know in what order they would be called.

The hearing is expected to last three or four days and the committee chairman predicted that it would turn out to be the biggest case the committee had yet handled. More witnesses will be called and more material presented than in any other case the committee has investigated, Chairman Norbeck said.

Tomorrow's hearing will begin the disclosure of facts in connection with the Insull crash, which have been unearthed in Chicago and other cities during the summer and fall by James E. Stewart, chief investigator for the committee, and his assistants. Senator Norbeck was in lengthy conference with Mr. Stewart this afternoon, going over the evidence to be presented. He declined to disclose advance details.

PERU BATTLES COLOMBIA FOR JUNGLE TOWN

Clashes Fan Hostilities Into Open Warfare.

BULLETIN.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 15.—(Wednesday.) — (AP) — The government today ordered Fabio Lozano Jr., Colombian minister at Lima, Peru, to demand his passports for his departure from that country.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 14.—(AP)—The aerial bombardment of a Colombian gunboat in the Putumayo ri .r and the recapture by Colombians of the town of Tarapaca today fanned into open warfare hostilities that had smouldered for months between Peru and Colombia over the border city of Leticia.

Alfredo Vasques Cobo, commander of the Colombian forces in the field, reported to his superiors in the capital here that Peruvian airplanes bombed the warship Cordoba and were driven off by a Colombian air squadron.

Colombia Lands Troops.

It was also learned authoritatively that after the engagement at Tarapaca, a village on the Putumayo just over the Brazilian boundary and about 30 miles north of Leticia, Colombian troops had landed in territory Colombia claims under treaty rights near the town.

Since September, 1932, when Peruvian nationals seized the Leticia area from Colombia, to whom it had been ceded in a treaty in 1922, Peru and Colombia have been assembling war materials.

Gen. Cobo further revealed that two Colombian officers had gone by boat recently to Tarapaca and had asked Peruvian forces to evacuate, but had been informed that the Peruvians forces would resist.

The commander described as "magnificent" the action of Colombian airplanes in driving off Peruvian pilots from the engagement over the warship.

Crowds Cheer News.

"Down with Peru!" they shouted. "Long live Colombia!"

Today's action took place at a point near the boundaries of Brazil, Colombia and Peru. The Colombian commander reported that the first bomb dropped by the Peruvians landed in Brazilian waters.

The Colombian planes heard artillery fire and rushed to the defense from their field near Ipiranga, Gen. Cobo reported, and after a brief but violent ight the Peruvian air squadron was forced to retire.

As soon as street demonstrations started in Bogota the police placed a guard at the Peruvian legation.

Brazil May Be Involved.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Brazilian naval and military commanders at the frontier were ordered today to rush detailed reports of the hostilities between Colombia and Peru near Leticia. Complications involving Brazil were considered likely, as Leticia is less than two miles from Tabatinga, a Brazilian border city.

Military and naval commanders at the frontier for a long time have had instructions to safeguard Brazilian territory. In addition to half a dozen gunboats on the upper river Brazil has a 3,200 ton cruiser, the Floriano, at Manaos ready to sail, as well as the first naval division, which is at Para, and which comprises a cruiser, three destroyers, and a scout ship.

Although the foreign office was noncommittal, it is possible that the Amazon river—the means of access to the disputed territory used by the Colombian flotilla—will be closed if Brazilian territory is violated.

With the Colombian flotilla now in the Putumayo river, which branches off from the Amazon east of Leticia, are 1,400 soldiers. Peru also has a strong force in the area.

CAUSE OF CONFLICT.

A sun baked tropical village of only a few hundred inhabitants and less than 200 buildings deep in the jungles of South America is Leticia, the center of a dispute between Colombia and Peru.

It is situated, however, at the tip of a strip of land which gives Colombia an outlet to the Amazon river system, and thus eastward to the sea, and hence an importance which has led to widespread negotiations in an attempt to bring about a peaceful settlement. Peru in 1922 ceded to Colombia this corridor to a navigable stream.

The dispute began last Sept. 1 when Peruvians seized it, ousted Colombian officials, and took control.

Demands for War Heard.

Colombia protested, but Peru countered that no military forces of that country were concerned, that nationals who were dissatisfied because Colombia had not complied with all the terms of the 1922 treaty were responsible.

Soon demands for war with Peru were voiced in Colombia. The senate voted a $10,000,000 fund for national defense and 10,000 persons staged a patriotic demonstration in Bolivar square in Bogota. Citizens in other cities did likewise and subscriptions to the national defense fund poured in.

On Sept. 21, Peru's legislative body passed a bill providing for a $5,000,000 national defense fund.

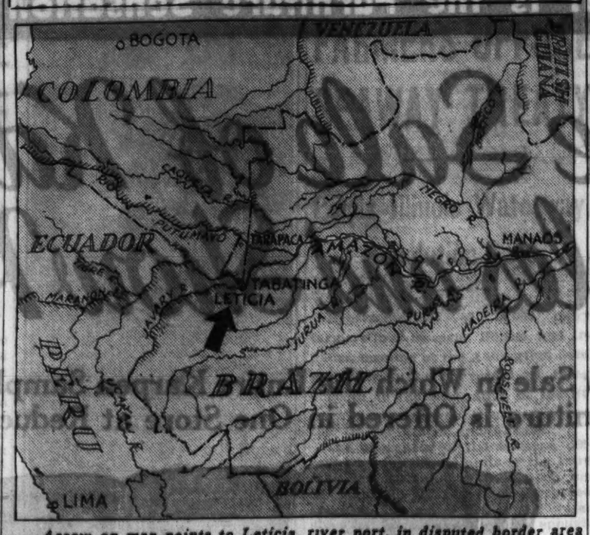
A series of diplomatic notes followed. Colombia on Sept. 28 insisted that Peruvian troops on the border had participated in the occupation of Leticia.

A day later Peru replied, suggesting arbitration, but further exchanges did not result in clarification of the situation. Meanwhile reports told of scattering engagements between the two nations.

The league of nations took a hand early in January after receiving a note from Colombia saying Peru's action comprised "violent occupation for which there was no justification or excuse." The league asked Peru for its views and requested that nation to abstain from action not in conformity with the covenant of the league.

The United States entered the negotiations with a note from Secretary of State Stimson in which he called upon Peru for observation of the terms of the Kellogg-Briand pact. Peru replied that she had not violated any of those terms.

TWO NATIONS FIGHT FOR RIVER PORT



Arrow on map points to Leticia, river port, in disputed border area ceded to Colombia by treaty in 1922. Peruvians seized the town last September and open warfare for its possession broke out yesterday. Peruvian planes bombed a Colombian warship in the Putumayo river and were driven off by a Colombian air squadron. Later in the day Colombian troops recaptured Tarapaca, a Colombian town near Leticia.

BRITAIN TO DISPUTE JAPANESE CLAIM TO ISLANDS IN PACIFIC

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Japan's contention that its threatened resignation from the league of nations would not affect its possession of the mandated Pacific islands north of the equator is considered in London as untenable.

Should the question ever arise Britain would certainly consider the wishes of the dominions. There is no question that Australia and New Zealand, with their mandated islands south of the equator, would feel that if Japan continued to hold its islands, regardless of world opinion and without any supervision by the league, it would be a menace.

As understood in this country, Japan now claims that its present rights to the Pacific islands are based on an agreement with Great Britain, France, and Italy made in 1916, two years before the end of the war. Japan also asserts that practical sovereignty over these islands was given to it by the allied and associated powers in the treaty of Versailles and that the league really has nothing to do with it. The islands, therefore, were then described as an "integral part of the empire of Japan." None of these arguments seems valid to Great Britain.

JAPAN CALLS ITS LEADERS INTO A "CRISIS" PARLEY

Will Make Final Decision on Attitude to World.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 15.—[Wednesday]—Premier Makoto Saito announced today that one of the most important conferences of national leaders in the nation's history would be held soon, probably during the next few days.

The premier will first call upon Prince Kimmochi Saionji, elder statesman, for advice. At the plenary conference will be Field Marshal Prince Kanin, chief of the general staff; Admiral Prince Fushimi, chief of the naval general staff; Field Marshal Prince Nashimoto, Prince Saionji, Fleet Admiral Count Togo, Field Marshal Count Uyehara, Admiral Count Yamamoto, Count Kiyoura, Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister; Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, former premier; and Baron Kuratomi, president of the privy council.

Will Decide on Policy.

At this conference decision will be made as to whether Japan will continue its present policy in Manchuria regardless of what the league of nations or other countries decide, while at the same time endeavoring to do all in the nation's power to cooperate with the league and reach a conciliatory settlement for the purpose of maintaining world peace.

Meanwhile plans for a general Japanese offensive against the Chinese province of Jehol, which Japan claims as part of the new Manchurian state of Manchukuo, are well under way, and close observers predict that the Japanese will begin moving along a wide front in an effort to drive out hundreds of thousands of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's troops some time in March. Reports from unofficial sources all point to this.

What is attracting far more attention is what effect the Jehol offensive is likely to have on the league of nations. While it is considered certain that Japan will not move its troops until after the Japanese delegation withdraws from the league's discussions on Manchuria, the question is whether, if the offensive starts before Japan withdraws completely from the league, the league will apply sanctions under article 16 of the covenant, and there is no telling what the consequences will be then.

Army and Navy Ready.

It is because of this possibility that the land and sea forces of Japan are understood to be primed and in better shape than ever before.

The overwhelming support behind the Japanese armed force was illustrated yesterday when the lower house by a standing vote approved the largest budget in the history of the nation. The demands of the army and navy were responsible for the size of the budget, which is expected to be passed by the upper house today.

The total appropriation is about $480,000,000, of which about $175,000,000 is allotted to the army and navy. The budget as passed leaves a huge deficit over the estimated income from taxation.

Japs Prepare Ultimatums.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 14.—Japanese officials today let it become known that a series of ultimatums will shortly be served upon China by the Japanese government demanding the withdrawal of all Chinese troops from Jehol province. The ultimatums will inform China, it was said, that Japan considers Jehol province an integral part of the Japanese supported state of Manchukuo and that the presence of Chinese troops there is a "menace to peace."

League Pushes Condemnation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 14.—The league of nations' committee of nineteen today approved unanimously a draft report condemning Japan for its actions in Manchuria. The report will be formally submitted to the league assembly next Tuesday together with an announcement that all efforts at conciliation of the Chinese-Japanese dispute have failed. The assembly is expected to open discussion of the report a week from next Friday, Feb. 24.

The report, which was drawn up by a subcommittee of the committee of nineteen, contains the finding that the state of Manchukuo was not set up by a spontaneous movement of the natives, demands that Japan withdraw its forces, and recommends that the sovereignty of China in Manchuria be recognized.

It is expected that with adoption of the report by the assembly Japan will withdraw from the league.

COURT BREAKS BISTOR - PRATT TAXPAYER RULE

Directors of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers aired a lot of the organization's troubles in a petition filed yesterday before Superior Court Judge William J. Lindsay. On this showing Judge Lindsay granted a temporary injunction preventing the massmeeting of members of the association scheduled for yesterday afternoon in the Coliseum.

The petition confirmed reports of bitter internal strife in the directorate of the association. It was filed by seven directors on behalf of themselves and the association against six other directors, chief of whom are John M. Pratt, the organization's $20,000 a year executive secretary, and James E. Bistor, president.

Besides halting the massmeeting Judge Lindsay's order in effect blocks all efforts by the Pratt-Bistor group to rule the taxpayers' organization so long as the temporary injunction remains in effect. It also ties up nearly $200,000 in funds which the association is said to have in the treasury.

Charges Political Scheme.

The petition charged that Pratt, Bistor, and their associates are scheming to convert the association into a radical political party and to use funds collected from taxpayers to finance the party. The association's propaganda in favor of the tax strike, as the movement was first denominated by its own leaders, was based at the outset on suits seeking to invalidate tax levies for alleged failure to assess personal property fully.

The association has yet to win one of those suits, and in recent months repeated adverse decisions by the United States and Illinois Supreme courts left its propaganda locker bare of ammunition.

Pratt and Bistor, it is understood, have admitted in private conversations recently that they hold no further hope themselves of upsetting the tax levies through their personal property suits and that the association will have to adopt new tactics if it is to avoid dissolution. The projected political party, it appears from the petition, was their idea of the new tactics. It was to be called, the petition states, the Constitutional Security federation.

Appear at Coliseum.

It was estimated that between 4,000 and 6,000 persons appeared at the Coliseum during the afternoon in response to the call for a massmeeting of members. The crowd began gathering an hour before the meeting was scheduled. Despite the news of the injunction that was spread among the arrivals, there were some 2,000 persons present at 2 o'clock when the meeting was to have started. At that time Pratt appeared in front of the building.

"There has been an injunction forbidding this meeting," he shouted, raising his hand. "I urge you all, as law abiding citizens, to disperse."

Part of the crowd left, but others took their places. Forty-five minutes later there were still some 1,500 persons about the entrances of the hall. Police guarded the doors, but made little effort to disperse the crowd, relying on the inclement weather to do that without disorder.

Seven Directors Act.

The directors who got the injunction against the meeting are Thomas D. Collins, Earle A. Shilton, Lee J. Lesser, Charles L. Schwerin, George F. Koester, Jacob L. Kesner, and Edward M. Bertha. Those of the Pratt-Bistor faction whom they named in their petition, besides the two leaders, are George W. Reinecke, James D. Stover, treasurer of the organization; William Waller Jr., and Lowell Q. Needler. All of the defendants are directors.

The principal legal ground on which the injunction was sought was that the meeting had been called in violation of the bylaws of the association, and after the board of directors had tabled a motion to call such a meeting. It was also charged that Pratt and Bistor had fixed upon a course of action which would have caused "rioting and breach of the peace" at the meeting.

The charges in the petition were directed largely against Pratt. It was charged that on one occasion he had boasted, "I am the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers," and that another time, when his course of action was criticized as being against the best interests of the members, retorted, "To hell with the members."

Since the rift in the directorate, it is charged, Pratt, Bistor, and Stover have refused to coöperate with the majority of the directors or to carry out the policies outlined by the majority. The board, by a 7 to 6 vote, tabled a motion on Jan. 25 to hold the massmeeting and also voted against any appropriation of association funds for the purpose of notifying the members of any action except the annual meeting provided by the by-laws. At the same time the board ordered Pratt and Bistor suspended from their jobs.

Pratt and his associates are also charged with "mismanagement" of the funds of the association. The petition states that Pratt worked as secretary of the organization from Aug. 14, 1930, to the end of that year at $1,000 a month, and thereafter at $20,000 a year. The petition charges also that, unknown to many of the directors, Pratt had an additional option on 10 per cent of all fees collected from members over $200,000 a year.

Despite the fact that fees received for 1932 were only $145,000, Pratt claimed $19,000 above his salary for that year, the petition charges. After a number of directors had signed a memorandum protesting against the claim, Pratt withdrew it, it is charged.

Attorneys Ferre Watkins and Perry Ten Hoor have billed the association for $155,229 for legal fees in prosecuting tax suits, all of which were decided against the association, the petition states, and have collected all but $7,000 of that amount.

The temporary injunction issued by Judge Lindsay was broad in scope. In addition to forbidding the mass meeting and restraining the defendants from issuing calls for any other meeting or of any notice of adjournment, it also restrains them from making any radio talks on time paid for by association funds, from interfering with the directors or violating their orders, from performing the duties of president or secretary until the board of directors lifts its suspensions of Pratt and Bistor, and from interfering with the majority directors in taking possession of the assets of the association.

These assets, it is charged, amount now to $199,315, and the petition charges that restraint upon the Pratt-Bistor faction is necessary to prevent further dissipation of the funds.

The temporary injunction was granted Attorneys John K. Murphy and David S. Eisendrath without the opposing faction being represented in court. An hour later Watkins and Ten Hoor appeared before Judge Lindsay, and stated that while they were not then prepared to argue on a motion to dismiss the injunction, that they sought permission to open the meeting long enough to adjourn it formally. This was denied.

County Plans Personalty Seizure to Pay Tax Debts

When County Judge Jarecki enters an order, probably late this week, overruling objections to the payment of about $130,000,000 in 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes, the county terasurer's office, it was announced yesterday, will proceed under a seldom invoked statute to force the immediate payment of these taxes.

The statute empowers the treasurer to seize the personal property of a taxpayer to satisfy real estate taxes and order it sold at public auction if the taxes are not paid within a period. Lawyers say the statute may be expected to force the payment of large sums in delinquent taxes into the county treasury within a few days after Judge Jarecki's final order is entered.

McDonough Not in Office.

The announcement as to the county treasurer's intended action did not come from Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. It was given out yesterday by Edward McCabe, his secretary, and Thomas D. Nash, his attorney, after persistent but futile efforts to find McDonough and ascertain his plans to collect taxes.

McDonough, according to his secretary and attorney, has been ill since an attack of influenza two months ago and has not been able to look after the duties of his office. Newspapermen who make a habit of visiting the county treasurer's office daily said that McDonough, since he took office more than two years ago, has not been seen in his office more than a few times monthly.

Efforts to see McDonough personally Monday and yesterday and question him about the operations of his office were unsuccessful. Finally, a meeting was arranged with Secretary McCabe, who, it is said, is virtually the acting county treasurer, and Attorney Nash, McDonough's legal adviser.

Query on Tax Collection.

"What's the county treasurer going to do about collecting taxes now that Judge Jarecki has announced that he will overrule objections of the tax strikers?" they were asked.

"We have been considering that problem for several months," Attorney Nash answered. "There was nothing that we could do while litigation tied up such a vast amount of property. But when Judge Jarecki throws the tax objectors out of court, we will swing into action."

He then pointed to that section of the statute governing tax liens which makes personal property liable for taxes levied upon real property.

"For example," Attorney Nash pointed out, "a large hotel, which has been objecting to real estate taxes on the ground that personal property has not been assessed at its full value finds its objection overruled. Immediately, the hotel will receive a notice from the county treasurer notifying it that if the taxes are not paid within a period of five days, its personal property will be seized.

"Under the statute, all personal property in the hotel may be taken into the custody of the treasuper if the warning to pay taxes is not heded. After another pediod, this personal property will be put up for public sale to satisfy the taxes."

DAIRY FARMERS VOTE DOWN MOVE FOR PRICE STRIKE

Producers of 30 Counties Seek More Members.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The calling of a strike of the 18,000 dairy farmers supplying Chicago and suburbs in protest against present low prices being paid for their milk was voted down yesterday, "for the time being." The action was taken at a meeting of 350 officers of the Pure Milk association's local units in 30 counties of Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. The meeting was held in the Auditorium hotel.

The proposal for a strike was one of three courses of policy outlined for the association, which sells 3,500,000 pounds of milk to Chicago dairies daily. It was suggested by Don N. Geyer, manager of the association, as having been proposed by dairymen in Kane and other counties. Cheers greeted his announcement that when the members believe the time for a strike is ripe the association management would be for it.

Vote to Increase Membership.

At the close of the meeting a vote by districts of the association resulted in the adoption of a policy of taking measures to bring into membership several hundred more farmers in order to insure them a cash market. At the end of thirty days a concentrated effort will be made by the organized farmers to effect an increase in their milk prices, with the prospect that retail prices would be raised from 9 to 10 cents a quart.

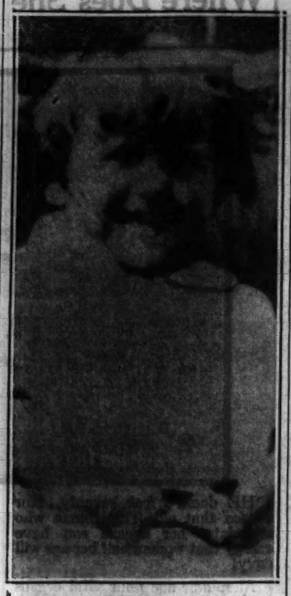
The present fluid milk price paid to farmers is $1.45 per hundred pounds [46½ quarts], from which 8 cents is deducted for organization and advertising expenses. Thus, it is pointed out, farmers get less than 3 cents a quart for milk which is delivered in Chicago for 9 cents a quart. For "surplus milk," that is, the milk in bottles for which there is no Chicago market, the farmers get the current butter fat quotation, in the neighborhood of $1 to $1.10 a hundred pounds. This brings the average price paid to members of the Pure Milk association to about $1.22 a hundred, it is said, which is lower than the lowest cost of production figures arrived at by the University of Illinois for this region.

Vote down Arbitration Proposal.

A proposal made by Geyer that the association ask for arbitration of the milk price between dairies and farmers was also voted down for a thirty day period, pending the membership reorganization and preliminary negotiations with the dairy companies.

Geyer suggested that the district officers in the areas where there are milk producers not now members of the association should undertake to give these farmers an assured market, provided they sign a contract to "go along" with the association in its future marketing policies. This was adopted, and plans made for completing the membership reorganization in the next two weeks.

Girl Vanishes



MARGARET KOCHE.

Police last night were searching for Margaret Koche, 6 years old, 1635 North Lowell avenue, a first grade pupil of the Nobel elementary school, who disappeared yesterday on her way home from school. Her brother, George, 8 years old, who went to the school to meet her, reported the disappearance.

After a search of the neighborhood by the child's father and teachers of the school failed to reveal any trace of the girl the police were notified. The father, George Koche, an employé of the Majestic Radio company, expressed fear that his daughter had been kidnaped.

The child weighs 45 pounds, has blue eyes and brown hair, and was wearing a blue chinchilla coat, blue hat, gray skirt, patent leather shoes, and brown stockings.

REGGIO DE CALABRIA, Italy, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Three earthshocks at intervals of an hour, beginning at 4 a. m. today terrorized eight thousand inhabitants of Cutro, in the province of Catanzaro, north of here. The shocks were accompanied by loud rumbling. There was no damage.

CHIEFS OF 18,000 FARMERS OPPOSE SEAWAY TREATY

Perils Illinois Waterway, Resolution Says.

Representatives of 18,000 dairy farmers in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana, meeting at the Auditorium hotel yesterday, went on record as being opposed to the ratification of the St Lawrence waterway treaty between the United States and Canada.

The opposition of the farmers, officers of the 156 local units of the Pure Milk association, was based upon the objectionable articles of the proposed treaty which would reduce the water diversion from Lake Michigan enough to cripple the Illinois waterway.

Oppose Giving Up Lake Michigan.

They also expressed resentment against another provision of the treaty which would take control of Lake Michigan from the United States and place it in the hands of an international commission.

"The organized dairy farmers supplying the Chicago metropolitan area with a superior quality of milk," says the resolution, "are vitally interested in maintaining the economic and industrial position of this region. Therefore we are opposed to the ratification of the proposed St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada so long as it will take the control of Lake Michigan from the United States and place it in the hands of an international commission.

Fear Crippling of Gulf Route.

"We assume this position with the understanding that article 8 of the proposed treaty would in 1939 cut the Illinois waterway, which has already cost $107,000,000, and is about to be opened to commerce, from a 9 foot depth to one of about 6 feet, and would not allow water enough for lockage.

"In article 5 of the proposed treaty the United States would give away control of Lake Michigan, which is inside the United States and not a boundary water, and would place it under an international commission.

"We believe that the Illinois waterway is just as important to industry and agriculture as an outlet through the St. Lawrence to the sea. But we do not believe it is to the best interests of the nation to give up our right to make navigable all American waterways until the matter of diversion can be accurately determined."

PRISONER TRIES SUICIDE.

Dominick Cinciarulo, 20 years old, who is awaiting trial on a charge of automobile theft, yesterday made his second attempt within a week to commit suicide in a cell in the county jail. He slashed his wrists with a sharpened spoon. Dr. Francis McNamara, jail physician, said he would recover.

DYING WOMAN REVEALS $2,800 HID IN ICE BOX

Policemen James Doherty and Edmund Hogan of the Racine avenue station were called yesterday to the rooming house at 1750 West Grand avenue to take Mrs. Barbara Davison, 59 years old, to the county hospital. She had suffered a heart attack.

After placing her in a police ambulance one of the policemen asked the patient if she had forgotten anything she might want. "O, yes," she replied, "you'll find some money in the ice-box of my apartment."

Policeman Doherty went back and found $2,800 in bills in the box. "Ed," he said to his fellow policeman, "we don't want to take this woman to the overcrowded county hospital when she has all that money." So they took her to St. Mary's hospital instead and turned the money over to the hospital custodian.

Forty-five minutes later Mrs. Davison died and the police were asked to search for relatives.

'ONE SHOT TEDDY' KILLS TIMARAU ON ISLAND HUNT

MANILA, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, who was dubbed "One Shot Teddy" when he bagged a wild carabao nearly a year ago, returned by airplane today from the island of Mindoro with the heads and skins of two timaraus, rated among the most vicious animals of the buffalo type.

Mr. Roosevelt shot one, and Capt. Russell Maughan, who made a dawn to dusk flight across the United States several years ago, shot the other.

Drops from 14th Floor; Has Only Fractured Arm

Cleveland, O., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Samuel Malbin dropped from the fourteenth floor of the downtown Allerton hotel today—and apparently suffered nothing more than a fractured arm.

"Where's my hat?" he asked as horror stricken employés picked him up.

COMMITTEE APPROVES COUNTY BUDGET WITH $1,163,307 REDUCTION

The county finance committee late yesterday approved a tentative 1933 corporate budget totaling $17,515,392. That figure is $1,163,307 less than the 1932 corporate budget of $18,678,699, exclusive of special election expenses. Minor changes resulted in a net reduction of approximately $14,000.

The county board will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to advertise the tentative budget for ten days, according to the law. At the expiration of that period a public hearing will be held for any criticisms or suggestions. The budget must be adopted finally by March 6.

The commissioners voted to make a test of the new law requiring the county to assume the cost of Municipal court jurors' fees. They refused to appropriate $75,000 for this purpose, expecting suit to be filed asking that the commissioners make the appropriation, thus obtaining a court ruling on the law.

BOMB EXPLODED AT THE HOME OF P.O.CONTRACTORS

Damage of $1,000 was done last night by a bomb explosion at the side entrance of the two flat building at 4440 North Campbell avenue occupied by August and Otto Schmidt, brothers, owners of the Schmidt Bros. Construction company, 22 East Huron street. Labor troubles in connection with the building of federal postoffices at Wheaton and Morris, Ill., probably motivated the attack, the Schmidts said.

Members of both families were at home at the time. No one was hurt. All were jarred, however. Windows in neighboring houses were shattered. The damage was principally to the entrance. August Schmidt lives on the first floor and his brother on the second, the latter with his wife, Camille, and daughters, Virginia and Helen.

"For forty years..." says

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman

"I have used this soap. I know it's pure"

Since the days when the golden Statue of the Republic gleamed and towered over the World's Fair grounds, only one laundry soap has been admitted to the house of Mrs Joseph G Coleman. Forty years ago it was selected for its purity. Today it is still preferred—and for the same reason.

"To me there's no laundry soap like good old American Family," declares Mrs. Coleman. "I've used it ever since I was married—over 40 years ago—think of it! When the flakes came out I started using them too."

Mrs. Coleman loves to entertain. Her Sunday luncheons in the big old house in Rush Street, the scene of her married life and social activities, were famous not only for the brilliance of her guests, but for the sparkling beauty of her table . . . gleaming white damask, shining old silver, colorful Sevres china, and glowing crystal . . . all safeguarded with American Family.

"I am especially proud of my china, which I inherited from my grandmother," she continues, "and never hesitate to wash it in American Family Flakes. It's so safe that it never fades or dims the lovely floral pattern.

"I use only these pure, mild flakes for all my silk lingerie and chiffon hosiery too. And Celia, who has been with me for 24 years, says its gentle suds never chap or redden her hands."

Why take chances with cheapened soap flakes—so often filled with free lye that can ruin clothes in a single washing? Use only Kirk's American Family Flakes, because it makes double the suds of ordinary flakes. It was created, you see, especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. Use it to lighten work and worry—all through your household.

ECONOMIST SAYS COIN SOME SILVER TO REVIVE TRADE

Modify Farm Allotment Plan, Peek's Advice.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Add some silver to the nation's gold money basis; take some crops away from the farmers' field. These two familiar examples in federal arithmetic were today offered to the senate finance committee's depression clinic as prosperity stimulants.

Dr. Herman F. Arendtz, Boston economist, urged the remonetization of silver as the necessary priming of the national engine so that it could start the long pull up hill. George N. Peek, Moline, Ill., manufacturer, recommended a modification of the allotment plan of federal compensation to the farmer for reduced production as a tonic to agriculture.

Demands Immediate Action.

Both men warned that something must be done immediately, Mr. Peek declaring that the solvent farmer is our greatest defense against radicalism, and Dr. Arendtz insisting that "to put any more taxes on an impoverished people would be to shame an oriental despot."

Paper money inflation is both inadequate and dangerous, the Boston professor maintained. It would take "not less than 2 billion dollars of it" to do any good; and even then any rise in prices would be temporary and artificial.

Dr. Arendtz also sent a blow at "internationally managed currency," which, he declared, is always "mismanaged currency." He pleaded with the senators to see through the glitter of any scheme for a banker managed currency which, he predicts, will be put forth at the coming international economic conference. The "apparent" gold basis of such a system, he charged, would be merely a gold facade.

Hits Man Managed Systems.

"I have no faith," Dr. Arendtz asserted, "in the ability of any group of men to sit on a pedestal and control the currency of the world. I have lost faith in man managed systems. What we need is less credit and more hard cash."

Silver is the salvation, in this hard money campaign, he maintained. Its remonetization would be the engine priming that would, in six months, enable America to sell to the orient between 600 and 650 million dollars worth of lumber, wheat, cotton and copper.

Mr. Peek, in urging his farm relief plan, disagreed with the allotment plan now before congress on two scores.

First, because it would curtail acreage, whereas he believes the curtailment should come after planting and before harvest, since "the variation in yield of all growing crops from year to year depends 75 per cent upon weather and pests, largely beyond human control, and only 25 per cent upon acreage planted."

Fights General Acreage Cut.

Second, because it calls for a general reduction without regard to the specific areas, where overproduction is greatest.

"For instance," said Mr. Peek, "why should South Carolina decrease her corn production when she imports corn, and the surplus originates in the middle west? Or why should New York reduce her wheat production of five million bushels when she is forced to import millions of bushels each year, and the surplus is made in Kansas, North Dakota, and a limited number of additional states?"

Charging that America's banking structure is not now performing the function for which it was created, and that, therefore, somebody must step in, temporarily, so that "people may live and exchange services," Mr. Peek defended the right and the necessity of the government being that somebody to step in, pending a new national policy.

It will be the first time in five years that President Machado and Ambassador Guggenheim have not participated. No official explanation was given at the palace or the embassy why they will not participate.

MORATORIUM FOR FARMS EXTENDED TO ALL GERMANY

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—(AP)—President von Hindenburg tonight signed an emergency decree extending a moratorium on mortgaged estates and farms to the entire reich to provide a breathing spell until Oct. 31.

During this time all farmers will be saved from forced sales. A decree signed by the president on Jan. 18 gave immunity from forced auctions to farmers in eastern Germany. Expulsion orders and proceedings already started against agriculturists were halted.

Police tonight dispersed 100 communists who were meeting in the reichstag offices of the party on grounds that the gathering sought to foment discontent preliminary to encouraging a general strike.

Gold Standard Must Stay, Edict of Dutch Cabinet

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 14. — (AP) — Replying to the senate's preliminary report on the budget, the government declared today it regarded it as a duty to maintain Holland on the gold standard by all available means. The government looked upon the gold standard as one of the conditions whereby a sound recovery of the economic situation was possible.

BILL IS OFFERED IN HOUSE TO FIX FARM PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Establishment of a federal board with drastic power to fix agricultural prices and control farm acreage and production was proposed today in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Claude V. Parsons [Dem., Ill.].

Mr. Parsons told the house that the rehabilitation of agriculture would prove the first step toward a general economic recovery. He admitted the extraordinary nature of his proposal but declared that only "drastic action" would avert a national disaster.

100 Million Fund.

Not only would his bill place complete control of farm prices and production in the hands of a "federal agriculture emergency board of five members," but it would provide likewise for the abolition of the federal farm board's stabilization activities and transfer of the farm board's duties to the new emergency board; would provide for tariff readjustments designed to protect industry as well as agriculture; and would add 200 million dollars to the capital of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for direct relief advances.

The emergency board, under Mr. Parson's plan, would be given 100 millions from the treasury with which to operate, with the stipulation that $10,000,000 might be used for advertising, in an effort to secure "patriotic coöperation" in carrying out the purposes of the act.

Limits Acreage.

The board would fix minimum prices at which agricultural commodities could be sold by producers. The price fixing operations would be conducted gradually until farm prices had been restored to the 1926 level. The products mentioned in the bill are corn, oats, wheat, rice, peanuts, tobacco, sugar, cotton, wool, cattle, hogs, sheep, fish, poultry, dairy products, and "such other products as the President may decide to include."

"The board," said Mr. Parsons, "may regulate the reduction or increase of production of any agricultural commodity not to exceed 20 per cent during any one year, and may assign quotas of acreage and production, and quotas that may be marketed during specified periods." The federal control would be exercised, he said, by licensing producers and distributors of agricultural products in interstate commerce.

Mr. Parsons indicated his belief that his measure is a logical substitute for the domestic allotment farm relief bill emasculated by the house and sent to a certain death in the senate.

FIRST AIR MAIL FLIER MEDAL AWARDED TO PILOT MAL FREEBURG

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The first aviator to receive the air mail flyer's medal of honor authorized by congress two years ago today is Mal B. Freeburg, pilot for the Northwest Airways, Inc., of St. Paul.

While flying between Minneapolis and Chicago last April 12, his plane lost one of the three motors, and it fell on the landing gear. After much difficulty he maneuvered so that the motor was dislodged to fall to earth.

The landing wheel was damaged to such an extent that it would not revolve, and the tire was cut open. Nevertheless, he made a safe landing with his eight passengers, including two women.

Under the act, an air mail pilot who distinguishes himself is eligible for the medal.

Freeburg was selected by a committee appointed by Postmaster General Brown. He is 28 years old, a native of Blackduck, Minn., and started flying in 1926.

CRIMINAL COURT TO TRY YOUNG RAPE SUSPECT

Sigmond Bukowitz, 17 years old, was granted a jury trial yesterday when he was arraigned before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the criminal court on a charge of rape. Bukowitz, who has escaped eight times from the Dixon State hospital, is alleged to have robbed and attacked Mrs. Helen Holzfein, 29 years old, 1334 North Shore avenue, in the Ridge avenue elevated station in Evanston on Dec. 13. The case was assigned to Judge Rudolph F. Desort.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

HOUSE SLASHES NOISILY, SENATE BOOSTS QUIETLY

4 Million Increase Voted in 20 Minutes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—How economies voted by one house of congress to the blare of wide publicity are customarily wiped out by the other house, quietly and unobtrusively, is illustrated by the action of the senate on the department of agriculture appropriation bill.

Within the space of 20 minutes and with virtually no discussion or explanation of the items of expenditure, the senate passed the bill providing $104,480,706 for the department for the fiscal year 1934.

The senate restored to the bill appropriations aggregating $271,615 which had been rejected by the house and added $4,100,000 for the distribution of government owned cotton to the Red Cross, making the total $4,371,615 greater than the amount voted by the house.

Fair Exhibit Fund Restored.

This total appropriation is exclusive of $10,783,116 of permanent appropriations which automatically are made annually and can be eliminated or reduced only by repeal or amendment of various statutes.

One of the few items in the bill which were scaled down in the house was that for $99,085 for agricultural exhibits at fairs. The house reduced it to $10,000 on representations that fairs are not being widely held during the depression. The $10,000 was to provide care for the exhibits pending return of good times.

When the bill came up in the senate, Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.] on behalf of the appropriations committee moved the restoration of the amount to $99,085. He made no explanation. No senator asked one. All that the Congressional Record records is that "the amendment was agreed to."

Happiness for Farmers.

The committee report on the bill, a two page leaflet, contained no explanation. The printed testimony before the committee, which few senators read, contained a defense of the expenditure by department officials and the observation by Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.]:

"If there is any time when we ought to keep the farmers good natured it is now," Senator Copeland said. "If they can get any happiness out of these fairs and particularly if they can get any benefits out of them, we ought to increase them and not decrease them."

Likewise without question or explanation the senate boosted the allotment for the bureau of plant industry from $4,496,155, to $4,520,623. This was an increase of $24,468, the only explanation of which in the committee report was:

"Forage crops and diseases, elimination of pasture and forage crop experiments in areas abandoned by cause of corn borer infestation." Search of the committee testimony revealed that the department wanted the amount for experiments in the crops to be grown in place of corn destroyed by the corn borer.

Silently and swiftly the allotment to the bureau of agricultural engineering was boosted $53,287 for "development of corn borer control machinery." These corn borer expenditures were rejected by the house upon a showing that notwithstanding appropriations of 20 millions in the last decade the corn borer had not been exterminated. It has advanced steadily westward and southward 30 miles a year and, according to the testimony, has not done material damage. The most claimed by the department is that the borer has been held to a steady advance. There has been no hop, skip, and jump.

Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] remarked in the committee that the danger from the corn borer is not so great "as the danger of exceeding the capacity of the taxpayers to pay." But he did'nt want corn borer expenditures eliminated if cotton boll weevil, Japanese beetle, cattle tick, and hog cholera expenditures were to be left in the bill.

Vote Cotton for Red Cross.

In the senate Mr. Dickinson did not raise his voice in behalf of the taxpayer. Each boost was voted without comment and recorded in the laconic entry, "The amendment was agreed to."

The appropriations committee having put through all of its increases in items voted by the house, up rose Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], moving an amendment to add $4,100,000 to carry out the provisions of the act authorizing the distribution of farm board cotton to the Red Cross "for relief of distress."

"This amendment," Mr. McKellar explains, "would carry out a measure that was passed a few days ago and which has been signed by the President. We are all familiar with it. It follows exactly the authorization bill."

"The amendment was agreed to," says the Record.

MOSCOW ORDERS WORLD RIOTS FOR DUTCH REBELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 14.—The international society to help imprisoned revolutionists, with headquarters at Moscow, today issued a general order to branches throughout the world immediately to arrange protest meetings demanding freedom for the Dutch navy mutineers in the East Indies. The Moscow Pravda characterized their recent flight on the stolen battleship De Zeven Provincien as a heroic fight.

[The mutiny was ended last Friday when a Dutch plane dropped a bomb on the ship, killing 23 and forcing the survivors to surrender.]

The society and the communist internationals have sent special instructions to their organizations in Holland to arrange a sympathy demonstration for the rebels. A collection of funds for their defense will be undertaken by Reds all over the world. The Moscow press comments that this is the opening act in the revolutionary drama in the East Indies.

MICHIGAN GETS OUTSIDE MONEY FOR PLANTS' PAY

Legislature Indorses the Bank Holiday.

lor of Chicago, heads of the principal banking institutions of Detroit, as well as representatives of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Reserve bank.

The troubles of the Union Guardian Trust company were discussed. The bank, it was said, had deposits of about $25,000,000, there having been large withdrawals since it showed $31,000,000 deposits at the end of 1932. Its connections, however, made it likely that if this bank were allowed to fail depositors in at least twenty other institutions, with perhaps $200,000,000 additional, would be directly affected. Under the circumstances the bankers and the government representatives urged the governor to take the action he did.

The Union Guardian Trust is controlled by the Guardian Detroit Union group. Edsel Ford, son of the founder of the Ford Motor company, is one of the heaviest stockholders in that group. At one time during the day, Gov. Comstock said the elder Ford had refused to coöperate with other large depositors of the Union Guardian Trust to allow his funds to remain subordinate to those of small depositors. Ford was reported to have $7,000,000 in the institution.

Revises View of Ford.

Late in the afternoon, however, the governor stated he had been misinformed concerning Ford and that the motor manufacturer had not balked any agreement.

"It was suggested," he said, "that Ford Motor company put up a substantial part of the necessary funds to take care of the trust company losses. Ford Motor company took the position that it already had put out approximately $20,000,000 in the Union Guardian business and could make no further investment in it."

Mr. Ford declined to discuss the matter tonight. It is understood he is willing to attend a conference of all the large depositors.

The Union Guardian already had obtained $16,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance corporation money in a loan and was seeking $23,000,000 more. Its assets, however, according to the governor, could not be realized on.

All over Michigan banks made announcements that they would open as soon as possible. Many declared they were in good condition, issuing special statements. At Lansing the public utilities commission asked utility companies to extend due dates on current bills.

Telegraph and express companies and the postal savings bank stated they would be able to cash money orders and checks as usual. Trading was suspended on the Detroit stock exchange for the period of the bank holiday.

Nevada Governor Quizzed.

Carson City, Nev., Feb. 14.—(AP)—A Nevada legislative committee today questioned Gov. Fred B. Balzar regarding the twelve banks of the Wingfield chain, whose closing Nov. 1 was followed immediately by the Nevada holiday. The twelve banks still are closed.

At San Francisco it was announced today that a reorganization plan for the Wingfield banks involving a statewide branch banking system set up by funds from depositors, the Reconstruction Finance corporation and a group of California concerns.

GARNER FAVORS LAW TO GUARD BANK DEPOSITS

Says That Faith Would Avert Runs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—As a safeguard against situations similar to the banking crisis in Michigan, Speaker John N. Garner today suggested enactment of a bank guarantee bill, such as the one passed by the house at the last session, but never approved by the senate.

While Mr. Garner expressed no opinion on the situation in Detroit, there were other congressional voices quick to blame Michigan's condition on Mr. Garner's insistence on full publicity for Reconstruction Finance corporation laws.

"The house has passed a bill to guarantee bank deposits," said Mr. Garner, in response to a question as to what he thought of the Michigan situation. "I imagine that if people knew their deposits were safe they would not take them out of banks. He had little hope for enactment of such a bank guarantee bill or action at this session on either farm relief, dry law repeal, or legalized beer.

Representative Clarence Cannon [Dem., Mo.] declared on the floor of the house "congress, whether wittingly or unwittingly, has broken a thousand banks and broken them in every state in the union."

"Unintentionally, perhaps," said the Missouri Democrat, "the government, in the last ten or twelve years, has taken every possible step to embarrass the banks of the country, and every step has brought the banks nearer to bankruptcy." Mr. Cannon assailed as absurd the insistence of congress that full publicity be given to the loans of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He asserted that such publication had made the R. F. C. an "engine of destruction of the banks," system operated in direct and harmful competition with the banks of the country. He also assailed the frequency with which the national government sells bonds or other obligations.

DEADLOCK STILL TIES UP BRATTON ECONOMY PLAN

Conferees Recess Without Change in Position.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special]—The battle between congressional advocates of the Bratton 5 per cent economy amendment and the cabinet lobby continued unabated today. The senate and house conferees assigned to the postoffice-treasury bill, to which the Bratton amendment and other economy matters are attached, broke up at noon with the deadlock persisting as it had been since Thursday.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today joined cabinet members, heads of establishments and numerous lobbies in attacking the Bratton amendment. Green termed the amendment "arbitrary and unscientific." His criticism was prompted by the predicted discharge of between 20,000 and 30,000 employés in addition to navy and marine corps men.

No definite estimate of the savings to be effected through the Bratton amendment has been worked out. It has been said, however, that they might run close to 200 million dollars, if applied to all appropriation bills.

On the basis of figures published by the budget bureau today, congress up to date has added $106,400,000 to the estimates of 1934 fiscal costs submitted to congress by President Hoover. In the event the Bratton amendment becomes law congress would cut below the Hoover budget by at least $50,000,000, according to its advocates.

Taxpayer in the Middle.

Even if the Bratton amendment goes through the taxpayers will be given comparatively little relief, according to the administration budget figures. While advocates of the amendment assert it would bring about a reduction of not less than 150 millions, administration officials assert this would be offset almost entirely by additions made by congress to other appropriation bills.

The budget charge is that congress has added 135 millions to the funds for four departments and cut another 29 millions, leaving a net increase over the Hoover budget of 106 millions in round numbers.

Sentenced for Wounding Woman in Bank Holdup

Charles Tisevich, 19 years old, 7010 South Campbell avenue, one of the bandits who robbed the Lake County State bank in North Chicago last September, wounding Mrs. Monetta Steffen, a bookkeeper, pleaded guilty yesterday in Waukegan to wounding Mrs. Steffen. State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county agreed to nol pros the charge of robbery. Judge Ralph J. Dady sentenced Tisevich, who was captured in California in December, to one to fourteen years in prison.

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—A hundred men and women carrying banners demanding relief attacked a detective and a patrolman outside a public school here today as the 1,200 pupils were leaving for the luncheon recess. It took 20 minutes for the crews of three radio cars and six other policemen to disperse the rioters. The rioter beat the detective, tore his clothing and dragged him through the muddy street. Five men were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and assault.

CHARGES U. S. LAW FAVORS NEW YORK IN HOUSING LOANS

Witness Urges Appeal to Roosevelt.

BY AL CHASE.

Charging that congress favored New York, at the expense of other states, when it enacted legislation which permits any commonwealth with a suitable law to obtain Reconstruction Finance corporation funds for housing projects, J. Soule Warterfield, former head of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday suggested that the temporary Illinois Housing commission seek help from President Elect Roosevelt. Mr. Warterfield suggested that a delegation visit Washington and urge the broadening of the powers of the R. F. C.

Sees Handicap to Chicago.

"Congress made a serious mistake," said Mr. Warterfield, "when it passed the emergency relief and construction act with a setup apparently planned solely for New York. Slum conditions in New York are entirely different from those in any other American city and as a result Chicago doesn't fit into the picture as it should."

The state housing body held its first public hearing on its proposed housing act, at the Hotel La Salle yesterday afternoon. Another session is scheduled for Friday, the time and place of which is to be announced later.

Favor Municipal Boards.

At yesterday's session, in addition to Mr. Warterfield, representatives from three groups outlined their views on housing and proposed legislation. Charles A. Snyder, representing the West Central association, and Henry K. Holsman, representing three architectural bodies, both urged municipal housing boards throughout the state rather than one large group controlling all Illinois housing activities.

Clifton R. Bechtel spoke as a representative of the Chicago Real Estate board, declaring that the type of legislation proposed was bad, but admitted that it could be justified as an emergency measure. He declared that he believed the next big demand will be for single family dwellings and two flat buildings.

To be rid of a Cold

ABORT

(with lemon juice)

Often a cold that you thought all gone—comes back! That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from your system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken-up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's Cold Compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the Cold Compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's Cold Compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

SPICY leaves of TURKISH tobacco are strung to dry and cure in the sun.

Well, that's something about cigarettes I never knew before

—the cigarette that's Milder
—the cigarette that Tastes Better

I'd never thought much about what's inside a Chesterfield cigarette. But I have just been reading something that made me think about it.

Just think of this, some of the tobacco in Chesterfield—the Turkish—comes from 4000 miles away! And before it is shipped every single leaf is packed by hand. All because Turkish tobacco is so small and delicate.

Of course I don't know much about making cigarettes, but I do know this—that Chesterfields are milder and have a very pleasing aroma and taste. They satisfy—and that's what counts with me!

LIAR! YELLS LONG AT BROTHER WHO CALLS HIM CROOK

Clash at Senate Hearing on Election Fraud.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. [Kingfish] Long today called his brother, Earl Long, a "liar" when Earl testified before the senate election committee that the Kingfish had been paid $10,000 by Harry H. Abell, whom he described as the payoff man for a large power firm.

Samuel T. Ansell, counsel for the senate committee investigating John H. Overton's election to the senate, had asked Earl Long if any money had ever been passed by Abell in connection with state legislation.

"Yes," said Earl Long. "Huey told me Abell had given his $10,000." He quoted the Kingfish as telling him the money was in 100 brand new $100 bills, "and they looked as if they had all been run off the same press. Huey told me he was afraid of them because they may have been marked."

Huey Starts Shouting.

"It's a damn lie!" Senator Long shouted, leaping to his feet.

Later Senator Long apologized to Chairman Lowell and the senate committee for his language, then turned to Overton, sitting at his side, and uttered the threat that he would put Earl Long in jail if the latter repeated his statements "outside this room."

Abell is connected with the interests owning and operating the New Orleans Pubic Service properties, one of which, he gas company, contracted with th city of New Orleans for natural gs service early in Gov. Long's administration.

Ansell ten asked Earl Long if he had ever heard anything about Harvey Couc, public utilities official, having bee "shaken down" by Senator Long.

"Yes," Earl replied. "Huey called Mr. Couc in and told him he would have to help him so the people would not destro him."

"That s also a lie," shouted Senator Long.

Charges Graft in Capitol.

Earl Long also testified that the capitol buildig reeked with graft; that the electins of O. K. Allen as governor and Overton as senator were "the rottenest in he history of Louisiana."

In additio he said Huey Long selected Allen as the candidate for governor becaus he knew he could control Allen.

Earl Long said he broke with Huey when the latter refused to stay honest. He tol of how the returns from St. Bernad parish were crooked. Huey Long received 4,000 votes, where the registered vote was about 2,000.

CITY STATE BANK OFFICIALS' TRIAL SET FOR MARCH 20

The trial of eight officials of the closed City State bank on charges of accepting deposits while the bank was insolvent was assigned yesterday to Judge Rudolph F. Desort and set for March 20. The case, which has been on the criminal court docket for more than 18 months, has been continued 37 times.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court assigned the case to Judge Desrt after overruling a motion of Seimour Stedman, one of the defendants, that a trial judge be chosen at a conference between state and defens. Judge Desort set Feb. 20 for hearing of arguments on the defense motion to quash the indictment and ruled that the trial must start a month later.

Emil W. Friberg, former cashier and paymaster for the Western Felt Works, 415 Ogden avenue, was charged with embezzlement of $15,000 of the company funds in a warrant issued yesterday by Judge Donald S McKinlay. Henry Fauron Jr., an official of the company, who obtained the warrant, told the court that a company audit completed on Feb. 3 revealed the shortage. He said that Friberg disappeared several days before the audit was completed. Friberg, who had been employed by the company for 15 years, lived in Berwyn.

GUNMEN SPRAY ACID IN CLEANING SHOP; PRICE WAR BLAMED

Three armed men invaded a shop of the Perfect Cleaners and Dyers at 834 East 63d street yesterday and destroyed clothing valued at $150 by spraying acid. Miss Ethel Brown, the clerk, was alone in the shop when one of the men entered and, threatening her with a revolver, forced her behind a rear partition. Two other men entered and sprayed the clothing with acid.

Joseph Wally, owner of the chain of cleaning shops, told the Woodlawn police that recently several of his other shops had been sprayed with acid. He asserted he has had no organization or union trouble, but hinted that the attacks might be motivated by the price war within the industry. He has received no threats, he said.

SUPREME COURT TOLD DISTRICT HEEDS ITS ORDER

Fleming Argues Before Referee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Joseph B. Fleming, special attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago, today assailed the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, and Minnesota for leveling charges of bad faith against Chicago in the current Supreme court receivership proceedings without backing up their allegations with evidence.

Fleming appeared today before Edward F. McClennen, special master for the Supreme court, in this latest phase of the Chicago water diversion litigation. Master McClellen was assigned by the court to investigate any necessity for the appointment of a Supreme court receiver to force Chicago to complete its sewage treatment program in time to reduce its water diversion from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic second feet by Dec. 31, 1938.

Neglect Asserted.

The four lake states last fall charged that Chicago was not taking steps to carry out the Supreme court decree of 1929, reducing the water diversion. The district, they said, through neglect, incompetence, or bad faith, had failed adequately to provide for financing the court's decree. They charged that the district was attempting to obstruct carrying out the decree. A federal agent to compel such compliance was asked.

The Supreme court appointed Attorney McClennen as master and asked him to report the financial measures necessary to carry out the decree. Among other things, the master was asked as to the causes for the delay.

Victim of Tax Delay.

Asserting that the district had complied in good faith with the provisions of the decree and was doing its best to complete its sewage construction program, Mr. Fleming said:

"The record in this proceeding is destitute of any evidence tending to support the charge of bad faith. When the tax situation is cleared up, it will be possible for the district to obtain taxes, sell bonds, and raise funds with which to prosecute sewage construction. We have done and are doing our best. The numerous charges of incompetence, neglect, and refusal to carry out the decree are without justification and are refuted throughout the entire record."

Gen. Pershing Starts to El Paso; "Feels Great"

Midland, Tex., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing left Midland today for El Paso to visit army officers before continuing to Arizona for a delayed vacation. "I feel great but not quite fit for a prize ring," he said. The general had been confined to a hotel here for nearly a week with bronchitis and laryngitis.

BRITAIN'S ENVOY OFF FOR U. S. WITH SECRET ORDERS

Carries Instructions on War Debt Parley.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—(AP)—In Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay's safekeeping on the high seas tonight was the outline of the British policy for the Anglo-American war debts talk at Washington.

The liner Majestic sailed from Southampton today with the ambassador maintaining what he called the "gold standard of silence." With him was T. K. Bewley, an assistant secretary at the British treasury, who will serve as financial adviser to the ambassador.

"I'm going back with full instructions regarding the British attitude toward the war debts," Sir Ronald said. "There is little more that I can tell you, for I have gone on a gold standard of silence."

Debt Mission Named.

Sir Ronald hinted that the cabinet, with which he held several discussions during his brief stay in London, had decided on the personnel of the British debt mission. He could not, he said, disclose the names of the men selected.

Questioners attempted to get him to reveal more, but he parried their queries, disclosing only that no meeting has been arranged between him and President Elect Roosevelt after he arrives in the United States.

The next development in the war debts negotiations are expected to take place in Washington after the ambassador sees Mr. Roosevelt. Then there will be swift action, with a formal invitation for the British mission, the tentative plans for which Sir Ronald will communicate to the American executive.

MacDonald May Come.

The Times editorially advised Prime Minister MacDonald to go to Washington as soon as possible. This advice aroused no comment in Whitehall except a new intimation that the prime minister was holding himself in readiness to head the debts mission if he considered it desirable.

Absorbed in the pending negotiations with Mr. Roosevelt, London governmental quarters afforded no comment on President Hoover's speech in New York last night. With no disrespect intended, Mr. Hoover is Downing street's "forgotten man."

In the same editorial in which MacDonald was advised to go to Washington, the Times remarked that American opinion always had clung firmly to the hope that a profitable bargain might be driven concerning war debts. Listing various American suggestions for such bargaining, the newspaper said that "Mr. Hoover included many of them in the singular speech in which he virtually laid down his office, but he found room also for an appeal to his countrymen to solve the problem of economic recovery by coöperation among nations."

47 Automatic Pistols Are Stolen from Armory

BAIN RECEIVER FILES $1,452,000 SUIT ON BONDS

Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver of the 12 Bain banks, yesterday filed suit against the Eagle Indemnity company of New York to recover $1,452,000 for the depositors of the closed institutions. The suit was filed in the Superior court against the two $100,000 bonds which the company had written for each of the eleven of the twelve banks.

The bill, filed by the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, counsel for receiver, states that the receiver is entitled to sue on liabilities up to the full amount of each bond. The claims against the bonding company, plus interest since the closing of the banks on June 9, 1931, follow:

Auburn Park Trust and Savings	$ 19,000
Brainerd State	105,000
Bryn Mawr State	150,000
Chatham State	100,000
Chicago Lawn State	100,000
Elston State	65,000
Ridge State	70,000
Stony Island State	220,000
West Englewood Trust and Savings	200,000
West Highland State	160,000
West Lawn Trust and Savings	90,000

For the 12th bank Receiver Gilruth already has brought suit for $100,000 against the two bonds written for this institution. This suit has been transferred to the federal court on the plea that the indemnity company is a foreign corporation.

Wounded War Veteran Ends His Life with Gas

Sofus Jensen, 44 years old, ended his life yesterday by inhaling gas in his room at 15 North Sangamon street. His roommate, Henry Nelson, who found the body, told police that Jensen had tried for some years to recover his health, impaired by wounds received overseas. His discharge papers showed that Jensen served in the St. Mihiel and Argonne campaigns.

THE MORATORIUM IN MICHIGAN.

The declaration of a banking moratorium in Michigan was a bold stroke by clear sighted men. Weak men would have done nothing and let human nature take its course through panic back to sanity. Many banks without a doubt would have survived, but many others would have been sacrificed needlessly. Now, with more than a week of respite in which to examine the situation of the individual banks and act upon it, there is reason to hope that thousands of depositors who might otherwise have had their funds tied up for months and years in slow liquidations will suffer only the minor inconvenience of a few days without banking services.

Citizens of the neighboring states have full confidence in the ability of the men of Michigan to surmount their difficulties. The courage which has been shown throughout the depression by the automotive industry will pull Michigan through this financial crisis. To the extent that the Chicago banks and the Chicago Federal Reserve bank can coöperate in restoring confidence in Michigan institutions, that coöperation will be forthcoming.

MR. GREEN ON THE SHORT WEEK.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, repeats that the thirty hour week is the "recovery standard," the requisite to the reëmployment of six and a half of the twelve million wageless men and the salvation of the economic structure by a return to business at normal. He does not explain how he proposes to fit the shorter work week into the costs of industries which cannot make profits now. If he does explain this the explanation is dropped out of the published reports.

What is destroyed is the purchasing power of the American people. They have retained their wants. The country can supply the things they want. The materials and the labor are available. The trouble is that the power to buy has been taken away. Twelve million are without wages. Say twice that number are hard pressed to provide for themselves and for the destitute the bare necessities of life. The federal government is descending anew upon this reduced purchasing power with new exactions effective March 15. Every controlling element in American life today is destroying the ability of the people to buy the things they want, the things which in producing the country finds its well being.

Purchasing power is provided by wages and incomes. Wages and incomes are derived from profit. Between low prices and high costs of production profit has disappeared out of the production of goods. With the disappearance of profits wages and incomes, employment and dividends disappear. Nothing will pull the American people out of the hole except the reappearance of profit in the sale of goods.

TAX STRIKERS.

A reader, approving THE TRIBUNE'S efforts on behalf of public economy, is indignant over the editorial on the tax strike as a racket, inferring that we have changed our attitude and now side with the tax eaters. The inference lacks logic. The tax strike could claim no justification except as an effort to force attention to the injustice of real estate taxation and set reform in motion. That has been accomplished. Nonpayment of taxes by those who can pay now simply imposes on citizens who have paid, and upon the whole community, the consequences of nonpayment. About sixty per cent of real property owners are carrying the load for forty per cent. The load is too heavy. It must be lightened. But it is not justice to lighten the load of the forty per cent at the expense of the sixty per cent. This is piling one injustice upon another. The tax strikers are punishing the taxpayers. They are punishing men and women who are no more responsible for the waste and graft of politics than are the tax strikers and who have an unanswerable claim upon tax strikers and taxpayers alike. They are trying to redress injustice to themselves by injustice to others, and they are breaking the law.

The tax burden is too heavy, too heavy for all taxpayers. The tax system must be reformed and will be. But the tax striker must be required to obey the law as the taxpayer has done. He has had his day in court. There is no denial that he has suffered injustice, that he is bearing a burden he ought not to have to bear. But so are we all. Whatever the inequities of present taxation, the essential functions of government must be sustained. They must not be paralyzed while exact justice is sought for as between one man and another. We are dealing with a condition, an acute and critical condition, not a theory. The tax striker must bear a share of the cost of maintaining the institutions of government, not shirk it all upon others who are sufferers like himself.

STIMSON IS WORTH A THOUSAND SAMURAI.

Count Uchida, the Japanese foreign minister, has cabled Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's chief delegate at Geneva, instructing him to take his hat and depart the moment the league undertakes to publish recommendations based upon the conclusions of its Manchurian investigation committee.

Thus the activities of our own Henricus Asiaticus, Mr. Stimson of the state department, approach the probability of great good for the Japanese empire. Mr. Stimson, who has come more nearly to a realization of the aspirations of many American leaguists, who has more nearly put the United States in the league than any other leaguist found possible, sends Japan out, or is apparently in a fair way to do so. His Manchurian diplomacy has done his own country the injury of involving it in Geneva's processes and decisions and it has enabled Japan to withdraw itself from the complications its adherence to the league made for it. A handsome statue of Henricus Asiaticus in Tokio would have much to inspire a donor. Some day the Japanese may recognize their friend. Some day the United States may more clearly perceive a mischief maker. Like many another meddlesome Mattie, Wrong Horse Harry had done good where he least expected or intended to do it.

Mr. Stimson is undoubtedly the most reluctant Hoover cabinet member to close his desk and introduce a successor to his chair. It's very likely that Mr. Mills will take one good deep breath of relief and wish his successor well, knowing that it will be a miracle if anything but disaster befalls the new man. If Mr. Hyde does not want to get shot of the department of agriculture, he's simply the world's greatest glutton for punishment. There may be one or two of Mr. Hoover's official family who will have a twinge when they shed their official duties, but the only tragedy will be found in the case of Mr. Stimson. There is a boy so satisfied with himself that he must wish that the department of state were an office hereditary in the Stimson family. Occasionally there has been a thought that it would be a good thing if the Adams family had a hereditary diplomatic post. But never was a change of tenure more desirable than when it affects Mr. Stimson. If precautions be not taken, he will be found behind the chair of whatever man succeeds him in his department. He is trying now in the last days of the Hoover administration to chain his successor to policies to which he has become addicted. Most of these policies have been proved to be nuisances. Mr. Kellogg was bitten in his softest susceptibilities by the Wilsonian bug. From him these ideas swarmed on Mr. Stimson, who became inflamed all over. He now seeks to infect the department permanently. American diplomacy has not been afflicted with a worse nuisance or a worse danger in fifty years.

It may be too much to hope that Mr. Roosevelt's appointee will be a tougher egg, but the country would be well off if the rest of the world should discover after March 4 that it was dealing with a Grover Cleveland Democrat.

END OF THE MASSIE CASE.

The decision of the local prosecutor at Honolulu to quash the charges in the Massie case may be practical in view of the apparent unlikelihood of conviction, but it is far from disposing of the just criticism of the conduct of the authorities in that affair. On the contrary, it strongly supports it. Whatever weight is properly to be given to the report of the private detective agency finally employed by the prosecution to investigate, it is a sorry commentary upon the efficiency of the Hawaiian police and the zeal of the public authorities that a private agency had to be employed and that only after so long and demoralizing a delay what are now alleged to be decisive facts are permitted to transpire.

In fact, the whole affair will pass into history not only as a mystery unsolved but as one of the outstanding examples of official inefficiency, perversity, or complicity in the suppression of justice. It remains a scandal, discreditable to Honolulu and humiliating to Americans everywhere.

Editorial of the Day

PRAISE FOR COURTS AND POLICE.

[The Detroit News.]

It should be of no small public interest that the February number of the Journal of the American Judicature Society contains no fewer than three articles in praise of Detroit's police department and Recorder's court methods and those of the Wayne Circuit court. Let it be admitted that the Journal is published from the law school building of the University of Michigan; the fact remains that it is not a local organ and that it watches judicial procedure throughout the country. The president of the society is Newton D. Baker; the directors represent every state in the Union. Their interests, and those of the publication, are by no means local.

First comes an editorial praising Commissioner Watkins for banning third degree methods in the police examination of arrested persons—"which order," says the editorial, "can be adopted in any city on a day's notice. In Detroit the respondent who makes a confession must be taken forthwith to a hospital for medical examination. This sensible expedient goes far to relieve a scandalous situation."

Next there is a long article on "Pre-Trial Procedure in Wayne Circuit," which describes the methods and says: "It has helped more to expedite the trial of cases in which trial is needed than any other expedient that the writer knows of." Says the writer: "Compared with Los Angeles' 50 Superior court judges and Chicago's quota of about 50 judges of superior trial jurisdiction confined to the civil calendars, the allotment of 18 to Wayne county seems most economical. It is a fact, also, that the use of visiting judges affords far more economical service than by an addition of regular judges."

Finally there is a third article: "Detroit Court Solves Bail Problem—New System Yields Miraculous Results—Recorder's Court, the Only Unified Criminal Court in the Country, Also Solves Jury Problem." This article contains also the facts about the police department on which the editorial is based.

The police and the courts will surely be glad to see that their efforts are encountering praise from lawyers, who are certainly the best judges of their effectiveness. Perhaps in a time when cutting the costs of government is uppermost in the minds of those who are studying governmental functions we have lost sight of the large savings that our courts have made, not as visible in budget cutting as in speeding justice, reducing the expense of litigation, and shortening the period of worry for the accused in criminal cases, and of both plaintiffs and defendants in civil actions.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE INAUGURAL BALL COMMITTEE at Washington has sent word to the panting Democrats that formal dress for the occasion means the long tailed coat, stiff bosom shirt, pearl buttons, piccadilly collar, white tie and waistcoat, stripes down trouser legs, black silk socks and pumps. Shades of Jeffersonian simplicity! And where is the attenuated Democracy that has been separated from the public feed trough for thirteen long and hungry years going to get long tailed coats and white ties and waistcoats and piccadilly collars and pearls and pumps? We didn't include a shirt, for most of 'em have shirts. But piccadilly collars and waistcoats and pumps? They don't even know what piccadilly collars and pumps and waistcoats are? How is a desperate job hunting Democrat going to find out that a waistcoat means a vest? And pearl studs! Ask 'em to wear the Kohinoor strung around their necks. Might just as well.

"MRS. ROOSEVELT to Drive Dogs to Washington."—Headline. Well, well, how interesting! But suppose some lowdown Republican stands alongside the road and waves a bone and yells, "Yah, Rover, Rover; yah, Rover; yah, Rover!" Oh, how dreadful! Why, my dear, you know how a dog acts when he sees a bone.

"CALIFORNIAN TAKES the Odor Out of Garlic."—Headline. He might just as well take Hamlet out of "Hamlet." That's why the garlic eaters like garlic, for its delicious odor. Not that it should be a great, strong, battling odor. But a sort of gentle suggestion like the soft breezes of twilight across a clover field. The French cook who told how he got the soft, pungent aroma of garlic and not its more robust and assertive qualities into his salad dressing said, "Put no garlieck into the dressing, no. Ah, nevair! Tres mall But after ze salad, ze leetoooe, ze oil, ze vinegaire, ze salt and peppair are all meexed, zen I chew up a lil' bean of ze garlieck and I breathe ver' soft and gentle on ze salad. TO AN OLD MELODEON.

An attic corner grudges crowded space,
Yet, through the dust and cobwebs of the years
I see you newly treasured . . . Love appears . . .
Subdued to proper mode. The candle glow
With you, enhanced her comeliness I know
Adored Cecilia, saintly, Heaven armed
With melody—her hearers never charmed
As chords that timed the stately minuet,
Virginia reel or lancers' giddy fun;
True to the fiddle strains white fingers let Me glimpse a paradise, melodeon!

You are my yesterday . . . and myrrh . . . and musk . . .
This corner where you near oblivion
Has music trembling in the light lanced dusk—
The wraith of love—and songs and dancing done

EVERY DAY our suffering grows deeper. We exulted that Mr. Roosevelt would not be like the others and go fishing. And up to date he has done nothing else. Next time we're going to vote for a bridge player. Bridge players never go fishing. Because if a fish gets away he can't throw a chair at her for trumping his ace.

OR WE MIGHT vote for a chess player. They absolutely never think of going fishing. If you asked a chess player to go fishing he would look at you in mild surprise and say, "But why is that necessary? Cannot fish be bought in the market?" What a grand President a chess player would make, to be sure!

A YARDSTICK FOR LIQUOR.

THOSE who are disposed to be overweight should remember that alcoholic beverages are fattening. In the first place alcohol is a food running rather high in calories. Its toxic qualities are so great that it is not available as a source of food supply, practically speaking, yet those who must avoid overeating must not forget the calories supplied by alcohol. Fifteen minims of pure alcohol, about one-quarter of a teaspoonful, is responsible for seven calories.

Liqueurs run higher in alcohol content than do other alcoholic beverages and, in addition, they are rich in sugar. For both reasons they run very high in calories and the obese, theoretically, should avoid them above all other drinks. However, they contain so much aromatic oils and are, therefore, so highly toxic, that no one drinks enough of them to cause obesity. A teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of crème de menthe is a pretty good drink. In spite of the high content of alcohol and sugar, there are not many calories in a teaspoonful of crème de menthe.

The calories found in various beverages, as measured in lumps of sugar, is given by Christie as follows:

One glass of hock, Moselle, or claret is equal to 2 lumps of sugar; 2 lumps of sugar supplies 40 calories.
Burgundy, 3 lumps.
Sherry, 3 lumps.
Champagne, 5 lumps.
Benedictine, 6 lumps.
A small whisky and soda, 4 lumps.
A pint of light ale, 12 lumps.
An ounce of gin, 3 lumps.
Sauterne, 1 ounce, 1 lump.
One ounce of port, 2 lumps minus.
Chartreuse and crème de menthe, 5½ lumps.
Brandy, 3 lumps.
Whisky, same as brandy.
German beer, three-fifths of a lump.

In the case of beer, a large part of the food values is obtained from the carbohydrates left unconverted into alcohol.

A person drinking freely of beer not only gets a pretty considerable amount of alcohol, but he also imbibes considerable carbohydrates, aromatics, and flavoring extracts. In the case of sweet wines and liqueurs there is a considerable quantity of carbohydrates as sugar, and of aromatics and flavoring extracts. Even the drier wines contain fair amounts of sugars.

The present opinion is that the aromatics are the most toxic substances in beverages. The least toxic whisky is that which has least aroma. The old whiskies with fine aromas are the most toxic. However, this is largely theory. Practically speaking, the most toxic beverages are those that run highest in alcohol. The reason for the apparent contradiction is that the percentage of aromatic oils is low, even in beverages with the most bouquet, whereas the alcohol content may run to 50 per cent of the whole.

COMPRESSED YEAST.

M. P. writes: When in the city I ate compressed yeast for my health. Now I live in the country and I wish to continue eating yeast. I cannot get the kind I have been using. Can I use what is available?

REPLY.

You can. Why not grow your own supply? When it comes to yeast, why not live at home?

INJURY OR INFECTION.

G. M. C. writes: What is the cause and effect of Dupuytren's contraction?

REPLY.

The cause is some injury or infection which causes inflammation in the deep connective tissue layers of the hand. The effect is to deform the hand and especially to stiffen, draw, and bend the fingers.

SOLDIER'S BONUS.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mr. A served in the army in 1918 in Montreal, Canada. Bonus was sent to him in 1929, but instead of receiving it an attorney received the amount and never turned it over to him, and three weeks later A died. 1. Where can we write to find out when and how much money was paid? 2. If parents are still living are they entitled to this money, or the aunt who has notes due on money loaned a I paid for funeral expenses? 3. Also, is there any insurance besides the bonus? J. M.

1. Try writing to the commissioner of pensions at Montreal.
2. Creditors of the estate should be paid ahead of heirs.

COLLECTING JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I hold a judgment note against a man who has real estate, he having a first mortgage on his house. 1. Could I have the note recorded against his home? 2. To whom would I have to apply to have the note recorded? 3. Can you advise the approximate cost of such recording? C. H. J.

1. This would not be the proper procedure if you wish to place a lien against the real estate you should have an attorney enter judgment on the note.
2. See 1.
3. We are not in a position to predict how much money the attorney will ask in advance. It seems probable that the note authorizes collecting the attorney's fee from the defendant.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 15, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With hundreds of ships tied up in American ports by the submarine menace, and with the administration still awaiting an "overt act" by Germany, President Wilson faces the most serious dilemma since the severance of diplomatic relations with Berlin. American ship owners are clamoring more vociferously than ever for protection of their vessels and cargoes on the high seas, and contending that it is the duty of the government to furnish such protection either in the shape of defensive guns for merchantmen or naval convoys. Nearly every harbor from Portland to Galveston is choked with warbound shipping, the docks are piled mountain high with merchandise awaiting ships and railroad yards are packed with trainloads of export freight which cannot be transferred until dock and ship space are provided. The congestion has become so great that a serious car shortage is threatened and embargoes by the railroads against piling up more export merchandise in Atlantic ports are hourly expected by the administration. Although this situation indicates the extent to which Germany has succeeded in interrupting the supply of American food and war munitions to the allies, the President takes the position that there is little the United States can do to relieve the congestion of exports and the interruption of commerce. The United States, it is pointed out, could furnish protection to American ships only and American ships are almost infinitesimal in number compared with other neutral and belligerent ships being held in American ports pending developments.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The sinking of the American schooner Lyman M. Law, official reports regarding which were received last night, has raised the question of whether or not the Vienna government intends to carry out the ruthless submarine warfare declared by its ally, Germany. A high administration official said today that relations with Austria are "very delicate" and the "situation difficult." Efforts are being made to induce Austria to refrain from coöperating with Germany in the new campaign, but if Vienna does not yield the President will sever relations. Official dispatches from Rome indicate the submarine commander followed international law to the letter, provided the Lyman M. Law carried contraband. This provision is disputed in messages from New York, where agents for the line said the vessel carried only material for lemon crates. The American ship was sunk by an Austrian submarine off the coast of Sardinia on Feb. 12.

WAR SUMMARY.—The British war office reports important gains in raiding operations along the front in France near Grandecourt and Arras. Berlin reports that several Russian positions in the Meste Canesti sector of Rumania were stormed by Teuton troops under command of Archduke Joseph. More than 1,200 Russians were taken prisoner. No important engagements are reported from the other battle fronts.

LONDON.—Reuter's Copenhagen correspondent reports that Norway, Sweden and Denmark have handed to the German ministers identical notes protesting against the naval measures taken by Germany and Austria-Hungary and making all reservations regarding the loss of life and the material damage resulting. The note begins by recalling the fact that during the war these governments have several times found themselves obliged to formulate formal protests against serious infringements of the rights of neutrals involved by measures of various belligerent powers. It then emphasizes the fact that the governments, whose actions on these various occasions were, as always, inspired by the spirit of the most perfect impartiality, confined themselves to defending the imprescriptible rights of neutrals. The note affirms that no belligerent has the right to prohibit peaceful navigation through zones the limits of which are distant from enemy coasts which could be blockaded only in legitimate manner.

CHICAGO.—Conspiracy charges, which are expected to involve at least five persons and possibly more, it is believed, will result from the return to Chicago of Marjorie Delbridge, who was arrested in Detroit. The 14 year old white child, who was taken from the care of her negro "mammy," Camilla Jackson, 3226 Calumet avenue, whose ward she had been since babyhood, is in the Detention home in Detroit.

TIME CLOCKS IN WASHINGTON.

Goshen, Ind., Feb. 11.—If it were possible to install a time clock in both branches of congress at Washington and require our servants in both the senate and house to register the time they actually put in on the job, with wages to be based on the time registered, there might be no necessity of asking them to reduce their salaries. A large majority of the people who are taxed to support these servants are obliged to punch the clock and are paid for the time shown on the card only.

Mr. Henning's articles in THE TRIBUNE are of great interest to many of the readers and I hope he will continue to keep the public informed as to what is going on in Washington. I mean, the lowdown. A TAXPAYER.

PARKING IN A SNOWSTORM.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—The way in which the Chicago Surface Lines kept their tracks open and removed the snow, practically from curb to curb, all over the city during the recent storm deserves the highest commendation. It was one of the best jobs of its kind that I have ever seen, and it was a particularly valuable service at this time when the city of Chicago is short of funds that could be used in snow removal.

After keeping their tracks clear throughout the day with sweepers the company put on a large force of men, and at considerable expense went over the entire system at night and pushed the snow back, leaving a traffic lane on each side of the tracks for the use of trucks and automobiles. Unfortunately, in spite of all that the police and firemen could do to prevent it, a number of automobiles were left parked along street car line streets, and this interfered with the effective cleaning of the streets. Wherever there was a parked car it was impossible to shove the snow back to the curb.

GLADLY.

LONDON, England, Jan. 30.—At the next proposed debt conference between representatives of your country and mine I do sincerely hope that the United States representatives will draw attention to the fact that Great Britain, though suggesting a cancellation or modification of our payment of war debt to the United States, proposes to continue to repay capital and interest in full on money borrowed from her own people for the same purpose.

This seems rather odd. Additionally, it is also interesting to note that the payments thus made to ourselves are not under present circumstances subject to any restrictions as to their being used to buy foreign currency, i. e., taken abroad.

In other words, should not your representatives tell Great Britain to "come clean"? CARLTON.

THE FARMER AND HIS DEBTS.

Mansfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—I wish to take exception to your editorial in Tuesday's TRIBUNE about "The Farmer and His Debts" and also to Mr. Dean Bixler's idea in the Voice of the People. You claim a farmer should be able to make a good living and Mr. Bixler claims the trouble is with the farmer. Now, let's see. The average farmer in the corn belt is a renter—over 50 percent of them. The man on his own farm, free of debts, isn't any better off financially now than a renter at present prices, as the taxes and upkeep eat up his extra income. For this year Mr. Average Farmer on 160 acres of land raised about 3,600 bushels of oats. Out of his half he paid the threshing, extra labor, twine bill, seed oats, feed bill, etc. He will sell around 1,500 bushels for about $70. His expenses will be around $170.

Now, the same farmer raised on the same farm around 3,600 bushels of corn. Out of his half he must pay the shelling, feed, extra labor, etc. He will sell around 1,500 bushels for about $180. Expenses will be around $80. Now, he will have around $1,200 invested in horses and equipment. The interest on that and depreciation will be over $100 a year. He will have about 15 acres in pasture and lots which will be charged to him at from $4 to $6 an acre. Nothing yet has been figured for the farmer's living expenses and doctor bills. That old gag about diversification won't work now, as the prices of all farm products are relatively low, so the above figures apply as a good example for Mr. Average Farmer. Now, can the two of you figure out how much the farmer is making? You city people forget to figure that it costs money to raise a crop.

You claim the farmer can control his tax bill. Some, I will admit. But out here in the country we have now so many nonproperty owners who pay very little tax that they vote these large taxes on for the property owner to pay. Then for our high schools a few wise guys sit back in some college and set a standard for an accredited school that is financially difficult to adhere to.

Now, why does the farmer mortgage his farm, you ask. Mr. Average Farmer, in the first place, saved up some money in our more prosperous earlie years and was desirous of having a home, a farm, and a business. Consequently he purchased a farm, paid down what cash he had, and then mortgaged it for the unpaid balance.

From the above figures it is easily seen why the farmer isn't buying the city man's manufactured product. If everybody hadn't been prosperity blind previously to 1929, and had the farmer received a better price for his produce instead of skinning him and taning and giving it to Europe, we wouldbe in much better shape now.

Sorry I have wasted so much of your time, but it must be remembered there are two sides to every question.

BACK TO THE BICYCLE.

Marion, Ind., Feb. 10.—I have wondered whether it would not be worth while to agitate for the return of the bicycle to popularity. In the days of prosperity the bicycle droped beneath the notice of the average American. But there are thousands now who can no longer afford autos. With our thousands of miles of well paved streets and country roads the bicycle should be much more useful than it was in the days of its own former popularity about thirty years ago. C. J. BUTLER.

MONEY INFLATION PERILS CABINET IN NEW ZEALAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Feb. 14.—Conflict between farm and city over the government's recently inaugurated inflationary policy threatens, according to political observers, to pave the way for a radical Labor party régime in New Zealand.

Elevation of the exchange rate from about 110 to 125 New Zealand pounds to 100 British pounds sterling brought the rural-urban friction to the boiling point. That was on Jan. 19. Agreement on a program is as far away now as then.

Business Leaders Balk.

Indeed, urban elements, including chambers of commerce, importers' organizations and manufacturers, have advanced far enough down the war path that they are believed about ready to threaten the life of the government unless the cabinet modifies its present inflation policies.

The government inflated the New Zealand pound shortly after a conference of farmers had been held in the capital. At this conference the farmers, pointing out that their position was desperate, decided that the only thing that would save them would be a raise in the exchange rate.

Using their influence and power with the many agrarian members of parliament, the farmers succeeded in forcing the government to act as they desired.

Warnings Are Ignored.

The action was taken despite the fact that previously government officials had taken the stand that raising of the rates must be left to the banks acting in unison, that the gains would be more than offset by losses due to disturbed trade and that the danger to the country's budgetary position would be serious.

Differences over the inflationary policy led to a reorganization of the cabinet. W. Downie Stewart, minister of finance, resigned. He was replaced by J. G. Coates. Other ministers were given portfolios relinquished by Coates Prime Minister Forbes, however, remained at the head of the government.

Commodity prices, of course, rose after the government's inflation order, and farmers, whose products comprise by far the great majority of exports benefited exceedingly.

Not so the cities, however, for the new exchange rates hurt imports as much as it helped exports, and the cities are mostly dependent on business in connection with imported goods.

It is pointed out, too, that the new rates are in effect an extension of tariff walls and so are not consistent with the agreement reached at the empire trade conference at Ottawa to scale down empire tariff barriers. The government is consequently being accused both here and in England of a breech of faith.

Urban elements are now following the example set by their rural opponents. They are working in the lobbies, rounding up legislative votes and another threat to oust the government appears to be in the offing.

GUY TESTIFIES TO OWN ALIBI IN MURDER CASE

Long Beach, Cal., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Before an audience, chiefly of women, William Guy gave today his own alibi as a defense against the charge of murdering Capt. Walter Wanderwill in the courtroom of Superior Judge Robert Kenny. Guy testified he was not in Long Beach on night of Dec. 5. On that night Wanderwell was shot aboard the schooner Carma, which was tied to a wharf. The case probably will be in the hands of the jury before Saturday.

Guy asserted he was in the Glendale home of Eddie Delarm, aviator from 6:30 p. m. on Dec. 5 until 8 a. m. Dec. 6, where he had resided for some time. Delarm's home is 35 miles from the murder scene. Defense counsel Eugene McGann only questioned him about the alibi.

Then on cross examination, Deputy District Attorneys Brayton and Hunt were limited to that testimony. Guy went to bed on the night of Dec. 5 between 8 and 8:15 o'clock, he testified. The defense made no redirect examination and closed its case. The state then presented witnesses in rebuttal, calling Johnnie Seastrom and Tommy Bridgefort. They, neighbors said they called to see Juanita and Betty Delarm after 6:30 p. m. on Dec. 5, and did not see Guy in the house. Cross-examined, Bridgefort could not be sure whether the call was on Dec. 5 or 6.

RUMANIAN GUNS FORCE 2,000 MEN TO GIVE UP SHOPS

Promise to Reinstate Reds Ends Revolt.

CLUJ, Rumania, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Surrounded by machine guns and rifles trained on them by the 83rd Infantry regiment, 2,000 workmen, who yesterday took possession of railway repair shops here, gave up resista..ce today and marched out of the area peacefully.

The regimental commander promised that the five workers who were discharged as communists would be reinstated.

Attempt to Seize Shops.

An attempt by 700 idle men to capture the shops after the departure of the workers was frustrated by the troops without casualties.

The workmen had remained barricaded in the shops almost 24 hours. Ten engineers and 30 clerical workers were forced to remain inside the gates as hostages.

Puzzled, the authorities at first hoped the workers would get hungry and go home but their families brought food to the gates and the occupation threatened to become permanent.

Troops Are Called.

Troops finally were called and encircled the shops this morning. Nevertheless the workers refused to open the gates until the communists had been reinstated.

It was recalled that communist organizations were outlawed Saturday following the reported discovery of trouble in the postal department.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 14.—An urgent last minute S. O. S. addressed to all the crowned heads of Europe has been sent out by King Carol of Rumania, according to reports received here today. In effect the message said: "Unless we stick together there will be one more republic on this planet."

Archduke Anton Hapsburg, brother-in-law of King Carol, and Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, implored King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia to arrange for military aid in the event the Rumanian army is unable to suppress further uprisings in connection with oil and rail strikes, but, it is understood, ministerial councils have been unable to promise anything, due to internal troubles with the Croatians, Slovenes, and communists.

The Rumanian royal house has decided to ask Carol to resign in favor of his son, Michael, should the situation demand it, according to the Hungarian newspaper Uj Nemzedek [New Generation].

OAK PARK GIRL STARTS 2D YEAR OF SLEEP TODAY

One year ago today, Patricia Maguire, Oak Park girl, was stricken with sleeping sickness, and today she is still a victim of the strange disease.

She was seen yesterday at her home at 523 Clarence avenue, where she is under the constant care of her mother, Mrs. Sadie Walters Miley, and her sister, Mrs. Gladys Hansen. She fluttered her eye lids occasionally, and reached her hand to her mother's face, but showed no indications of voluntary movement.

Physicians throughout the country have interested themselves in Miss Maguire's case. All medical suggestions have done no good. Dr. Eugene Traut, in charge of the case, has planned to use a new serum. Miss Maguire has gained 35 pounds during her illness. She is 27 years old, and at the time she was stricken, she was employed as a secretary. Although stricken on Feb. 15, 1932, she did not sink into a complete coma until Feb. 24.

Four other officials of the corporation, who received the same sentence, are still in the county jail pending an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

AUTHORESS IN SUIT

Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, Chicago novelist and playwright, said yesterday that she would leave for New York today to prosecute in federal court there a lawsuit alleging infringement of copyright against the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film corporation.

FAILS TO GIVE BOND OF $135,000, INDICTED BANKER PUT IN JAIL

Jacksonville, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Millard F. Dunlap, 76 year old president of the closed Ayers National bank, tonight was removed from his home to the Morgan county jail after he had failed to produce a $135,000 bond ordered by Circuit Court Judge Walter W. Wright.

The aged bank president and three of his former subordinates of the large financial institution, which closed Nov. 22, were indicted by a grand jury yesterday in connection with the bank's collapse. On his plea of illness, he was permitted to remain at home under a sheriff's guard until tonight.

Other officials of the bank indicted were William G. Boebel, cashier; Harry C. Clement, vice president, and Edward M. Dunlap, vice president. Clement and Edward Dunlap were at liberty under bonds of $25,000 and $10,000, respectively.

It will require $270,000 worth of property to provide the necessary bond for the elder Dunlap, the court advised today.

The bank had reported resources of more than $7,000,000 when it closed its doors.

NAMES 'LOUSE' AS SLUGGER IN CLEANER FEUD

Louis (the Louse) Clementi, on trial with Philip Mangano in the Criminal court of Judge Thomas J. Lynch on charges of conspiracy in connection with terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing industry, yesterday was identified by a witness as a hoodlum terrorist.

Jerry Weil, driver for the International Cleaners and Dyers, 2810 South State street, testified that Clementi was one of several hoodlums who slugged him in July, 1931. Harry Alpert, president of the company, who preceded Weil on the stand, testified that hoodlums had smashed company trucks and thrown acid on clothing. The evidence of the state was presented by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller.

Clementi and Mangano, who is a cousin of "Dago" Lawrence Mangano, were arrested on Aug. 12, 1931, after a gang of hoodlums had wrecked four trucks of the International company in a garage at 10 East 29th street. A state automobile license card and a bill of sale bearing Mangano's name were found on the floor of the garage.

TUBERCULOSIS TESTS BEGIN AT LAKE VIEW HIGH

Tuberculin tests of the 4,000 pupils of the Lake View High school were begun yesterday as the first step in a campaign against tuberculosis in the Chicago public high schools. The campaign is being carried on by a joint committee under the direction of Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan and the Chicago Tuberculosis institute.

All school children in Chicago will be given tests designed to discover the students susceptible to the disease.

Dr. Julius B. Novak, medical director of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute; Dr. W. A. Evans of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and other speakers described the purpose of the tests at an assembly of students. The other speakers were Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools; Alice Winter, principal of the high school; Mrs. E. E. Grumbine, president of the Lake View Parent-Teacher association, and Emil Rothe, physical education director. Children must have the consent of their parents before taking the tests, it was said.

BUSINESS LEADER LAYS THREATS TO GAMBLING RAIDS

North side gamblers were blamed yesterday by Edward H. Hicks, president of the Central Uptown Business Men's association, for recent threats to bomb his home. Complaints by Hicks resulted on Monday in the raiding of eight gambling houses in the Uptown district, he said.

Early yesterday two policemen were assigned to guard the Hicks home at 4646 Kenmore avenue after Mr. Hicks notified the Town Hall station that a large automobile, containing several men, was parked at the rear of his residence. The car was driven away before the policemen arrived.

Several hours later Hicks received an anonymous phone call. The caller told him to "look out or your home may be bombed." The call was the latest of a series of similar threats he had received for three days, he said.

Supervising Captain Thomas Condon led the raids on Monday, which are believed to have brought about the threats. The police seized 44 men and confiscated racing sheets and other gambling paraphernalia.

Claude Jackson, 17 years old, 211 North Maplewood avenue, a Negro, was shot and critically wounded, and a companion, Clarence Collins, 17 years old, 208 Fairfield avenue, colored, was captured yesterday as a Warren avenue police squad exchanged shots with seven colored hoodlums who attempted to rob a meat truck. John Marley, the truck driver, who had been robbed by the same gang Monday, traveled his route yesterday trailed by the squad car. The gun battle occurred when the bandits attempted to rob the truck at Walnut and Paulina streets. The other five hoodlums escaped.

WHY MILLIONS BREATHE VAPEX FOR HEAD-COLDS

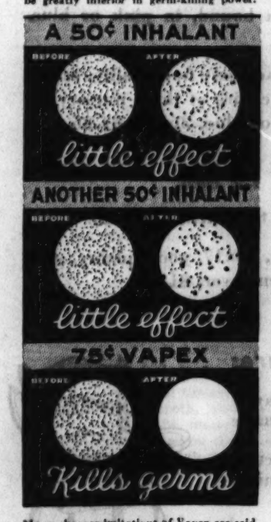
TESTS PROVE SUPERIORITY OF VAPEX

Unbiased tests by a prominent medical research laboratory prove that the vapor of a single drop of Vapex kills dense colonies of germs present in head-colds. In exactly similar tests, other inhalants (often offered as substitutes for Vapex) were shown to be greatly inferior in germ-killing power.



Many cheaper imitations of Vapex are said to be "just as good." But Science proves they are not. Vapex has a remarkable germ-killing power. This is the extra value that Vapex brings you at very little extra cost.

BREATHE Vapex the next time you're suffering with a cold. Notice how swift and effective it is . . . how the sniffles and stuffed-up feeling disappear with the first few deep breaths.

That's because Vapex has one decided advantage. You breathe it. It penetrates where drops, gargles, salves and sprays are not likely to reach. Only a vapor like Vapex can actually get to the real seat of a cold . . . the maze of hidden breathing passages . . . safely and naturally.

Breathing Vapex brings almost instant relief from distress. And tends to stop your cold at the start, for it also has a remarkable germ-killing power. Yet it's safe for babies as well as grown-ups.

Why not try breathing the delightful vapor for your next cold? No muss—just a sprinkle on your handkerchief or pillow. No fuss—just breathe naturally. Vapex does the rest. Sold at all druggists.

This President Fixes World While Insane

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Gabriel Over the White House." [Farrar & Rinehart.] Published Feb. 10.

Heralded as the most sensational novel of the year, "Gabriel Over the White House" has finally reached us, by this time agape with curiosity. Its sensation lies in its fancies, certainly not its facts, for it concerns the administration of one Jud Hammond, elected President of the United States in some indeterminate time after the threatening thirties, and their farthest north in depressions had brought not only his native land but the whole world to the brink of chaos. It could not be far in the future, however, for the great Hammond's participation in the world war was the source of his nickname "Major."

The book starts with a motor accident in which the Major suffered a concussion which affected his mind. It ends with an attempted assassination of the President which affected it back again.

During the three years and more intervening the President had been insane from the private point of view of his attending physician.

But to the world at large he had been the greatest, the sanest man of modern history.

To his private secretary, a woman, he had been mysteriously a mouthpiece of God, and it was to Gabriel, hovering over the White House, bringing the message of God to the man chosen to take that message to the world, that he seemed to her to listen as he slowly dictated the messages and orders which changed his country's distress into security and the world's tragedy into permanent peace.

Of such a Utopia is "Gabriel Over the White House." The processes of that adjustment the author goes into in detail. They are in swift outline this: The President first abolishes congress as a cumbersome and stultifying method of getting anything done. He makes a direct personal appeal to the masses of the people through television to educate them for the reforms which he intends giving them.

Knowing that the states will rebel against federal control, he appoints a personal representative in each state and creates a council of state. Politicians are thus nullified and strong, brilliant men given power. He reforms the currency, taking the country off the gold standard and making—through a decision of the Supreme court—the new currency the legal tender.

With the menace of "squatters" who settled in the public parks of all the great cities and demanded or foraged for food, threatening imminent revolution, he creates a reconstruction corps of the unemployed which hires them on army pay and under army discipline and thus has a mobile working army.

He federalizes the police force. He exterminates gangsters by making the possession of firearms an offense punishable by death if the culprit offers armed resistance to arrest. The government, at his command, takes over the manufacture of guns [for its own use] and it also takes over completely the manufacture, sale, and importation of all forms of alcohol as a concomitant to the cleaning up of the racketeering business.

Having cleaned his own Augean stables, he turns his great mind to the state of the world at large. A war between Japan and China [another one] makes opportune his proposals for concord of the western nations [not through the league of nation] to use combined force against the aggressors. Through the power of the air forces he proves that navies are outmoded, and President Hammond had little trouble in calling a world council to oversee the treaties following war's cessation. He has created a Pan-American customs union which abolishes tariffs on all important goods between Canada, the U. S. A., and the South American states, and gradually, through Canada, Great Britain and the U. S. make a similar agreement.

President Hammond proposes at the world council which he attends in person] international disarmament and the creation of a capital of the world, "International City" [which is to be loacted in the north of Ireland on the direct air route between Europe and the Americas].

The anonymous author of "Gabriel Over the White House" has included in the reforms of his hypothetical President [listening to Gabriel] most of the reforms proposed to date, except technocracy, as panaceas for the world's economic sickness.

Whether God will ever see to it that some one gets banged over the head into a brilliant constructive insanity [or sanity, according to the point of view] is, like the period covered by "Gabriel Over the White House," wholly a future contingency.

However sensational for its material, "Gabriel Over the White House" is sensationally badly and probably hastily written. I offer one sentence out of it as the farthest north in something. In speaking of the council of state Mr. Anonymous writes: "This was composed of about a score of the best type of public men, including four women."

Here Is a Study in Facial Expression

Now, what could occasion such different kinds of expressions on the faces of these five socialites? Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin (left) certainly seems to be quite doubtful about how she likes it, whatever it is; Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin is decidely disdainful, Mrs. Harold Pynchon is somewhat interested, Mrs. John Root is rather pleased, and Mrs. Eugene McDonald Jr. is perfectly delighted (left to right). [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Dismantling of Carpenter House Means End of Charming Home

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT is very easy to grow sentimental over the dismantling of the old house at 700 Rush street, especially for one who has been writing social notes since the days of the world war when the Carpenters lived at 710 Rush street, just a few doors north of the house that is being unfurnished now. The homes that the late Mrs. John Alden Carpenter [Rue Winterbotham] made had such an air of distinction, such charm and individuality, that it is not difficult to remember them vividly and it is hard to realize that the last one she made is a thing of the past.

By Friday morning the last vanload of furniture will have been moved. Everything is packed and crated and ready to be shipped to the Carpenter country place at Charlotte, Vt., or to Fort Worth, Tex., where the Carpenters' only child, "Ginny," and her husband, Patrick C. Hill, and their baby daughter are living.

Nothing has been sold, and only a few things given away, so all the exquisite and chic things that the late Mrs. Carpenter had assembled will ornament and be useful again in the two homes where her daughter and her granddaughter will live, winter and summer. Mrs. Hill, who has been here for about a week with her aunt, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, superintending the packing, is leaving Friday morning for Fort Worth and by that night the house will be empty and ready for its next tenant, whoever that may be.

House Built 60 Years Ago.

The Carpenters did not own the house on Rush and Superior streets in which they lived—it is the property of Cyrus Hall McCormick—and Mr. Carpenter's lease on it is up on May 1. They moved to it from 710 Rush street years ago and in 1926 they left it to take up their abode in an apartment on the Lake Shore drive, the outer drive, but Mrs. Carpenter never liked living in an apartment so in 1929 they moved back into the old house. The house was built about sixty years ago by George Rumsey, and later bought by E. T. Watkins and then by Mr. McCormick.

The late Mrs. William Blair, grandmother of Mrs. Howard Linn [Lucy Blair Linn] lived there and it was after her death that the Carpenters took it. During the few years that they gave it up the Walter P. Paepckes occupied it. And now it will be for rent again. The three maids who have comprised the staff of servants for the last few months are leaving on Friday, too, but they will be in the employ of the Carpenters again in the summer for they are going to Charlotte when the house there is opened.

But after Friday a telephone call to Superior 3755, the Carpenters' number in all three of their homes, will elicit the words, "That telephone has been disconnected," and a pang will come to all those who knew and admired the late Mrs. Carpenter.

When Mr. Carpenter and his bride, the former Ellen Waller Borden, return from their wedding trip in the spring they will be at home in her handsome house at Lake Shore drive and Bellevue place.

Arthur Meeker Hurt in Crash.

We don't seem to be able to keep Arthur Meeker Jr. out of our columns these days, for yesterday we mentioned that he did not know that yesterday was St. Valentine's day and today we are extending to him our sympathy on the injuries he received Monday night in an automobile accident.

How serious they are we, nor he, do not know now, but at least they were bad enough to keep him away from the party to which he was on his way when the taxicab in which he was rid-

Always the pioneer! He starred in our first feature length talkie—NOW he appears in our first singie-talkie. Sounds like Chinese but isn't.

Despite its slight story, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum" is fantastic and entertaining. The rhythmic dialogue, whimsically intelligent direction, very fine photography, an able cast—note the fact that Harry Langdon's again in our midst!—and some good songs sung as Jolson alone can sing them, make it that way.

He is seen as a carefree hobo who has the ear and liking of the mayor of New York—not to say many other folks of greater and less importance. He saves hizzoner's girl friend from ending it all in Central Park lake—for reasons the picture shall show you—falls for her, discovers she's not for him, and well, Hallelujah, he's a bum with music in his soul and the great out of doors to forget in.

As ever Al Jolson is the entertainer par excellante—and "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum" is full to brimming OF Al Jolson.

Belts Become Important in Fashion World

Most Decorative Motif of Stylish Frock.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

In other years a belt may have been a mere trifle, a wind-around gadget that covered, charitably, a few odd pins, a funny skirt top, or concealed the mismated meeting of a waist and skirt. Today you wrap a belt around your middle, that is a belt . . . a glorified swanky length of leather, quite the most decorative motif of a fashionable frock or costume.

Most of the new belts are colored. The red concoctions are flaming successes for almost any colored dress in your wardrobe. You will discover red suede, red kidskin, red satin, red crêpe, and red cord belts, in every shade of this arresting color.

But the buckles will keep you gasping . . . the newest buckles are the biggest things you have seen in weeks . . . a hammered silver circle looks like an outsize life saver . . . it is rounded and certainly does effective contrast duty. Glittering gold and copper circles likewise gleam from the center section of your front waistline with almost startling magnificence . . . evidently the smart buckle is the largest one you can buy.

Big square affairs that must have been popular during the Gibson-shirt-waist-girl era are made of silver and gold and chromium. Most of these swanky oblong buckles hold suede or dull leather in place. Lots of the circles and oblongs that you find on new belts are to be duplicated on matching handbags, so if you are one of these costume accessory matchers you will have a grand time keeping the squares and such mated for parade duty on your new street frocks.

There are all kinds of brown belts . . . from beige numbers to the lovely deep dark tones that are excellent accents for printed silk dresses and suits. Many of the browns are especially designed to wear with silver gray clothes, as they have silver ornaments and buckles. Copper studded belts are perfect with sports clothes, fuzzy angoras, and rabbit's wool, and copper gleams as alluringly against brown as it does on Kelly green suede or kidskin.

Copper combined with gray and used with reptile skin is just enough different to be very popular . . . you can buy belt, bag, and shoes of snake-skin and have each piece cleverly contrasted with dusky copper trim, a copper that can be matched with reddish brown fabric as well as suede or kid-skin gloves. Chromium is another glittering metal that can be matched to gray belts and bags with telling effectiveness, and the way chromium shines with deep sapphire blue tones is something to really find out about.

Windblown Star

BY NANCY CABOT.

The earliest actual trace of the "Windblown Star" pattern was in a little quaint seaside town in Maine, where an old quilt of this design, an example of exquisite needlework, pieced in 1778, was found. The blue of its blocks has faded, of course, but, if anything, its sentimental and antique value is enhanced.

For a pattern of the "Windblown Star" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Prepare Now to Avoid Usual 'Spring Fever'

Try Liquid Diet One Day Each Week.

An illustrated booklet of Miss Donnelly's stretching exercises may be obtained by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

This is the season of the year when you have to prepare against that awful spring "tire."

One of the advances of the last few years is impatience with spring fever victims, the reason being that the actual cause of this so-called fever is a complaint that deserves no sympathy. The best word you can give it is auto-intoxication. But when you start analyzing auto-intoxication it doesn't enter the polite conversational ailments, either.

Anyway, you'd better be in the know, and prepare now against having to tell people that you're suffering from spring fever. It means, to be honest, that your system needs a general housecleaning. That, chiefly, your body is not disposing of its waste in the normal fashion.

You've probably been eating fewer green vegetables the last few months; no fruit, little or nothing of salads. In certain metropolitan districts the green vegetables and fruits are available at reasonable prices the winter through. But this does not hold good in certain smaller communities. And you find in the latter very much the same "heavy eating" that years ago made many more victims of spring "tire" than we have today, on the whole. By heavy eating we mean eating more of the starchy foods and fattening meats with much bread and butter and potatoes as filler in.

We all make the mistake, however, of abstaining from fruits and greens in the cold months in one degree or another, unless we happen to be on a strict diet. We haven't been exercising during these months, with the consequence that bodies are more or less stoked with waste that creates poisons and so are responsible for the failure to greet spring with the proper welcoming cheer. I suggest as a good training course for a better and brighter April a one day a week liquid fast between now and then.

Make it a Sunday if you choose, and take nothing but liquid: tomato juice, or a fruit juice, or a broth. But stick to the program for 24 hours. And drink as much water as you can comfortably take. Then, watch that diet, and where you can substitute a green vegetable or salad for a heavier dish.

Sculpture of Lincoln Made from Life Is on Exhibit at Club

In celebration of this month of patriotic birthdays the Chicago Woman's club has placed on exhibit one of the two portrait sculptures of Lincoln ever to have been made from life. The property of Mrs. Joseph A. Jerger of 4839 Dorchester avenue, the sculpture is part of a bronze medallion done by Franklin Simmons and known as "The American Triumvirate."

Side by side in alto relief are the profiles of Washington, Lincoln, and Grant. The portrait of Grant as well as that of Lincoln was made from a life sitting during the years of the civil war when Mr. Simmons was a resident of Washington, D. C. The time of the casting of the bronze is determined by the fact that the thirty-seventh star surrounding the portraits represents Colorado's centennial year. This was 1876.

During the three years the artist spent in Washington he made many other life size medallions of members of the cabinet and officers of the army and navy. Most of these were purchased by the Union League club of Philadelphia. In 1868 Mr. Simmons went to Rome, where he was knighted by King Humbert of Italy. He died abroad in 1913.

As an active member of the Chicago Woman's club, Mrs. Jerger gave the medallion for its second public showing since her family came into possession of it. The first showing was at the Chicago Union League club during the presidency of the late Thomas B. Bryan.

It was Mr. Bryan who bought the medallion from the sculptor and later sold it to Wilbur Eggleston Haguns, stepfather of Mrs. Jerger.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and takes home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice, he resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart lunches with Alice.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

EVIDENCE DESTROYED.

"Maybe you're like mother," Alice said. "You have good reasons for what you do——"

Ah, the good reasons! Bart found himself clutching at the table, holding himself back from telling her.

"Some day you'll tell me why," she said, and again he saw the love in her eyes. "You needn't worry about Ingy Warren. I'll not go to Wyattville if you don't want me to." And her eyes were saying, "I live for the times when I can see you."

"I miss not coming to Folly island," he said.

"But can't you? Not any more?"

"I'm afraid not."

"O." That was all, but he was making her understand. The tenseness of her body gave him strength to go on.

Why didn't Alice say anything? Why did she just sit there, motionless, uncomprehending? He had an impulse to rage at her. A storm was breaking in his mind. Another man seemed to be speaking for him.

"Alice, I came here to tell you. I'm going to be married."

She just looked at him. Then, through an excited maze, he was aware of the change in her. She seemed to grow taller, a spire of pride.

Out in the sound, where the water was deep and wide, Bart took the photograph from his coat and shied it far away from him into the blind darkness.

"But, Alice——" Crazily he laid a hand on her arm. She shook it off and changed again to the Gypsy, her face ablaze with lightning.

"Don't you ever, ever come back. Not ever. We never wanted you. Who cares for your—your advice? But I'll——"

A waiter had set a cup of coffee in front of her. In rising she knocked it over, then went rapidly out of the room.

When you must turn two faces toward life one of them is bound to be a mask; choose, if you can, which one.

Bart's true face stung as though a slap had been laid across it as his eyes followed Alice Bayley's retreating figure, straight and proud, as it disappeared in the gaudy clutter of the Japanese Garden. Mechanically paying his check and giving some sort of money to the waiter, he realized dimly that what he had just said had been an insult to Alice, and she had paid him in kind. That was all right. With a dull ax he had killed the thing he loved. It was a part of the inexorable program which circumstances had laid out for him.

That was finished.

It was not until the middle of the afternoon and he was wandering vaguely back to the office when the practical side of his dilemma presented itself so vividly that he stopped in his tracks, realizing the necessity for immediate action.

Alice had forbidden him Folly island as harshly as he had forbidden it to himself. That romance was over, and with the ring of tragic finality. Yes, but the practical side . . . Ingy Warren had come to Folly island and only by the merest luck had he missed seeing Trevor Burgess' picture in the Bayley houseboat. Ingy would come again, of course, and often; other people, too, since Mrs. Bayley had opened her gate to the world. How Ingy would put two and two together, seeing that photograph, then whispering the delightful news to an eager Wyattville!

Bart Burgess, who had sworn never again to see Folly island, motored rapidly to Wyattville that afternoon, went secretly to the inlet at the foot of his mother's estate, and took out his little speedboat. Not love, but a gray necessity hurried him that fifty odd miles up the sound, around Orient Point and into Little Peconic bay. His grim, unpleasant job urged him forward across the darkening water. This visit to Folly island was to be brief and stealthy. He had come to commit a burglary.

The stars were out, the little cove a shadow as he leaped ashore. Hen Love had released his vigilance, apparently, and there was no immediate danger except for the dogs. Now they came barking down the rocks, but when the big one, who played with Alice, got his scent he came forward licking his chops, wagging his tail apologetically. The other animals capered about. To Bart there was something pitiful in this. The very dogs on Folly Island delighted in his return.

The door of the main cabin was locked, but a window sash yielded easily. It was so dark inside that Bart snapped his cigaret lighter and set the little torch on a desk near the bay window. Then carefully he took the picture from the wall, buttoned it inside his coat, and reached for his lighter. It stood beside a small book and illuminated a yellow slip of paper, partly concealed in the pages as though it had been tucked there hastily.

A telegram. Across the top edge he could read its date line—Philadelphia, July 28—about a week ago. On the lower edge were three typewritten words and a signature . . . "age of eighteen. Hagen."

So that poor job was finished. But once again in his speedboat, hurrying up the channel, Bart felt new questions crowding on him. A telegram had come a week ago at about the time when Ingy had drifted so casually into Folly island. Was there any connection? Yes. And about a week ago Mrs. Bayley had suffered a complete change of heart. Philadelphia—what did it signify?

And what did it matter? Fate had arranged it so that the Bayleys from now on were to be no more to him than a menace. And the high romance which had quickened his heart in April had closed in a rather ignoble housebreaking.

Out in the sound where the water was deep and wide Bart took the photograph from his coat and shied it far away from him into the blind darkness.

The morning after that absurd, necessary dash to Folly island Bart awoke in his bed, assuring himself that his two hours' sleep had done him all sorts of good. He didn't want to remember what he had done. He wanted to forget that yesterday afternoon he had committed a clumsy murder, that last night he had crowned it with a petty thievery.

At breakfast his mother said he looked tired and ought to have a vacation. Aunt Augusta's suspicious eyes were on him, yearning for the nice detective clews to which his queer behavior might lead. With something like a sigh he left them and dashed away to catch his usual morning train.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

I WISH WE COULD HELP THEM BUT I DON'T SEE HOW WE CAN, WALT.
I DON'T EITHER. BUT WE'VE GOT TO DO SOMETHING. I WISH OUR PLACE WAS BIG ENOUGH TO TAKE THEM IN UNTIL ALL THIS IS OVER.
SO DO I. BUT WE JUST COULDN'T. THEY HAVE CLARENCE WITH THEM TOO, HAVENT THEY?
I SUPPOSE SO. I HATE TO THINK OF THEM REALLY IN WANT. I'LL SEND THEM A LITTLE MONEY TO TIDE THEM OVER.
OF COURSE IF THEY HAVEN'T A PLACE TO LIVE WE'D HAVE TO MAKE SOME ARRANGEMENT HERE

BY MARY MEADE.

There seems to be a bit of dissension among food-wise folk as to whether that renowned lord of Sandwich put bread on either side of cold beef as he dashed for the hunt, or whether the whole thing got started when he flanked a wedge of meat between two convenient toast slices at the ale house, rather than interrupt his gambling game by going in to dinner.

But, however, the first "sandwich" came about, it was a glorious idea which is still accepted with new variations every now and then when an ingenious housewife can't think of anything else to serve for lunch.

But fortunately, just as there is no end to sandwich possibilities, neither is there any limit to the tricky, flavorsome garnishes we can serve with them. Just the correct snappy touch of relish, pickle, or other tidbit does magic things to the simplest luncheon sandwich, and the pleasant part is that it's not necessary to visit a professional sandwich shop to find smart frills. They're just as tantalizing when created in your own neat kitchen.

For instance, when yours is to be a hot meat sandwich, tuck onto the side of the plate a mixture of finely chopped dill pickle and pickled beets nested in the curl of a lettuce heart leaf. Or use thin slices, crosswise or lengthwise, from any of the popular pickles on the market—dill, sweet, sour, mustard, gherkins, or others. Place them on, in, or alongside your meat sandwich.

Or dress up that next club sandwich in this way: On each half of the sandwich place a thin slice of tomato. On each slice slip a thin crosswise slice of dill pickle. Now down through the center and well into the sandwich, stick a toothpick, leaving just enough of the point projecting above the pickle slice to hold up a midget sweet pickle or a stuffed olive, impaled on the point.

For party sandwiches, pickles are still quite proper, if daintily applied. Thin minced meat sandwiches may be cut in small rounds, and each one garnished with a small slice of sweet dill pickle alongside of a bit of red jelly. Or mild cheese sandwiches, cut thin and in party shapes, may be flattered by center rosettes of cream cheese and thin crosswise slices of midget sweet pickles.

Pickle fans placed atop satisfying luncheon sandwiches are something else folk enthuse over. For a fan, select a medium sized sweet pickle. Hold it by the end, on a cutting board, and with a very thin, sharp knife cut it in thin slices held together only by a small section at the end which you are holding. Now spread the slices, fan fashioned, and use to garnish fish or other mildly flavored sandwiches or salads.

RELISH PINWHEEL SANDWICHES.

½ cup sweet pickle relish

With a very sharp knife, remove the crusts from the bread and then cut the remaining loaf into thin, lengthwise slices. Cream the butter and then blend it evenly with the pickle. Spread the slices of bread with the mixture and roll up each slice as you would for a jelly roll. Take each roll separately and wrap it snugly in waxed paper. Place in the refrigerator and let stand for an hour or more. Just before serving, cut the rolls across in thin slices.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

(Copyright: 1933: by The Chicago Tribune.)

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE COUNTERFEIT TICKETS.

"Car tickets of the Washington Street Railway company were being so cleverly counterfeited that, for a while, not even the manager could tell the genuine from the bogus," explained the professor. "However, the company was daily losing money as nearly all of the conductors were turning in too many tickets for the cash amounts received.

"The routine was this: Each conductor going on duty received $20 worth of tickets. These were in strips of six each, being sold for a quarter. When selling a strip the conductor tore off the top ticket, which had a smooth edge, the other five having both edges rough, punched it, put it in his pocket, and handed the other five to the passenger. The purchaser presented one of these tickets [or a nickel] when riding on the cars. An accounting of tickets and cash was made by conductors when going off duty.

"Detective Sergeant Brown was called in and had reached an impasse until he finally learned that some tickets were just a bit thicker than others and that these ones were counterfeit. He also learned that the forged tickets were made from paper not produced in this country.

"He knew that only a conductor could possibly be the swindler. But which one? Suddenly a brilliant but simple thought occurred to him. That was how he MUST be getting away with it. A close watch was kept on all conductors and the single culprit was disclosed."

NEW YORK GIRLS KEEP HAIR LOVELY

"I'M so busy; I don't know how I'd take care of my hair if I hadn't learned the way so many of my friends are doing theirs!"

Typical of what New York girls by thousands are saying about the new way so many of them are doing their hair to keep it soft, lustrous, and beautiful.

It's so effective. So simple. Just a few dashes of Danderine on the brush each time you arrange your hair. Oily film goes. The natural color of your hair is brought out. It takes on new life and sparkle!

The worst crust of dandruff is quickly dissolved by Danderine. It cleanses, soothes, invigorates the scalp. When it is used, hair is easier to dress. Stays in place wonderfully. And day by day Danderine encourages your hair to grow longer, thicker, more abundant.

Eddie Cantor to Be 'Martyr' in Next Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 14.—The current trend for the mythological and classical ancient has a convert in Producer Sam Goldwyn. Sam leaps back 2,000 years for the theme of his next Eddie Cantor vehicle, which will be a revamp of "Androcles and the Lion," and Sam and Eddie spent part of last Sunday yess-ing each other about it over long distance telephone.

Goldwyn left for New York today, after announcing that "the next Cantor feature will go back more than 20 centuries to the pagan glory that was Greece and the voluptuous grandeur that was Rome." Sitting in his luxurious office, while the outside office girls and the brother producers kept his signal system of red lights, white lights, bells and buzzers vibrating, Mr. Goldwyn leaned back and said, "Can you imagine Eddie Cantor, a nice Jewish boy, thrown to the lions as a Christian martyr?"

The intrepreneur of beauty and fun also smacked his lips and chuckled an anticipatory chuckle about the chances for "having beautiful girls—the most beautiful in America—auctioned off on the Rome slave blocks by their brutal masters," as Mr. Goldwyn said, he "understood the Romans used to do." Chances are the steps up that slave block will elevate a fair percentage of Goldwyn's new batch of 75 girl "finds" into careers.

Goldwyn has engaged two high power writers, Ernest Pascal and Nunnally Johnson, to turn the fable of "Androcles and the Lion" into a screen vehicle. The writers will join Sam in New York a week after his arrival there. In the meantime Goldwyn took another writer, Edwin Justus Mayer, to New York with him on today's train. Mayer is hard at work on the debut vehicle for Anna Sten's first American film.

Goldwyn and his wife, the former Frances Howard, will stay in New York four weeks for the producer's conferences with Cantor, Pascal, Johnson, Mayer, and eastern heads of the United Artists organization, after which Mr. and Mrs. Goldwyn will sail for Europe, to return the middle of April.

Grace Poggi, who rippled that mean rhumba in "Kid from Spain," will play a Roman dancer who has a politician for a boy friend in "Androcles and the Lion." The others in the cast will be chosen when that old mythology hawk, Sam Goldwyn, gets back from abroad.

Warner Film Studio tonight announced a quest for a 15 year old German or German-American girl, good looking, with long hair which can be braided, screen experience unnecessary. The girl is desired for a main rôle in a motion picture story about an internment camp in Germany. The story is called "Fellow Prisoners." It is an original by Sir Phillips Gibbs, British war correspondent. The type of German girl sought cannot be found in Hollywood, the studio declared.

ing was hit, and he has had to give up all plans for the rest of the week. But up to last night it was thought that it was only a general shaking up and shock, with no broken bones or anything out of joint.

Mr. Meeker was on his way to a birthday party laden with an amusing present and an even more amusing poem composed for the occasion, so his sister, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, and Mr. Cramer were his messengers and delivered the gift and poem for him after dinner.

Russian Benefit Committee Meets.

The Madlener twins, Otto and "Bill," were hosts last evening to members of the committee in charge of the Russian charity ball to be given on March 3 at the Maisonnette Russe. The committee met at 5:30 o'clock at the Madlener residence, 4 West Burton place, to make further plans for the ball.

Every year at about this time groups of Russians and their friends all over the world give parties to raise money for the wounded soldiers of the czar who now are without a country and who have to be supported entirely by their friends and sympathizers.

There is a hospital for these soldiers in Paris and the funds collected by the Russians in this country, South America, England, and other places are sent there. Among those interested in the Chicago party in addition to the Madlener brothers are the Prince and Princess Rostislav, Prince and Princess Galitzine, Prince and Princess Cantacuzene, Miss Dorothy Ranney, Miss Barbara Wendell, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mr. and Mrs. George Artamanoff, and Walter Frazier.

Sail Today for Tahiti.

When the gangplank of the Maunganui is pulled up this morning Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Andrews will be on their way to Tahiti. This is their first trip to this Garden of Eden, though their extensive travels have taken them to most parts of the globe.

Mrs. Andrews is expecting to find several more valuable bookplates to add to her amazing collection which now totals more than 42,000. And Dr. Andrews is particularly looking forward to bicycling over most of that gay, strange land.

The Andrewses will take a house overlooking a lagoon for their four months' stay. It was just last June that they returned from a vacation of several months in Trinidad.

A most attractive young couple who recently moved here and who are considered a great addition to local society are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Niedringhaus, who came here about a fortnight ago from St. Louis. They are temporarily at the Park Dearborn hotel, but they are busy looking for an apartment now and as soon as they find one to their liking they will move into it and be joined by their young daughter who is in Florida.

Mrs. Niedringhaus, formerly Evelyn Brown of St. Louis, and her husband are friends of the J. Russell Forgans. Mrs. Forgan having lived in St. Louis before her marriage.

Mrs. Forgan and her three children will be leaving in a week or ten days to spend the rest of the winter with her mother, Mrs. Jackson Johnson, at her winter place at Daytona Beach, Fla., but before she goes she is trying to see that the Niedringhauses get acquainted with enough people here to make their first few months in their new home pleasant and agreeable.

Enjoy Party at Oconomowoc.

Every member of the John L. Senior household is voting for another week-end at Oconomowoc. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Senior, Miss Mary Senior, Miss Lydia Swift, Miss Louise Dewey, Edward Smith, Daggett Harvey, Grinnell Morris, and Edward McGrew returned home after three days of winter sports at the popular Wisconsin resort. This week-end the Lester B. Knights of Cedar street expect to go up with a party of seventeen.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague left on Monday to spend a month at Yeaman's hall at Charleston, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Wheelock are not to have the pleasure of entertaining Mr. Wheelock's mother, Mrs. R. Vander Woude, again this winter, for she sailed last week, returning to England. Perhaps in April or May she will return to Chicago.

Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr. of Winnetka left yesterday for a vacation at Ormond Beach and Nassau.

The same men who have presided over the destiny of the Tavern club for the last year will be in office for the coming year, for they all were re-elected at the annual meeting held Monday night. A gay party it was, too, the sort of party that men like to have occasionally with no "wimmen" present.

The officers are: President, John W. Norton; first vice president, William C. Boyden; second vice president, Dr. J. Wendell Clark; third vice president, William P. Welsh; secretary, Charles Collins; treasurer, John R. Winterbotham; assistant treasurer, Louis C. Sudler; chairman house committee, Walter F. Frazier; chairman membership committee, James Weber Linn; chairman entertainment committee, John Wentworth; chairman of finances, Joseph T. Ryerson, and chairman library committee, Preston Boyden.

The club did not take over the entire cruise to Panama that it considered doing, but quite a few of the members are going on the cruise which starts from New Orleans on the 22d and will last for a fortnight. Among those leaving here on the 21st are Andrew Rebori, Howard Whitehouse and Howard L. Willett.

One of the most interested members in the audience tonight at Burton Holmes' first lecture this winter at Orchestra hall will be Frederick B. Tuttle. Mr. Tuttle has known Mr. Holmes ever since the days they put their minds together and invented excuses for cutting classes at the Harvard School for Boys. Although he has planned no formal parties for his old classmate he says that he will be on hand for all the lectures.

Reservations for Benefit Concert.

The main floor of the old Auditorium is to be quite as gay with ermine wraps and orchids the evening of Feb. 22 when Mme. Jeritza sings "Tosca" for the benefit of the Presbyterian hospital as the famous gold horseshoe. Among those who have already made reservations in the first 15 rows are Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, George W. Dixon, Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, Mrs. Kingman Douglass, Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, Mrs. John V. Farwell, and Mrs. Wentworth Field.

Another tea for the sake of Chicago Temple of Music. Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. John S. Miller of 1510 Dearborn parkway will be hostess to the Belgian workers for the Friends of Music. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank will speak and Dr. John Vermeren, Belgian vice consul in Chicago, and Maj. Felix Streyckmans, who has charge of foreign exhibits at the Century of Progress, will be among the guests.

Members of the Winnetka Garden club will hear about and see pictures of the famous Charleston gardens this afternoon at a meeting to be held at the residence of Mrs. Arthur W. Cushman of 779 Bryant avenue.

Wellesley Club to Hear of New School.

Two Wellesley alumnae, Miss Grace Crocker and Miss Dorothy P. Hill are coming to Chicago this week-end to tell the Chicago Wellesley club about the plans for the Summer School of Social Progress to be held in July on the eastern campus.

Miss Crocker is to be the house guest of Mrs. Ralph Brown of Winnetka and Mrs. Ralph E. Church will entertain Miss Hill.

Mrs. Paul Dodge and Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt will entertain the Melodists at the Corydon club today. There will be general rejoicing, no doubt, at the meeting over the announcement made recently by the president, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, that the club has subscribed 100 per cent to the Chicago Friends of Music.

Mrs. Dennis Gent and Mrs. Gilbert Smith will give the program at the Cradle musical this morning which is to be at 11:30 o'clock instead of at 11 as the previous ones have been. Miss Hadassah McGiffin will accompany them on the piano.

Miss Louise Spencer will entertain the members of the Chicago Wells club today at luncheon. Miss Alice Barler will preside at the meeting which will follow luncheon. Mrs. Walter G. Warren has been appointed to represent Wells at a meeting of women's colleges to make plans for an exhibit at A Century of Progress.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lyle Vette of Oak Park, who have been touring southern California, are stopping at El Mirador in Palm Springs for a fortnight. Although their return is indefinite, Mr. Vette expects to be home in three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks Lyford of 1400 Lake Shore drive, who went east last week for a short holiday, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cobb Jr., in Bronxville, N. Y.

Milstein Again a Sensation at Expert Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

If a motto had been devised descriptive of yesterday afternoon's concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, it ought to have implied something about good craftsmanship, for it attached to pretty nearly everything in the program, the playing of the orchestra, most of the compositions, the conducting of Eric De Lamarter, and in the highest degree to the solo performance of Nathan Milstein, violinist.

Mr. Milstein made his first appearance with the orchestra nearly a year ago. He was a sensation then. He was more of a sensation yesterday. Here is one of the younger flight of players, youth to whom nothing in music is denied. If you want to list his possessions they would probably add up as a tone of great beauty and variety, a technical equipment so complete that his air of ease is almost disdainful, and an audacious, almost insolent approach to the music he plays.

So the second half of the program was given up to the only violin concerto that Tschaikowsky ever wrote, a venerable if not always venerated warhorse, and one which under the Milstein bow became exactly what it was intended for, a show piece full of long breathed melodic phrases and fireworks that flashed and glittered and glowed. They were the occasion of loudly expressed admiration by the public, and after returning to the stage a few times Mr. Milstein added to his acclaim by playing several excerpts from the volume of Paganini Caprices.

Mr. De Lamarter and the orchestra had previously left some pleasant musical remembrances. Elgar's "Introduction and Allegro" for string orchestra was first, then the colorful and atmospheric "Beni Mora," by Gustav Holst, a performance in which Mr. De Lamarter reached a high point of art.

For a third source of pleasure there was a revival of Leo Sowerby's "Set of Four," four brief orchestral pieces which have now passed the important test of being 15 years old and still sounding fresh and undated. Mr. Sowerby was inspired with some first rate melodies when he wrote the set, and he did a first rate job of putting them into orchestral dress. As nearly as they may be described, they are something on the order of what Serge Prokofieff tries to do, but what Mr. Sowerby does much more expertly. They mean something entirely definite in the music of Chicago and hence of America.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Transparent cotton goods that looks as if it came right from the laundry, without benefit of a trip to the ironing board, is one of the smartest new French materials for summer evening dresses. The more it's wrinkled the better the Paris style magnates like it.

The dressmakers are showing wrinkled cotton evening frocks, and perversely putting touches of silk velvet on them. The result, girls, is chic with a capital C.

The dress shown today from Lyolene is made in this combination. The shoulder straps, placed as the belles of the '60s wore them, are of sapphire blue velvet, and so is the belt, whereas the dress is made of crinkled, transparent white cotton.

The skirt has a fitted hip yoke of the cotton material, and below this it is very full and set onto the yoke by cartridge plaits. From the center front to the left hip these plaits are set on at the hipline and the left side of the front dips down in a half square, so the plaiting begins several inches lower.

This kind of a dress needs no pressing—and mustn't have any if it is to be really smart.

Author Thinks They Would Choose More Wisely.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Have women better judgment than men in choosing a mate?

The argument is again precipitated by the recent remarks of one of our popular fiction writers, Temple Bailey. Miss Bailey appears to have no doubt about which sex makes the better job at proposing. She says that when a woman has just the same right as a man to do the proposing, she'll choose more wisely. And marriage will be none the worse for the change in tradition. Marriage, in Miss Bailey's opinion, will be more successful, because women would choose their husbands for quality and stability, whereas men do not think for themselves when they pick their wives.

One of the male's quoted weaknesses as a wife chooser is his easy persuasion into what other men want. So he falls for the popular girl with surface qualities.

"Our marriage situation," Miss Bailey is quoted as saying, "will work out when women will no longer be forced to take what they can get; when, instead of waiting or scheming for a proposal, they can go out frankly and with dignity seek the man they want to marry."

But how to put the movement over? With dignity? Regardless of the well known fact that countless numbers of men are married only thinking they've done the choosing, there are thousands of women today who could never bring themselves even to hinting in his presence a man's desirability.

There died in New York the other day a remarkable woman, who quite frankly declared her spinsterhood was due to the fact that no worthwhile man ever proposed to her. Though aligned with the most important modern movements for women and one who believed marriage the best career for women, this famous spinster went through life a self-confessed victim of an old tradition.

THE STAGE

The Chicago engagement of the Abbey Theater company from Dublin, scheduled to open at the Harris theater Sunday night, Feb. 26, will be limited to two weeks. The repertory for the first week will contain six full length plays and three one act curtain raisers, as follows:

Wednesday night—"The Whiteheaded Boy," by Lennox Robinson, preceded by Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News."

Thursday night—"The Playboy of the Western World," a drama by J. M. Synge, preceded by Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon."

The company, which represents the first line of the Abbey's company, contains: F. J. McCormick, Eileen Crowe, Michael J. Dolan, Maureen Delaney, Barry Fitzgerald, May Craig, Arthur Shields, Joan Sullivan, P. J. Carolan, Kate Curling, U. Wright, Ria Mooney, and Denis O'Dea.

Reports from Baltimore, where Katharine Cornell has just made her second production of the season, "Alien Corn" by Sidney Howard, state that the play deals with a musician who is fighting to escape from the ties that bind her to a job as music teacher in a girl's college. She believes that she must abandon this routine work before her talent is stifled, but in conflict with her ambition are the security that the job offers, her father's dependence upon her earnings, and her love for a young man of the vicinity. The locale is described as "a few hours' travel west of Chicago"—and that might easily be Rockford, Ill., where a girl's college may be found. C. C.

Mother's Love Is Sunshine of Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The mother of a little child should be to his mind and spirit what the sun is to his body: the source of life, strength and growth. We see so many children, both rich and poor and all the way between, whose minds and spirits are unhealthy because of an inadequate amount of "sunshine" in the mental atmosphere of their homes.

Think for a minute what the physical sun does for our physical bodies! It actually keeps them alive. Without the sun there would be no life on this earth, not even vegetable life.

Even on the darkest day the sun is still sending its life-giving rays through the clouds and keeping us alive. Then, when it comes out full and clear, how our spirits rise!

The grouchiest kind of person feels differently, although he may not admit it, when the sun is shining bright. Doctors say children, even more than adults, need sunshine if they are to be physically well and strong. Ill health in a child's mind and spirit may not be so easily detected as is bodily ill health. We are not apt to think so much about it.

Some of the symptoms of mental and spiritual ill health are sullenness, irritability, inability to get on with others, discontentedness, or just plain apathy—a lack of interest in life. As children go to school and associate with a larger group of people they become less dependent on mother, but a little child is appallingly dependent on his mother's moods. If the mother is, like the sun, dependable, calm, warm and comforting, the child grows strong and well in mind and spirit. If the mother is undependable, cross, or lacking in affectionate warmth, if she forgets or doesn't understand how dependent her little child is on her words and ways, his mental health suffers.

So, mothers of small children, take the sun for your teacher. Being human, you may go under the clouds, some days, but make it your habit to shine most of the time and see how your child will thrive!

Suggestions for teaching your child correct names for parts and functions of the body are contained in the Sex Education booklet. This booklet is sent out by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

X-Ray Study Reveals Various Diseases of Ancient Egyptians

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 14.—(AP)—What is said to be one of the first serious attempts by medical men to peer into the mysteries of the ills of the ancient Egyptians through the use of the X-ray is being pursued in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

The study is being made by Dr. J. Gershon-Cohen, assisted by Dr. Harry Shay, both of the department of radiology of the graduate hospital of the university.

Although mummies have been X-rayed before, the work has usually been done by technicians and not by medical men, it is said, and as a result previous work in this field has seldom, if ever, had a medical interpretation.

X-rays of the mummies' feet are the most interesting in that while they reveal that the ancients did not suffer malformations from tight shoes or other footwear, yet the place where the sandal straps passed across the foot caused a contraction which shows even now.

THIS WOMAN LOST 35 LBS. OF FAT

Miss M. Katner of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Have used Kruschen for the past 4 months and have not only lost 35 pounds but feel so much better in every way. Even for people who don't care to reduce, Kruschen is wonderful to keep the system healthy. I being a nurse should know for I've tried so many things but only Kruschen answered all purposes." (May 12, 1932).

TO lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drugstore in America. BRITTEN URGES MEDAL OF HONOR FOR GEN. DUNLAP

Marine Officer Died Saving French Woman.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap of the marine coprs, who gave his life two years ago to save a French peasant woman caught in a landslide near Paris, was urged in the house today by Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.].

Mr. Britten introduced a resolution asking that a bronze tablet bearing a replica of the congressional medal be placed upon Gen. Dunlap's grave in Arlington national cemetery. He pointed out that the French government, in conjunction with an American veterans' organization, already has participated in ceremonies honoring the marine officer's gallantry. A monument to Gen. Dunlap was unveiled at the spot where he made the supreme sacrifice, Mr. Britten stated, with representatives of every department of the French government taking part in the unveiling.

Recalls Dunlap's Heroism.

Reviewing the story of Brig. Gen. Dunlap's heroism, Representative Britten said:

"Gen. Dunlap was assigned to duty at the French war college, Paris, in February, 1931. In May, 1932, he was killed at La Fariniere, a village about ten miles from Paris, while attempting to save a peasant woman who had been trapped by a landslide.

"The woman's life was saved. A French board of inquest which convened at Paris on the following day found that a rocky cliff about fifty feet high had crushed in over a cave which was being used as a milk house or dairy and into which Mme. Briant, a servant in the house, had gone.

"Her cries for help immediately brought Gen. Dunlap, who proceeded to extricate her from under a mass of rocks and earth. While so engaged another slide occurred, this time pinning Dunlap under a huge block weighing about ten tons. After twenty-four hours of excavation and rescue work the body of Dunlap was recovered in a crouching position, his back against the falling mass. He had saved the woman, but had made the great sacrifice."

Other Honors Bestowed.

For his meritorious and conspicuous services with the 17th field artillery in France during the world war, said Representative Britten, Gen. Dunlap was awarded a citation certificate by the commander in chief of the American expeditionary force. He also was awarded the navy cross and the French Croix de Guerre for his services during the Argonne-Meuse campaign. For his services in Nicaragua he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by the President of the United States and the Medal of Merit by the president of Nicaragua.

LEGION OF HONOR DENIED CASH FOR 90,000 MEDALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Relations between the grand chancellory of the Legion of Honor and the ministry of finance a few blocks up the Seine are very strained because the ministry of finance is preventing the chancellery from carrying out its task of decorating people—90,000 people, to be exact.

The trouble is over 90,000 military medals which the Legion of Honor heads are supposed to bestow, but which they can't because the ministry of finance won't come across with the money to stamp the medals and print the accompanying diplomas.

Parliament Started Row.

Parliament, in a weak moment, started it. Back in July, 1931, anxious to get away on its summer vacation, parliament voted without debate an economy measure cutting out expenses on military decorations of the Legion of Honor, and ever since then the Legion's entire crop of awards has been tied up.

Shortly after parliament voted the economy measure the Legion applied to the ministry of finance in the regular manner for funds to provide the decorations for its 1931 list. But the ministry pointed to parliament's action and said "nothing doing." The Legion pointed out that parliament simply intended to suppress certain honorariums that had gone with the military medals and couldn't possibly have meant to eliminate the medals themselves. The ministry of finance rebutted with the statement that the law said there should be no expenses for military medals and that they were deeply grieved at their inability to hand any money over to the Legion.

Ministry Stands Pat.

The ministry has stood pat for a year and a half, and parliament has had other things to do, while the harassed gentlemen at the Legion of Honor have not only daily received polite reminders that they owe a lot of people medals, but, what is more alarming, their list of undecorated recipients of the military medal is constantly getting bigger.

According to the Legion, it is a matter of between 80,000,000 and 100,000,000 francs for medals and diplomas, as follows: Thirty-five thousand francs for 1931, 35,000 francs for 1932, 10,000 francs for 1933, and 10,000 francs that they have to worry about already for 1934.

The controversy was stirred up anew recently, not only by the fact that the beginning of the year is decorating time at the Legion of Honor, but also because of the ministry of finance aroused its ire by declaring it was a small matter—only about 9,000 decorations. The Legion hotly denied this and dragged out its enormous rolls of intended decorations to prove how wrong the ministry was and how little it knew about the situation.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The prince of Wales, who has driven locomotives and learned to fly, tried his hand for the first time today at piloting a subway train 40 miles an hour over two miles of a new extension.

The occasion for the royal tutelage as a motorman was the inauguration of new equipment for the extension. Among the improvements are a nonjerking train and a deep trough between the station and tracks to prevent would-be suicides from dying beneath trains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 14.—An attack was made today on guards at the Armagh prison, where Mrs. Hannah Sheehy-Skeffington, who is serving a month for attending a political meeting at Newry in defiance of an Ulster government order, is confined.

Shots fired by the attackers went wild. Police, fearing an attempted jail delivery doubled the strength of the guards. The assailants escaped.

Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington is the widow of an Irish republican leader who was executed following the Easter rebellion of 1916. She later became prominent as a republican leader herself and had close connections with Eamon de Valera, now president of the Irish Free State.

Pays Interest on 7 Cents with 1½ Ounces of Cotton

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Solving the problem of paying interest on 7 cents, E. P. H. Roberts, Muskogee county farmer, today sent the St. Louis Seed Loan office an ounce and a half of cotton, valued on the basis of spot quotations at 4 1-3 mills, the amount of interest due. Roberts got a letter from the office, informing him the 7 cents plus 5 per cent interest was due on a 1931 loan.

Lawrenceville, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—An inquest into the death of Dorothy Adams, 19, orphan, whose scantily clad body was found in a park at Bridgeport yesterday, was postponed until tomorrow.

The police meanwhile sought "Doc" Ullom, proprietor of a roadhouse visited by the girl before her death. Dale Montgomery, 19, of Lawrenceville told of a fight at Ullom's Saturday night.

Mexican Telegraph and Radio Tied Up by Strike

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 14.—(AP)—National Telegraph employés walked out this afternoon, completely tying up the government telegraph and radio system. The move was in protest against the proposed combination of telegraph and postal systems which, the telegraphers maintain, would eliminate many telegraph employés. The combination was planned as an economy move.

"Corporate city employees can now make purchases with payroll identification and receipt vouchers. Make application to our credit offices."

SURGEONS CITE PUNISHMENT IN CARNERA FIGHT

Examiner Fails to Agree; Bar Primo.

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—The death of Ernie Schaaf, the Boston heavyweight, who passed away at 4:10 o'clock this morning in Polyclinic hospital, where he had been lying partly paralyzed and almost continuously unconscious since he was knocked out in Madison Square Garden by Primo Carnera on Friday night, was due to natural causes and not from the pounding of the giant Italian's fists. Medical Examiner Charles Norris made this announcement today following an autopsy. At the same time District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain and the state athletic commission began inquiries into his death.

The situation was further confused when Dr. Benjamin M. Vance, assistant medical examiner, the man who performed the autopsy, told reporters that he had not yet been able to determine whether Schaaf's death was caused by a blow struck in the fight or by an injury to the brain sustained before the bout. It will be impossible to learn this for several days, he said.

The death certificate which Dr Vance signed said:

Carnera Can't Meet Sharkey.

Whether Carnera was responsible for Schaaf's death or the victim of circumstances, he was practically ruled out as a future heavyweight champion by the state athletic commission at a meeting this afternoon.

Commissioner William Muldoon said he would not be permitted to meet Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship, as he had expected to do after his victory over Schaaf, and that hereafter he will be permitted to fight only super-heavyweights like himself—men at least 220 pounds in weight and 6 feet 2 inches tall.

Schaaf died of intra-cranial pressure resulting from a hemorrhage. He was operated upon in Polyclinic hospital yesterday afternoon and remained in a coma until his death. The four physicians who attended the operation said that he was undoubtedly killed by the punishment he took from Carnera before he was knocked out in the thirteenth round.

Medical Examiner Disagrees.

But Dr. Norris said:

"There is absolutely no evidence that Schaaf died as a result of injuries received in the bout. Death resulted from pressure by a substance within the cranium, the nature of which will have to be determined by microscopic analysis.

"There was considerable evidence of cranial pressure, but there is little sign of injury. He had a slight bruise over the right eye and a very minute bruise on the surface of the brain under the skull on the right side. This bruise did not appear to be the cause of death."

The pressure on the right side of the brain which controls the left side of the body caused the paralysis of Schaaf's left side, which became apparent as soon as he had been carried unconscious to the hospital, Dr. Norris said.

When Dr. Norris' announcement was made Carnera already had gone to the district attorney's office and in his broken English had told Assistant District Attorney James A. Daly of the homicide bureau about the circumstances preceding his entrance into the ring.

Says Bandages Were Examined.

He said that the bandages on his hands and his huge boxing gloves had been examined by a boxing commission inspector and by Schaaf's manager, Johnny Buckley.

The boxing commission started its inquiry late this afternoon. Gov. Lehman said in Albany this morning that he had ordered this second investigation and that he would say nothing further until the facts concerning Schaaf's death are established.

Carnera was in New Jersey this morning when the manager of the Hotel Victoria, where he stops while

Recalls Schaaf's Collapse After Bout with Baer

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, Pacific coast heavyweight boxer, informed of the death of Ernie Schaaf, today recalled the Baer-Schaaf fight which was held at Chicago Stadium last August.

Schaaf, after being saved from being counted out at the end of the ten round bout, went to his dressing room and collapsed, Hoffman said.

"Schaaf ran into a punch in the closing seconds of the match. Neither fighter had taken severe punishment and Schaaf had since staged a great comeback," said Hoffman.

EVEN SCHAAF CASE BRINGS NOTHING NEW TO FIGHTING

An Investigation Would Be Useless

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Feb. 14.—Following the death of Ernie Schaaf, a member of the New York state legislature announces that he will demand the repeal of the law permitting prize fights and the Madison Square Garden corporation decides to subordinate the ennobling sport henceforth on the ground that it has ceased to interest the customers in the old way.

Professional prize fighting in New York, which is the capital of the game, seems to have completed another cycle. It is necessary to outlaw the racket every so often in all the state because it is an incorrigible rogue among the activities which are rather loosely classified as sports. It may be just naturally due for another term of pining and remorse.

Not only have the profits dwindled almost to nothing, but the boys have not kept in mind all the fine promises that were made to the Hon. James J. Walker, then a state senator, when he arose at a luncheon at the old Waldorf about a dozen years ago and, placing his hand over his heart, vowed to kill it with his own loving hands if they did not keep it innocent and clean.

The Schaaf tragedy really has no bearing on the situation except that it may be argued that any game in which a man may be publicly beaten to death is not good for the citizens. It just happened that the circumstances attending the death of Schaaf were unusually bitter. Some of the customers booed him as he lay on the floor last Friday evening, beaten down by Primo Carnera, who outweighed him by more than fifty pounds, and skepticism was rife for various reasons, which may be summed up as the neglect and incompetence of the prize fight commission.

The customers had been deceived many times before, and the prize fight commission, far from exerting its absolute powers to rebuke and drive out fakers and swindling gamblers, in conspicuous cases, had permitted them to continue operations. The most notorious fixer and faker that the sport business has produced since the days of the Mabray gang, the agent who engineered the world series fake of 1919, holds a license issued by the New York prize fight commission at this time and, on past occasions, has been seen at work as a second for Primo Carnera in Madison Square Garden.

It should cause no surprise that now and again a man dies from being beaten on the head in prize fights, for the object of the game is to knock the other fellow unconscious. It is not good sense to suppose that ten or fifteen rounds of punching on the head delivered by an opponent weighing from 185 to 250 pounds will do the recipient any good.

Fighters also have been induced not to exert themselves, and in one historic case a young man from Chicago looked down the barrel of a gun just as he was about to leave his dressing room to fight a New York champion. He was requested to behave, and of course he did behave very nicely, going down and out without any unnecessary delay. Then, rather oddly, the Chicago athlete was forbidden to fight any more, although the victor and the racketeers behind him were allowed to retain their credentials and continue operations.

But it would cost much money to investigate the prize fight racket and the results would be unimportant. Those citizens who do take an interest in professional prize fighting know in a general way all the matters that would be proved by an inquiry and nobody else cares.

When the grand old game which all red blooded sportsmen hold dear, as Mr. Walker described it, was restored just after the war it had been illegal for some years. The devil a saint would be. The champions fought regularly and business was brisk. But at the present time there are only two champions—Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate. On the whole, it might be all for the best to give the boys another layoff for the good of the grand old game, or perhaps it would be better just to let it die of its own diseases.

Johnny Gagnon, recently fined for poor play, opened with a goal in 58 seconds and the Canadiens rushed the Wings off their feet to score three more in the first period. Gagnon also got an assist later in the game.

The Canadiens' scoring was spread among Gagnon, Hugo Harrington, Albert Luduc, Sylvio Mantha, Wildor Larochelle and Aurel Joliat. Only Laurie Aurie and Herb Lewis could slip through for Detroit scores. Lineups:

BRUINS, 7; MAPLE LEAFS, 2

Boston, Mass., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The world champion Toronto Maple Leafs, playing their last game of the regular National league hockey season at the Boston garden, tonight were overwhelmed 7 to 2 by the Boston Bruins. It has been four years since Toronto has won a game on this surface. The Leafs were disorganized until the last five minutes of play, when Goalie Tiny Thompson turned back their determined four man rushes. Alex Smith started the Boston scoring in 74 seconds with a shot from just over the blue line. Marty Barry scored twice and the other Boston goals were supplied by Nels Stewart, Red Beattie, Dit Clapper, and Harry Oliver. Frank Clancy scored for Toronto in the first period and Red Horner in the third, just after he leaped from the box after serving his fourth penalty of the game.

RANGERS, 3; SENATORS, 1

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The New York Rangers broke a three game losing streak in the National Hockey league tonight by defeating the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 1. The victory put the Rangers into a tie with the Detroit Red Wings for first place in the American division.

The Rangers jumped into a two goal lead in the first period as Bun Cook and Cecil Dillon ripped through to score in less than seven minutes. Frank Boucher added a third goal early in the second period. Bill Touhey scored for Ottawa just before the finish.

AS RING TIME NEARS IN AMATEUR BATTLES

Fighters awaiting their call to action look over the ring and capacity crowd at the second night of battling in the west section Golden Gloves trials at Guyon's Paradise ballroom. Tonight at the same arena the best novices and open division fighters will be sifted out to continue their quest for boxing fame in the Tournament of Champions. Come early! [TRIBUNE Photos.]

"Help a pal?" "Sure," replies Edward Finn, a featherweight entrant, and he winds tape around the fists of Victor Percy, who competed in the 118 pound class.

Down for Nine Count at Start, Then He Tears Into Opponent

BY ARCH WARD.

The most dramatic bout of the west section Golden Gloves bouts last night was provided by Ray Passo and Frank Fant, both unattached. Immediately after the opening bell, Fant knocked down Passo with a right to the jaw. Passo took a nine count and sailed into his foe with a volley of lefts and rights that put Fant down and out.

Probably the tallest amateur boxer in the world made his appearance last night. He was Victor Karpus, a gasoline station attendant, who fought in the open heavyweight division. He is 6 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds.

The oldest entrant in the west side trials is Mike Bonfizlio, 30 year old middleweight. He had engaged in only two bouts previous to his Golden Gloves debut. He trained for the tournament by digging ditches for the city.

Among the ring siders were two former Golden Gloves champions, Barney Ross and Paul Dazzo. They are now fighting as professionals.

The staff of seven physicians in attendance at all Golden Glove shows last night refused to pass 12 boys. John Irwin and Chester Maize were turned down because of heart murmurs. E. Taylor had a hand injury, and A. Gusk a cut over his eye. Joseph Mirrable, who recently reached the semi-finals of another amateur tournament; Francis Eagan, Paul Paulos, E. Lane, Roy Kinsella, and Pat Sullivan were rejected for various physical defects. Ray Hoehn and M. Marsynski were disqualified because of defective hearing.

The first to report for physical examination yesterday was Robert Pinckney, novice light heavyweight. Pinckney, as salesman for an Oak Park glass company, checked in at 4:20, was examined and then returned to work. He was back at Guyon's to fight at 8 o'clock.

Boys living south of 79th street will get their chance at Golden Gloves tomorrow night when the far south trials open at the Roseland State theater, Michigan avenue and 110th place.

212 M.P.H. Is Just Test Run for Campbell

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell of England sent his trim Bluebird racing car roaring over the ocean beach course here today at a speed well in excess of 200 miles an hour on a test run made preliminary to an official assault on his own world land speed record of 253 miles an hour.

Although the 48 year old British driver was clocked at a speed of 212.63 miles an hour over a two kilometer route, he said afterward his instruments showed he attained a peak of between 230 and 240 miles an hour on his only run of the day.

Whether he will make an official trial for a new world record tomorrow, Campbell said, will be contingent upon the ability of mechanics to make certain adjustments to the 2,500 horse power car. He said the machine performed "wonderfully well" under the conditions, but that several alterations would be necessary.

Taking only a three mile rolling start, Campbell flashed across the two kilometer route in 21.04 seconds. Two kilometers is about a mile and a quarter.

Somewhere within that distance, Campbell said his tachometer, or engine speed indicator, showed a peak speed of between 230 and 240 miles an hour for a few seconds, and then he cut off the motor.

CORBETT SPENDS RESTLESS DAY; STRENGTH EBBS

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—James J. Corbett, former world's heavyweight champion, was reported to be in a very weakened condition tonight at his home in Bayside, Queens. His doctors said he had spent a restless day and that they doubted if he had sufficient strength left to live more than, at best, a few days more.

"He looks worse than he has been since he became ill," a friend said. Corbett has been critically ill with a heart ailment for two weeks.

"We expect a great year," said Tris. "It may be tough sledding for a short time, but it's a good baseball town and we have a great bunch of players."

The quest for Golden Gloves in the west sectional Chicago tournament went on last night at Guyon's Paradise before a crowd of 2,000 for more than four hours. Once again the series of elimination bouts was held in two rings. Tonight 32 amateur boxers, 16 in the open division and 16 in the novice division, will qualify for the Tournament of Champions. All tickets again will sell for 60 cents.

These novices will continue the struggle for city championships against boys from the far south, west and north sections. The 16 west side champions in the open class, all of whom will receive gold medals tonight, will help represent Chicago against the 22 teams invading Chicago Feb. 27 from seven central states.

Keane Stops Hassen.

The first match last night brought together John Keane of the Rogers Park Athletic club and Nathan Hassen, unattached. It was an even battle for two rounds, but Hassen tired in the third. Referee Davie Miller promptly stopped the bout when it appeared that Hassen was unable to defend himself.

The early part of the program consisted principally of bouts between novice fighters. A novice in Golden Gloves is a boy who never has won more than one match in previous Golden Gloves, Central A. A. U. or Catholic Youth tournaments. The fans applauded the work of the inexperienced boys enthusiastically.

The staff of physicians disqualified several entrants last night as they had the night before. Each boy must pass a rigid examination and be in perfect condition before he is permitted to box the two minute rounds.

Tonight's west side finals will begin at 8 o'clock. Approximately 50 matches will be held. No boy, however, will be permitted to fight more than twice. All boys still in the tournament must report at 6:30 for physical examinations.

Far South Fights Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night the far south eliminations open at the State theater, 110th place and Michigan avenue. One hundred and seventy-six amateurs are eligible to compete. One ring only will be used.

On Monday the Golden Gloves campaign will open at Loyola university. For three nights, in two rings, the novices and more experienced boxers will seek qualifying berths in the Tournament of Champions. The south side trials will open at White City next Wednesday and continue through Friday. Thus, for the first time, Golden Gloves bouts will be held simultaneously on two sides of the city.

Steve Dusek, west side lightweight, who two years ago qualified for the Tournament of Champions as a featherweight, was the first contestant in the open division to reach the ring. Dusek drew a tough youngster in Harold Brown of the Denemark Athletic club and he needed three rounds to win the decision.

The first two minute session was very fast with Dusek getting a slight advantage. Steve also had a lead in the next two rounds, but each was in this city, telephoned him the news of his opponent's death. Immediately he came here and went to his room on the fourteenth floor of the hotel, waiting for the police to come.

Statement of Carnera.

Shortly after three detectives had come for him, he issued the following statement:

"The management of Hotel Victoria advised me this morning of the death of Ernie Schaaf. I was indeed surprised and greatly shocked. He was a very fine young man and a clean sportsman. I wish to extend my profound sympathy to his mother and the rest of his family."

Carnera sent Schaaf's parents a telegram expressing his sympathy, but he said he would not attend the funeral, which will be held Friday from the Boston home of the fighter's parents Frederick Ernest and Lucy Schaaf.

"The patient stood up well and was able to move his left arm, which was previously paralyzed. The patient's condition is still critical," their bulletin at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon said.

The 26 year old fighter remained in a coma all night. At midnight Buckley, who had never left the hospital since his man was carried there from the Garden, was told that Schaaf was dying. A priest was called and the unconscious man was given extreme unction.

From midnight until 3 o'clock there was little change in Schaaf's condition, but then he began to sink so rapidly that his parents and two sisters, May Schaaf and Mrs. Florence Sullivan, were summoned with Buckley and Schaaf's physician, R. William V. Healy. They watched the fighter's life flicker out.

Calls Off Fight Friday.

Jimmy Johnston, who made the Carnera-Schaaf match, announced cancellation of the heavyweight fight between King Levinsky and Johnny Risko at the Garden next Friday, and he said of Schaaf's death, "It is the most terrible thing that ever happened in boxing," he said.

Dr. Byron Stookey, the brain specialist who acted as spokesman for the four physicians who participated in the unsuccessful operation, describing Schaaf's injury, said:

CONTINUE ZUZIAK INQUEST

The inquest into the death of Henry Zuziak, amateur boxer who died yesterday morning a few hours after participating in a Golden Gloves bout at Guyon's ballroom, has been continued until March 10.

HENRY ZUZIAK.

Zuziak, who lost the match to Al Berg of the Catholic Youth Organization on a technical knockout in the second round, died at his home, 921 North Damen avenue, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. He had won the first round of his bout, but was floored early in the second round. He arose immediately, but after he was knocked down again the referee stopped the bout. Officials had been instructed to end any contest that was one sided.

Zuziak, who had passed a rigid physical examination before being admitted to the meet, said he felt fine after the match and remained in the building with a friend, George Hoffman, for half an hour to watch the remaining bouts. He complained of a headache after taking a glass of water and went home, accompanied by Hoffman and Stephen Fugiel, 820 North Wood street, who had served as his second.

After telling about his match to his father, John Zuziak, he went to bed. A physician was summoned when his condition became alarming, but the boy died before the doctor arrived. The body was removed to the Michalik undertaking rooms, 1056 West Chicago avenue.

WAKE LETTER BOX.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Dear Mr. Woodruff: Although I thanked THE TRIBUNE and you personally at the time of the presentation of THE TRIBUNE Silver Football and the white gold football, watch fob size, I'd like to express more formal appreciation of this great honor.

I do believe that Gil Berry may have been done an injustice in view of the fact that the voting was so close and that he played on a losing while I played on a winning team. So I am glad that he, too, received the small white gold football as a recognition of his great worth to the Illini. Sincerely, Harry Newman.

Editor's Note—This year each player selected by Big Ten teammates as their most valuable player during the season received from THE TRIBUNE a white gold football as lasting recognition of their sportsmanship and prowess. The winner among these ten, Harry Newman, received the annual Silver Football, actual size.

Remember back about five or six years ago when George Ade invited the Forty club and their guests to spend a day at his home at Brook, Ind.? We went down on the morning train, played a round over his private golf course, then were served a wonderful lunch. Sweet corn was in season and a loop bank president won the prize for eating the most ears [36]. I think you shot a very good game that day, for I was in a foursome following yours.

At night after dinner the boys repaired to the little depot to take the return train. To work off the effect of the corn [not Ade's, but some they brought along] they started throwing golf balls at the windows of the grain elevator across from the depot. Quite a few townspeople gathered to watch them and to hear them sing "Down on the Farm." A little old lady, standing near Perry Smithers and me, remarked, "George Ade is certainly entertaining a lot of 'nobuddies' today."

Some of the "nobuddies" there that day who have since gone west were Wilbur Nesbit, Snake Ames, and Wilbur Blessing. E. E. P.

I wonder if Helper George H. Hart remembers the Eagle hotel, located opposite the old North Western depot at Kinzie and Canal in 1871 or knew the proprietor thereof. Also the excessively stout woman who conducted a sort of haberdashery and notion store at 33 West Kinzie, and the owners of the property, the Gilmores and Gilberts. "August" had a tobacco store near by. Mrs. M. M.

Bob Welch Passes.

Robert L. [Bob] Welch passed away at his home Monday. Present day sport loop hounds have not seen much of Bob because of his exacting duties as head of Spalding's sporting goods factory. Back in 1895 to 1912, however, he was very much in the public eye, first as a bicycle rider for the old Englewood Wheelmen in the late '90s, and later as president of the Indoor Baseball League of America. He was best known here, perhaps, as owner and manager of the Spalding semi-pro baseball and indoor baseball teams. The latter once took

Londos to Meet Stecher Again on Stadium Mat

Jim Londos, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship, and Joe Stecher, former titleholder who is now in the process of making a comeback and who wrestled Londos to a draw at the Coliseum on Jan. 18, will meet again at the Chicago Stadium, according to an announcement by Promoter Doc Krone. The date for the match has been set for March 3.

Stecher's performance against Londo at the Coliseum, where he earned the decision in the opinion of a majority of the crowd, made the signing of both for a second meeting only a matter of time. A crowd of more than 10,000 packed the Coliseum to witness the bout, several hundred being turned away for lack of adequate seating capacity.

The bout at the Stadium will be Krone's second promotional venture in the west side structure. Two years ago he conducted one match there—the meeting between Londos and Kola Kwariani, Russian grappler, who drew a gate of $35,000. Capacity crowds at the Rainbo Fronton, Broadway armory, and Coliseum prompted his decision to move to the Stadium once more, he said yesterday.

URGE HOSPITAL INSURANCE FOR $10 ANNUAL FEE

Association Trustees Give Approval to Plan.

Trustees of the American Hospital association yesterday indorsed a plan for hospital insurance for employed persons of limited means, through which they would be entitled to hospital care in event of illness by paying an annual fee of $10.

The association trustees adopted a resolution approving the plan at a meeting in their headquarters at 18 East Division street. The plan was explained and proposed for general adoption last night by Dr. Herman Smith, superintendent of the Michael Reese hospital, in an address before the congress on medical education and licensure in the Palmer house.

Following Dr. Smith's address Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, spoke in opposition to the plan.

Outlines "Chicago Plan."

Dr. Smith said the project, which he called "the Chicago plan," would be similar to those now in effect in fifteen American cities, notably San Antonio, Tex., where individuals may pay $9 a year to a common fund which assures them of twenty-one days of hospital care any time during the year.

He enumerated principal benefits of the plan as follows:

1. Elimination from the family budget of unexpected and therefore relatively large hospital bills and consequent financial difficulty.

2. Relief of a considerable portion of free care now charged to private philanthropy or public charity by allowing the small wage earner to pay his hospital costs.

3. Decreased expenditures for hospital service by tax supported bodies.

4. An assured income for hospitals.

The fundamental basis for such a plan, Dr. Smith said, is that it must be a community project and not a scheme to enrich hospitals or promoters. In the Chicago plan the fund collected would pay only the cost of hospital care for individuals, plus reserves which would be built up for emergencies such as epidemics. Surpluses would be returned to members in the form of lowered payments. He expressed the hope that all of the Chicago hospitals now members of the association would enter into the plan.

Fishbein Opposes Plan.

In opposition to the plan Dr. Fishbein described hospital insurance plans such as the one proposed as "undependable and inadequately safeguarded."

Dr. Fishbein pointed out that one million beds in 7,000 hospitals in the United States average 33 per cent idle and that nurses are largely unemployed. "There are plenty of physicians, plenty of nurses, probably plenty of hospitals for all the needs of today," he said. "There is no serious oversupply. Let us correct distribution, let us revaluate services, but let us not be drawn into any scheme of expansion or inflation at what must be a temporary economic condition."

At an earlier session of the congress the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, dean of the medical school of St. Louis university, urged the physicians and surgeons at the meeting to retain traditional ethics.

Members of the council of the Chicago Medical society at a meeting last night voted to outlaw as "unethical" the newly established United Medical Service, Inc., 25 East Jackson boulevard.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Prices of speculative leaders, especially among the rails, dropped from 1 to 5 points, and trading volume neared the peak for a year or more as professional traders and the investing public alike were selling.

Speculative positions in bonds, accumulated in recent weeks of steadily rising prices, were dumped upon the market by professional traders, who are wary of carrying large holdings through a period of unsettlement. Bids for high grade bonds, including United States government, state and municipal issues, were withdrawn.

Rails Hardest Hit.

The railroad group, bid up during the market advance on the prospect of favorable developments, was hardest hit in the liquidation. Selling converged upon bonds which have advanced the farthest, with little consideration apparently given to differences of merit between various issues.

It is felt that selling of bonds, already on a substantial scale, might come from any one of various sources Thus, banks outside of Michigan, but having funds on deposit with Michigan banks, might deem it advisable to liquidate other assets, including bonds, in order to insure a liquid position.

Treasury Issues Decline.

While rail bonds were bearing the brunt of selling, price declines in United States governments extended to a half-point in long term treasuries and to several thirty-seconds in short dated obligations. Foreign bonds though sympathetically sharing the general decline, were most immune.

Some of the rail bonds to suffer sharp declines were Baltimore and Ohio 4½s and 5s, Chesapeake corporation 5s, Chicago and North Western debenture 5s, Great Northern 7s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Pennsylvania railroad 5s, issues of Southern railway, Southern Pacific and many others.

URGES RADICAL CHANGES AMONG U. S. RAILROADS

'Coolidge' Group's Report Made.

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—In a report that hewed aggressively into railroad problems which have been accumulating since the passage of the transportation act of 1920, the national transportation committee recommended today a series of policies. Included in the recommendations were consolidation, reform by the railroads of their financial and operating methodr, drastic amendment of the rate making section of the law, relaxation of government subsidy of waterways, and regulation of all forms of transport competitive to the railroads.

The committee was organized on Oct. 7 at the behest of savings banks insurance companies, and colleges under the chairmanship of the late Calvin Coolidge to investigate the condition of the railroads and transportation generally. Its other members are Bernard M. Baruch, vice chairman; former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Alexander Legge, former head of the farm board and president of the International Harvester company, and Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution.

Baruch Acting Chairman.

Mr. Coolidge died on Jan. 7 after the committee had nearly completed its research. Retaining the position of vice chairman, Mr. Baruch thenceforward presided over the group.

"Just as the committee's work was nearing a close," said the introduction to the report, "it lost the distinguished director of its deliberations who was giving his great talents unsparingly to this work. The report had not taken form at the time of his death, but the committee has tried to carry on in the spirit of his leadership."

The report takes the form of a statement signed by Messrs. Baruch, Howell, and Legge, and a "supplemental report" signed by Mr. Smith.

"While I am in substantial agreement with the greater part of the committee report," said Mr. Smith in his introduction, "this supplementary memorandum states my conclusions in my own language, placing the emphasis where I think it belongs."

Emergency Recommendations.

1. Corporate reorganization, aided by revisions of the bankruptcy law such as are included in measures now before congress.

2. Retroactive repeal of the recapture clause of the transportation act under which prosperous roads were required to contribute from surplus earnings to weaker companies.

3. Ending of the rule of rate making which requires costly and cumbersome "valuations" of railroad properties and the substitution of a simpler requirement designed to give an adequate return to well managed companies.

4. Interpretation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation law to permit the government to extend loans to railroads based on "adequate security" rather than "marketable collateral," it being held that the government's commitment should be insured by priority of lien or earnings prospects.

Smith Makes Exceptions.

Mr. Smith agreed with his colleagues as to the repeal of the recapture clause and he favored a "debtor relief act" to expedite recapitalizations which would expire on Jan. 1, 1935, but said:

"I cannot recommend as an emergency measure immediate need of action by congress to make a new statutory rule of rate making, nor that the present powers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make loans to railroads should be extended or materially changed."

On valuation as a basis for rate making, however, Mr. Smith makes some incisive remarks:

"The present cost theory would tend to put the seal of approval on existing chaotic and wasteful railroad organization," said Mr. Smith. He cited the cost of valuation and the "complete breakdown of the formula, and asks:

"Suppose that just a little common sense had been substituted for all this scientific hash, this maze of regulation and red tape?"

Mr. Smith recommended the replacement of the interstate commerce commission by "a new department headed by one man or a one man bureau head in the department of commerce."

The other members of the committee recommended that the commission be continued, but, relieved of certain duties described as obsolete and charged with new functions, such as regulation of forms of transport other than railroads.

Asserting that "parallel [railroad] lines are wasteful and unnecessary," the main report holds that:

"Regional consolidations should be hastened, and, where necessary, enforced, looking eventually to a single national system with regional divisions and the elimination of all excess and obsolete lines and equipment."

Protection Still Available.

Even if the railroads still had a monopoly of transport, the report contends, the powers of the interstate commerce commission insure the public's protection in consolidation.

This lack of monopoly, it is held, makes it unnecessary for the government to support competing forms of transportation. Inland waterways are justified only when they are self-supporting, it is contended, and it recommends that the proposed St. Lawrence waterway "should be tested by this rule of self-support, and if it fails in that test the pending treaty with Canada should not be ratified."

The report asserts that the government owned inland Waterways corporation is not self-supporting, if the accounting methods used for the

FARMER LEADER SEES NO VIRTUE IN "ALLOTMENT"

BY HOWARD WOOD.

One of the liveliest topics of discussion in the live stock industry just now is the recent testimony of J. R. Howard before the senate committee on agriculture on the allotment bill.

JAS. R. HOWARD.

J. R. Howard was the first president of the American Farm Bureau federation, the organization which has been one of the chief sponsors of the allotment bill.

But Mr. Howard does not see eye to eye with the federation on this plan for farm relief, for he is also an Iowa farmer and a hog raiser.

"Last week," he told the senate committee, "we were on the Chicago market with a consignment of hogs and lambs fed on the farm, and went in with them on the stock train.

39 to 1 Against It.

"There is no better place to get a cross section of intelligent opinion of producers than in a live stock caboose. There were 41 stockmen on that train. Most of them were more or less familiar with this act. Thirty-nine were opposed to it, one was noncommital, and one was lukewarm in its favor."

He goes on to say that the framers of the bill, in drafting it, have overlooked one essential thing concerning production—that is the easy substitution of one crop for another.

"Let me refer you specifically to my own farm as an illustration," he said. "I normally grow 200 to 250 acres of corn. A 20 per cent reduction would be approximately 40 acres.

"I have a full equipment of tillage tools and plenty of horses. I could plant this field to potatoes and probably grow 200 bushels to the acre. If I did and other Iowa farmers did the same we would be in violent competition with Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Idaho, and many other states.

Could Grow Beans or Beef.

"I could grow beans, tomatoes, or sweet corn, which products are unexportable, but I would meet the same competitive results as in potatoes.

"I could sow this field to a heavy seeding of grains and other grasses and plants that will make quick maturing pasture. I never heard of an exportable surplus of pasture. On this I could run calves and sheep. But in that event I would produce as much food products as if I grew corn. The farm situation would not be relieved.

"Many of the farmers with whom I have talked think the government will send under the operation of this act some impractical government employé to tell me what to grow on my field.

"I don't quite read this in the bill myself, but if such a thing should happen I'd show him the gate in a hurry. I do see in this bill the opening wedge of government interference—the essence of socialism, if you please."

Might Wreck Market.

Mr. Howard said that he had no affiliation with any miller or meat packer, that for fifteen years he had been on the opposite side of many issues affecting the mutual relations of farmers and packers, but that he agrees with the packers' contention that under the terms of the act a condition might develop that would cause the hog market to become utterly stagnate.

"This bill," he contended, "could not operate short of three or four inspectors for every agricultural county in America. The cost of the accounting with processors and collection of fees would be enormous. I should like to have a definite statement of these costs to take back to my neighbors.

VAST REFUNDING OF U. S. ISSUES UP TO TREASURY

Over 11 Billion Bonds Callable Soon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—More than half of the $20,907,000,000 outstanding public debt either matures or becomes callable during this year, according to treasury department records made public today.

Exactly 55 per cent, or $11,349,700,000, of the debt matures or can be called before 1934, and the task of refinancing this huge block of securities confronts the next secretary of the treasury. Two outstanding bond issues, all bills and certificates, and two issues of notes will be eligible for refunding.

Besides handling all these issues the new secretary will have to float new borrowing to cover the treasury's deficit unless the budget is balanced promptly. He will probably have the unpleasant duty of pushing the outstanding public debt over the 21 billion dollar mark.

Two War Loans Involved.

More than half of the potential refinancing for the year is made up of two great war-time bond issues. The Fourth Liberty loan, amounting to $6,300,000,000, becomes callable on Oct. 15, and $1,933,200,000 of the converted First Liberty loan has been callable since last year.

If the treasury launches any refunding of long term issues in the hope of cutting interest rates it will give its first attention to the fourth Liberty loan, which is the largest outstanding bond issue and which matures in 1938. The First Liberty loan, beside being smaller, does not mature until 1947.

Second in importance to the handling of the bonds is the refunding of part of the short term debt into a new bond issue. Approximately $6,200,000,000 of the total public debt is in short term securities and the treasury's operations in the money markets would be facilitated if these frequent maturities could be mounted up into one big issue.

Large Short Term Issues.

The new secretary will have ample opportunity to start the mopping up immediately, because approximately $3,148,400,000 of the short term debt matures this year. If annual maturities of short term issues continued to be this large they would impede work on bonds.

Included in the 1933 short term maturities are all of the outstanding treasury bills and certificates. The certificates amount to $2,284,400,000 and the bills to $641,900,000. Notes amounting to $222,100,000 become callable. The next large maturity is $660,700,000 of certificates and $33,606,000 of anti-hoarding certificates, which mature March 15.

Treasury officials, hoping for a reduction in the 4¼ per cent interest rate which the Liberty loan carries are anxious to start refunding it. They have repeatedly urged a balanced budget with its assurance of no more government borrowing as a basis of operation. They foretell great advantages to security markets, industry, and labor if the task can be carried through.

Effects of Lower Interest.

"A lower interest charge on a large volume of government securities would affect long time interest rates," a source close to Secretary of the Treasury Mills said today. "Bond prices would rise to more normal levels. This, in turn, would not only improve the position of many banks, but it would have a decidedly stimulating effect on the capital market."

Estimating that under normal conditions industry draws six billion dollars yearly from marketing new securities, officials maintained that with improved security markets, railroads and other heavy industries could finance and catch up on overdue maintenance and replacement. In other words, orders would go out to factories and employés would be called back to work.

WESTERN UNION SHOWS NET LOSS OF $842,595 IN '32

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 14.—The preliminary report of the Western Union Telegraph company, Inc., for 1932 shows a loss of $842,595 after interest charges, depreciation, taxes, and expenses, comparing with a net income of $5,974,500 in 1931.

Gross revenue, including dividends and interest received, amounted to $84,581,963, against $110,547,245, a decline of $25,965,282 or 23.5 per cent. Repairs and depreciation reserve were $12,205,835, against $13,756,361, a decline of 11.3 per cent, while other operating expenses, which include wages, salaries, rent of leased lines and taxes, were $67,862,602, against $85,459,069, a decline of 20.6 per cent.

Earnings were $4,513,526, against $11,331,815, a decline of 60.2 per cent. Interest charges on bonded debt amounted to $5,356,121, against $5,357,315.

Sun Life Has Total Policies Near 3 Billions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 14.—New insurance written by the Sun Life Assurance company totaled $284,098,930 in 1932, bringing the total amount in force to $2,928,952,028, according to the report made by President T. B. MacAulay at the annual stockholders' meeting today. Total income for the year was $161,407,285, a decline from $197,140,162 in 1931, but regarded as satisfactory in the light of prevailing business conditions.

The meeting was largely attended, due somewhat to the keen interest in the recent trial of J. J. Harpell, local publisher, on a charge of criminally libeling Mr. MacAulay by writing the insurance executive was a "crook." The meeting took place on the eve of Harpell's reappearance in court to appeal the three months' sentence he received. None of the charges was brought up in the meeting and MacAulay was cheered.

Income from renewal of premiums was the largest ever received by the company in a year. New policies totalled 95,122. In 1931 new policies numbered 147,246 and new insurance written amounted to $527,939,214. New group insurance last year included in the foregoing total, was $15,567,075, in contrast with $54,516,075 the preceding year.

Insurance Near Three Billions.

The total insurance in force at the end of 1932 was $2,928,952,028, compared with $3,051,077,066 at the end of the preceding year. Policyholders declined from 922,694 at the end of 1931 to 919,260 at the end of 1932.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during the year amounted to $105,525,655, a sum which exceeds the total amount of insurance written by the company in 1923, only nine years ago. Dividends paid to policyholders in the year were $22,221,482, compared with $26,026,000 in the preceding year.

LUMBERMEN'S ASSETS RISE

Assets of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company reached a new peak figure of $16,032,000, an increase of $510,000 in 1932, James S. Kemper, president, said in the annual report issued yesterday.

Total premium income of the company also reached a new high total of $16,098,000, a gain of $791,427 for the year.

Mr. Kemper said the value of the company's investment portfolio at market prices at the close of 1932 was $319,379 higher than at the end of 1931. He pointed out that the company has strictly adhered to a policy of computing on a basis of market values.

STOCK MARKET RIDES OUT WAVE OF EARLY SALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 14.—Michigan's impromptu bank holiday gave the stock market its worst sinking spell in three months today. Prices tumbled from 1 to 5 points all over the board as investors and speculators alike rushed to dump their holdings in the face of the sudden development. The orders came from all over the country and even from abroad.

The "storm" lasted about two hours. Then, around noon, confidence began to return as the situation was analyzed in authoritative quarters and the market gradually regained its balance. Toward the close the balance of operations veered once more to the buying side and the list closed the day pointing definitely upward. Net losses were from 1 to about 4 points.

Brokerage house commentators were inclined to accept the explanation of the bank suspension as being due to real estate troubles and to rely on efforts to clear things up without serious damage, but most of them counseled caution until matters improved. There was a disposition in some quarters to see the development as an incentive to some sort of drastic congressional action to remedy present business and credit developments.

Motor Shares Heavily Sold.

Some of the heaviest selling of the squall converged on the automobile shares, due of course to the fact that the affected banking area is the center of the motor industry. General Motors and Chrysler, in particular, were turned over in heavy volume during the first hour and the former was driven down some 2 points before it could find a resting place. General Motors closed at 12¾, off 1½ points, and Chrysler at 11¼, off 1⅝. Other motor shares sold off sharply.

The railroad group also suffered severely. Net losses of from 2 to nearly 5 points were the rule for the division, with Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Reading, Louisville and Nashville, Union Pacific, New York Central, and Atchison as the chief sufferers. Most of these felt out new low ground for the year. New Haven and Pennsylvania finished more than a point each below their previous closing levels.

Individual "weak sisters" were numerous. Allied Chemical broke nearly 5 points and succeeded in regaining only a portion of its early loss before the finish. Outlet company dropped 5 points on a few sales and Reading company dipped 4⅞. New York and Harlem, an "inactive" rail, dipped 5 points and Detroit Edison gave up 6¾.

Gold Stocks Weather Storm.

Gold shares alone were able to weather the storm. Homestake Mining bucked the downsweep to register a gain of 5 points. Alaska Juneau rose fractionally and Dome Mines succeeded in holding near its previous close. McIntyre, however, was not so lusty and fell back rather easily.

Continuation of the short covering movement started last week helped the tobacco shares to make a better showing than some other groups. Losses in America Tobacco, Liggett & Myers and Lorillard were limited to a point or less. Evidently the second price cut in cigarets, announced last Saturday, had been pretty thoroughly discounted in these shares, brokers said.

Farm stocks such as J. I. Case, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward and others were under especial pressure on the score of the fresh dip in wheat prices.

American Telephone, the board of which meets tomorrow for dividend action, came in for some rather heavy selling and gave up more than 2 points. The street believes the company's $9 regular rate will be maintained and today's weakness in the issue was thought to reflect nothing more than general bearishness over the Michigan situation.

U. S. GYPSUM CO. WRITES DOWN PLANT VALUES

The United States Gypsum company earned 86c a share on its common stock in 1932, the annual report released last night shows. Net income was $1,599,000, after all charges and taxes. This is a material reduction from the 1931 net income, which amounted to $3,563,000, or $2.48 a share, on the common stock.

A writedown of $7,700,000 in the company's plant is shown in the year end balance sheet. Plant and equipment, less reserves, are carried at $39,320,000, against $48,734,000 at the end of 1931.

Changes Are Explained.

Appropriation for depreciation and depletion amounted to $1,787,000 against $2,256,000 in the preceding year. The reserves were set up on the basis of the lower plant account.

Sewell L. Avery, president, explained that the writedown was based on the tonnage allocated to each plant. The building of new mills and the decline in business have reduced the value of some of the older plants, he said.

Earned surplus of the company at the end of 1932 was $19,641,000, compared with $28,676,000 at the close of 1931. This reduction is accounted for by the writedown in plants, the excess of dividend payments over earnings, and other charges.

Dividends Exceed Earnings.

Dividends paid on the common and preferred stocks totaled $2,451,370 against net earnings of $1,599,416, a deficit of $851,954. A further deduction of $504,000 is made for losses on discontinued plants, patents, inventory obsolescence, and cost of cancelling a long term lease.

Paid in surplus was reduced by $900,000, representing a reserve provided to reduce stock held under employés' purchase contracts to par value. Total paid in surplus was $5,598,000 at the end of the year.

In similar letters written to twelve outstanding New York bankers, literally the directors of the Street against which he has spoken hundreds of thousands of words, Senator Thomas wrote:

"After months of effort here, we are forced to appeal from an impotent congress and a short sighted administration to you, a higher power, to stop forcing the retreat and to, at once, give the order to advance."

Outlines His Views.

Senator Thomas' letter is a lengthy presentation in formal manner of the topics which he has discussed personally in recent weeks with most of those to whom the letter is addressed. His conversations have been both private and in the open forums of public meetings.

His letters, prepared for mailing tonight, were addressed to the following: George Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Dr. W. R. Burgess, deputy governor and chief economic adviser of that bank; Winthrop W. Aldrich, "directing head" of Chase National bank; Dr. B. Anderson Jr., chief economic adviser of Chase National bank; William C. Patten, "directing head" of Guaranty Trust company; Dr. Henry Chandler, chief economic adviser of Guaranty Trust company; Charles W. Mitchell, "directing head" of National City bank; George Roberts, chief economic adviser of National City bank; J. P. Morgan, "directing head" of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Thomas W. Maont of J. P. Morgan & Co.; S. Parker Gilbert, chief economic adviser of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Jackson Reynolds, "directing head" of First National bank.

Still Criticizes Wall Street.

Senator Thomas based his appeal on the promise that "conditions are too serious to indulge in arguments as to the cause of distress," and added that "a promising program of relief must come early in the new administration." He blamed the financial condition of the country, with its bank failures, agricultural failures and industrial distress, principally on deflation policies, which he said are "unmistakably responsible," and added:

"Your policies are, in my judgment, contrary to a just public policy; are against the public welfare and, hence, should and must be changed."

A large part of the letter was devoted to a review of current conditions as manifest in bank failures, "tax strikes" and similar conditions and then pointed out the extraordinary influence which Senator Thomas contended is wielded by the banks.

REPUBLIC STEEL SHOWS 1932 LOSS OF $11,261,194

Cleveland, O., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The Republic Steel corporation reported today a loss of $11,261,194 for 1932 for itself and subsidiary companies. This total included a net loss from operations of $10,969,843 and $291,351 paid as preferred dividends on the guaranteed stock of the Trumbull-Cliffs Furnace company.

Items included in the net loss from operations were $90,687 listed as loss from operations after deducting $3,015,440 for maintenance and repairs of plants, $3,368,323 for interest on indebtedness, and $7,510,831 for depreciation and renewal of plants and for exhaustion of minerals.

DENY REPORTS ELDER INSULL TO LOSE PENSION

Bankers Assert No Action in Prospect.

There has been no move to cut off the $18,000 yearly pension which Samuel Insull is receiving from the three Chicago utility companies he formerly headed, it was stated in banking quarters here yesterday.

Announcement that Samuel Insull Jr. has retired as an executive officer and director of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke led to reports that the pension granted the elder Insull upon his retirement last June would be eliminated.

Young Insull continued nominally as a director of all there companies as well as holding the title of vice chairman of the boards. His new title as assistant to the chairman more accurately desribes the capacity in which he has functioned for the last several months. Announcement of his resignation as vice chairman and director of the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois is expected shortly.

Want Pension Quiz.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP)—The Illinois commerce commission was asked in a petition filed today by the Utility Consumers and Investors league of Illinois to protect consumers from losses suffered by the "big three" of Insull operating companies.

The losses totaled $80,000,000, the petition said, and were suffered by the Commonwealth Edison, Peoples' Gas Light and Coke companies, and the Public Service company of northern Illinois from 1926 until the Insull utility collapse last year.

A thorough investigation into the financial affairs of the three companies, and particularly into pension payments to Samuel Insull Sr., was asked of the commission.

While Insull is known to receive $18,000 annually as a pension, the petition urged that the commission investigate as to whether he actually receives more.

Among other requests asked by the league was one involving loans to officers and employés of the Insull firms, such loans, the petition said, totaled $5,245,000.

Trace Insull Loans.

Washington, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Loans made to officers of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, and apparently approved by the officers, among whom were Martin J. Insull and Samuel Insull, were traced today by Examiner J. W. Adams, before the federal trade commission in connection with an investigation of the company.

Adams said the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company had loaned its officers and associates $681,575 on collateral, worth little at present market value, and life insurance policies. Of that amount Martin J. Insull obtained $170,222 between Dec. 31, 1931, and Feb. 20, 1932, all of which Adams said was secured by stock of little value. No authorization for many of these loans to officers of companies appeared on the company's books, he said. Principal executive officers of both companies were the same person or persons subject to their authority and direction, he pointed out.

The commission heard testimony concerning the Corporation Securities company. Examiner W. H. England traced the sale by Cyrus Eaton of Cleveland of stock valued at $50,054,000 to Insull Utility Investment, Inc., and Corporation Securities. England said that it appeared that Insull's had been overcharged by Eaton $5,954,000.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish news was at a premium in the grain markets yesterday, and the few unfavorable weather and crop comments on wheat were more than offset by the weakness in stocks. Houses with eastern connections were fairly persistent sellers of wheat futures in small lots, and uneasiness created over the decline in eastern markets and the Michigan banking situation helped to depress prices. The latter dropped over 1 cent from Saturday and closed at the bottom, with net losses of 1@1¼c. May finished at 46⅝@46⅞c; July, 47⅜@47⅛c, and September, 48⅝@48¾c.

Buying against bids and by commission houses on resting orders were factors in checking the decline in wheat, but pit observers claimed it was hard to trace where all the wheat sold had gone to. This was especially the case in the May delivery. The open interest in the latter has decreased around 23,000,000 bu in Chicago, Kansas City, and Minneapolis since Dec. 9.

May Wheat a Puzzle.

Where all the May wheat sold came from and where it went is puzzling the grain trade. Some operators were of the opinion that the reduction of such a large amount at this season of the year tended to confirm recent rumors to the effect that the farm board was gradually getting out of its line. Farm board officials have persistently claimed they have not been selling futures.

The Orient continues in the market for cash wheat and was credited with having bought around 500,000 bu of Australian grain yesterday. The continent was a liberal buyer of Manitobas, with sales in all positions in the last two days estimated as high as 1,500,000 bu. Winnipeg reported steady buying of futures by exporters and on scale orders, but prices closed ⅝@⅞c lower than Saturday in Canadian funds.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

May corn was off ¾c from Saturday's finish to 25¼c and closed at that price, which was within ¼c of the lowest level of the season. Easiness in wheat and hedging against the purchase of 204,000 bu to arrive from the country were the depressing influences. The close was ⅝@⅞c lower, with July at 27c and September at 28¼c.

Oats eased with corn and closed ⅜c lower. May being 16⅝@16¾c and July 17@17⅛c.

Trade in rye was largely of a local character with the finish ¾@1⅛c lower, the weakness in wheat being the dominating influence. May closed at 33½c and July at 33⅛c.

Potatoes about steady. Receipts, 44 cars with 143 cars on team track. Live hens were 1c higher and leghorn hens 1½c higher. Receipts, 1 car and 30 trucks.

URGES RADICAL CHANGES AMONG U. S. RAILROADS

Commission Makes Long Awaited Report.

Panama canal are used as a criterion. Mr. Smith urged that the corporation be investigated to determine what it costs and whether it should be continued.

The report holds that the railroads should be permitted to operate water lines, but that coastal, inter-coastal and lake shipping should be regulated to "relieve commerce of present chaotic condition" and calls for a clarification of the clause in the law which forbids, without sanction by the interstate commerce commision, the charging of less for a railroad haul than the sum of the intermediate hauls. The railroads find this clause an obstacle in meeting Panama canal competition.

Would Permit Truck Ownership.

Besides operating water lines, the report would permit the railroads to operate motor vehicles and it predicts that if the railroads did adopt these new means of transport, their hositility to them might abate. Automotive traffic should bear its share of taxation, although neither taxes nor regulation should be applied "for any purpose of handicapping the march of progress," continues the report.

Mr. Smith held that the testimony offered "does not indicate to me that the [automotive] competition is at this time as serious a menace to the railroads as they claim it to be."

He suggested caution in further taxation of motor vehicles, saying that this taxation was "being steadily raised."

The report touches lightly on railway wages, saying that disparity between them and those paid drivers of commercial vehicles should be adjusted preferably by raising the latter. The report "regrets" organized labor did not present its views to the committee.

"While regulation should be extended to any form of competition, it should be applied only where necessary for protection," the report continues.

Must Deflate Capital Structure.

All four signatories to the report reiterate that no theory of rate making is justified which seeks to preserve unwieldy capital structures, regardless of who owns railroad securities.

Mindful that the railroads, almost alone of the great industries of the country, have maintained rates at boom time levels and still are in grave financial straits, the report says that this condition cannot be cured by increasing rates to salvage old mistakes or by government loans to preserve them.

Better management and comprehensive reorganizations of the capital structures and of the physical systems themselves would, it is concluded, do more than the government or any other outside force to rehabilitate the railroad industry.

Mindful that the railroads, almost alone of the great industries of the country, have maintained rates at boom time levels and still are in grave financial straits, the report says that this condition cannot be cured by increasing rates to salvage old mistakes or by government loans to preserve them.

Although giving heed to the overemphasis of railroad argument that the government has regulated the initiative out of the railroads, thus bringing carriers to their present plight, the report says the fact remains that the government, through the interstate commerce commission, has for many years assumed to dominate railroad administration. On this point it is demanded that the legal limitations of the commission be changed to conform with the times.

Put Burden on Management.

The burden of making the changes necessary to reëstablish the position of the railroads is placed on the management, operating and financial. Regional consolidation, elimination of unprofitable services of all kinds, and operation of competing services as auxiliaries are urged.

Railroads, it is charged, have much debt now outstanding which was originally incurred for facilities that were scrapped long ago, thus violating the law of financing that bond issues should not mature beyond the profitable life of the facility against which they were issued.

The present debt structure, in the opinion of the committee, must therefore be revised and the losses written off.

The committee held that beacons, weather reports, and other aids to aerial navigation be continued at public expense, and it stated that "air transport should be encouraged during its development state but we believe that every such service should ultimately pay its own way."

SMITH FOR NEW SYSTEM

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—What we need is a new transportation system, not endless hearings on a system that does not work. This is the essence of the report offered by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, which supplements the general report of the committee of which he is a member.

There is much to be said on the theory that the nation is moving inevitably toward one national railroad system, he points out, adding that the major systems might do well to appoint an impartial chairman to coordinate their present activities and prepare a plan of permanent consolidation.

Mr. Smith, however, indicates that establishment of a limited number of strong systems would be a start in the right direction. Such consolidation and reorganization is necessary, he is convinced, if costs and rates are to be reduced and losses written off.

On this score he advocates the abandonment of unnecessary, competing and weak lines, elimination of obsolete equipment, and suggests employment of cheaper alternative transport methods, such as motor and air transportation and, if necessary, waterways and pipe lines.

M E N

FOR MEN WHO CAN LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY MANAGE WORK OF THIS KIND. WE HAVE IMMEDIATE OPENINGS WITH OPPORTUNITY TO EARN $4,000.00 TO $7,500 A YEAR ON A PERMANENT BASIS.

The men who make $4,000.00, $5,000.00, $7,500.00, and more per year regularly in our company learned how to do the necessary things for success in our business. They acquired sufficient self-management and self-assurance to face and master the obstacles and difficulties that must perforce be met by enterprising business men in taking advantage of any substantial opportunity.

All of them did not make one hundred dollars per week the first month, although some made more than that. Many of them had to get along on $125.00 to $200.00 a month while learning and adapting themselves to the work, and some men $105.00 to $150.00 per month. This work is not "something for nothing," but something real for the man who can learn and has the self-control to consistently and courageously go ahead and do things—things which in and of themselves are simple and easy to do, but which must be pursued and performed with purpose, determination and self-confidence.

Our product is so revolutionary in its principle and performance that when presented with understanding it reveals a service and value so astounding and needful as to be irresistible.

We are in the market for good men. Examine your qualifications and particularly your attitude of mind before making application.

If you are adaptable to understanding and following successful procedure, if you are of good judgment in presenting reasons and values so as to influence others to do things which are right and necessary to do, and if you are a worker willing daily to pay a working price for success, then we recommend that you come in Wednesday for an interview. There is no cost. The training by men who are experienced, practical and successful in our business is free. We furnish equipment, and no deposits are required.

For personal interview with company executive, apply Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 15, at 2 p. m., at 215 McGrahan Bldg., 1046 Wilson-av.—NO OTHER TIME—or Room 205 at 1569 Sherman-av., Evanston, if living along the north shore.

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once.

The most money is made in shops where particular women gladly pay good prices for the kind of service that Marinello Beauticians render. Why not train for positions that pay the most? That's good economy, good sense.

Day or evening classes now forming. Easy tuition payments. Free international Employment Service—or we will help you establish your own business.
